Executive Summary

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee and the Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommend adopting one form, approving two forms, and revising three forms to implement statutory amendments affecting the relationship between probate guardianships and juvenile dependency proceedings. The new mandatory information form fulfills the statutory requirement to develop a form explaining the nature of a guardianship, the rights and duties of a guardian, and the services and supports available to a probate guardian compared with those available to a caregiver in the child welfare system and a guardian appointed by the juvenile court. One new optional form and two revised forms complete a thorough, up-to-date, and consistent set of information forms on probate guardianship and juvenile dependency cases. In addition, revisions to one form implement the amended process for probate court referral of a child who is the subject of a guardianship petition to the local child welfare agency for investigation of abuse or neglect and commencement of juvenile court proceedings. Approval of a new form gives the probate court an option for exercising its statutory authority to request juvenile court review of an agency's decision not to commence juvenile court proceedings in response to the court's referral.

Recommendation

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee and the Probate and Mental Health Advisory Committee recommend that the Judicial Council, effective January 1, 2023:

1. Adopt Comparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers (form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO) to explain the nature of a guardianship, the rights and duties of a guardian, and the services and supports available to a probate guardian compared with those available to a caregiver in the child welfare system and a guardian appointed by the juvenile court;
2. Approve Information on Probate Guardianship of the Estate (form GC-206-INFO) to provide separate and up-to-date information on probate guardianships of the estate;
3. Approve Probate Court Request for Juvenile Court Review of Decision Not to Commence Proceedings (form JV-213) for probate court use to request juvenile court review of a child welfare agency's decision not to commence juvenile court proceedings in response to the court's referral;
4. Revise Guardianship Pamphlet (form GC-205), retitled and renumbered as Information on Probate Guardianship of the Person (form GC-205-INFO), to provide separate and up-to-date information on probate guardianships of the person;
5. Revise Becoming a Child's Guardian in Juvenile Court (form JV-350-INFO), retitled as Information on Juvenile Court Guardianship, to provide up-to-date information on juvenile court guardianships; and
6. Revise Application to Commence Proceedings by Affidavit and Decision by Social Worker (form JV-210), retitled as Application to Commence Juvenile Court Proceedings and Decision of Social Worker, to add provisions for probate court use to refer a child for child welfare agency investigation and commencement of juvenile court proceedings.

The text of the proposed forms is attached at pages 10–43.

Relevant Previous Council Action

The Judicial Council last revised form GC-205, the guardianship pamphlet, effective January 1, 2001. Form JV-210 was most recently revised effective July 1, 2010. Finally, form JV-350-INFO was substantially revised effective September 1, 2019.

Analysis/Rationale

Assembly Bill 260 was enacted to combat “hidden foster care,” a practice in which a child welfare agency, instead of filing a juvenile dependency petition, encourages the parents of a child subject to or at risk of abuse or neglect to consent to a voluntary “safety plan” of supervised out-of-home placement with a relative.¹ Once the child is placed with the relative, the agency then informs the relative that it will file a dependency petition and place the child in foster care if the relative caregiver does not petition the probate court for appointment as the child’s guardian.

Assembly Bill 260 addressed this problem on two fronts. First, it amended Government Code section 68511.1 to require the Judicial Council to develop a form explaining the nature of a guardianship, the rights and duties of a guardian, and the services and supports available to a probate guardian compared with those available to a caregiver in the child welfare system and a guardian appointed by the juvenile court. The advisory committees recommend that the council adopt Comparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers (form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO) to fulfill this legislative mandate.²

As private proceedings that do not require government intervention, probate guardianships can seem less intrusive and therefore preferable to juvenile dependency proceedings to families needing someone other than a parent to serve as the child’s caregiver. But probate guardianships differ from juvenile dependency proceedings in ways that are not always to the advantage of parents and children. The probate court process lacks many hallmarks of the juvenile court process, such as court-appointed counsel for parents and children, a presumption of family reunification, and authority for the court to order and oversee reunification services for the family. In addition, a probate guardianship may not afford the same level of financial support or services that is available to a child placed with a foster or resource family or a guardian appointed by the juvenile court.³ Moreover, a probate guardian may, after a time, file a petition to terminate parental rights and adopt the child.⁴ These differences are not always appreciated by a child’s parent or prospective guardian when deciding whether to request, accept, or oppose the appointment of a probate guardian.

³ A resource family is a foster family approved through the resource family approval program. See Welf. & Inst. Code, §§ 16519.5–16519.7. This report discusses the use of the term below, at p. 8.

Information forms (GC-205-INFO, GC-206-INFO, GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO, JV-350-INFO)

Form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO is intended to contribute to informed decisions, to the extent those decisions are left to a family, about the caregiving arrangement that best suits the needs of the child and family by providing families with the important information required by statute.

The committees designed the form to give introductory information, including general information about the nature of a guardianship, on the first page, and then present more detailed information in three separate charts. Chart 1 compares the rights and duties of foster parents/resource families with those of guardians. Chart 2 compares the services and financial supports available to foster parents/resource families, probate guardians, and juvenile court guardians. Chart 3 compares the court processes for appointing, overseeing, and terminating a probate court guardian and a juvenile court guardian. This chart also compares the processes in probate or family court for terminating parental rights after a probate guardian has been appointed with the same process after the juvenile court has appointed a guardian.

To promote consistency with the new form and update the existing information forms to reflect current law, the committees also recommend revising form JV-350-INFO on juvenile court guardianships. In addition, the committees recommend revising GC-205-INFO and approving form GC-206-INFO to separate the information about probate guardianships of the estate from information about probate guardianships of the person, because the information on guardianships of the estate is only relevant to a subset of potential guardians. The forms have also been revised to conform across forms in use of terms and advisements to parents and guardians.

Forms for probate court application to child welfare agency and juvenile court (JV-210, JV-213)

On a second front, AB 260 sought to promote the operation of the probate guardianship and juvenile court laws as a cohesive structure.⁵ Amendments to Probate Code section 1513(b) and Welfare and Institutions Code section 329 expanded and clarified the process for probate court referral of a potentially abused or neglected child to the local child welfare agency for investigation and commencement of juvenile court proceedings as well as the agency's response. The committees recommend revising form JV-210 to add a separate section for the probate court's referral and clarifying the instructions on the form consistent with the statutory requirements.

Amendments to Probate Code section 1513(b) and Welfare and Institutions Code section 331 clarified the probate court's authority, if the child welfare agency does not start a dependency case for the proposed ward, to apply to the juvenile court for review of the agency's decision and an order to commence juvenile court proceedings. The statutes also established timelines and processes for the probate court's application and the juvenile court's review and response to the probate court. The committees recommend the approval of form JV-213 for the probate court's optional use to apply for juvenile court review.

⁵ See Prob. Code, § 1513(i).

Policy implications

The new and revised forms in this proposal implement the requirements of AB 260 in probate guardianship and juvenile dependency proceedings. To the extent that this proposal has policy implications, they stem largely from the policies and purposes of the legislation as well as the broader statutory schemes for guardianship and juvenile dependency in the Probate Code and Welfare and Institutions Code, respectively. The proposal promotes the Judicial Council's policy objectives of improving the quality of justice and service to the public and promoting access to the courts by providing accurate and thorough legal information to assist parents and prospective guardians to gain access to the court through the door that will lead to the relief most appropriate for their families.

Comments

This proposal circulated for comment in the spring 2022 invitation-to-comment cycle. The committees received 16 external comments: four superior courts, four advocacy organizations, one county counsel's office, one county bar association, and six court investigators responded. Three commenters agreed with the proposal, ten agreed with the proposal if modified, one agreed in part if modified and disagreed in part, one disagreed with the proposal, and one did not state a position. A workgroup comprising members of both advisory committees met three times with staff to review the comments and develop preliminary responses for the committees' consideration.

General comments on forms

Several commenters suggested reducing the amount of information in forms GC-205-INFO, GC-206-INFO, GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO, and JV-350-INFO. Other commenters suggested adding information to the forms or developing additional forms. The committees are sensitive to both the need to present information that in a way that will not overwhelm parents and prospective caregivers and the need to provide information sufficient for them to understand the choices available to them. The committees have worked to balance these often competing needs in revising the proposed forms.⁶ In response to comment, the committees modified all the forms to streamline and reorganize the presentation of information to make it easier to understand. In particular, the committees modified chart 1 on proposed form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO to remove former column 1, which discussed nonparental caregiver arrangements that do not require a court order. These arrangements are now mentioned on page one of the form, along with a reference to form GC-205-INFO, which discusses those arrangements in more detail.

The committees considered several suggestions to add information to the forms. In response to a suggestion from a coalition of commenters led by the Alliance for Children's Rights, the committees added a discussion of publicly funded childcare options available to caregivers, including guardians, based on income to forms GC-205-INFO and GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO. The committees decided that this information would be important to parents and potential caregivers concerned about access to the resources needed to care for and support a child. The committees did not, however, add language to the forms that could be construed as legal advice. Instead, language was added in appropriate locations, including the first page of form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO, to encourage form users to consult an attorney about their specific cases.

Matters not subject to family decision

Several commenters suggested clarifying that some decisions related to juvenile court proceedings were not subject to a family's private decision. The committees revised form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO to clarify that only a county social worker may file a petition to start a juvenile dependency proceeding and that the juvenile court might not grant the petition.

Rules of court to implement Probate Code section 1513(b) and Welfare and Institutions Code section 331(b)

The committees requested specific comment on whether to recommend statewide rules of court to specify internal court procedures for a probate court to apply for juvenile court review under Probate Code section 1513(b)(4) and a juvenile court to respond under Welfare and Institutions Code section 331(b). All commenters who addressed the issue suggested that the committees recommend rules of court to establish uniform statewide procedures, though most appeared to want rules not to establish procedures for probate court application for juvenile court review, but to establish a statewide process for an individual to apply to the child welfare agency, which is outside of the scope of the Judicial Council's purview.

The unanimity of the comments in favor of developing rules notwithstanding, the committees do not recommend rules at this time for three principal reasons. First, the statutes outline the content, procedures, and deadlines for applications and responses in detail. The committees concluded that rules of court specifying additional processes or mechanisms would not usefully add to the statutory requirements and, as noted above, would interfere with the local discretion needed to implement the statutory policies in each court.

Second, the committees' discussions disclosed unavoidable differences among courts in the manner in which the courts are able to implement the new requirements. These differences—including differences in court size, number and assignment of judicial officers, case management systems, and general operational processes—prevent the implementation of the legislative intent through uniform statewide rules.

Third, the committees are sensitive to the requirement, in Government Code section 77001, that rules of court establish a decentralized system of trial court management. In most, though certainly not all, cases, the process enacted in Probate Code section 1513(b)(4) and Welfare and Institutions Code section 331(b) will be conducted internally, that is, between two different departments within a single superior court. The processes at issue in those cases seem, therefore, to fall within the scope of internal operational procedures best left to local discretion. If additional guidance is needed when the application and review are in two separate superior courts, Family Code section 3410 or Probate Code section 2204, both of which apply to guardianship proceedings, might inform the processes.

Service and delivery of form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO with notice of hearing

Several commenters stated that the cost to petitioners of photocopying and mailing form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO with each notice of hearing on a petition to appoint a probate guardian, as required by Probate Code section 1511(a), could be considerable. Although the committees are not free to limit the statutory notice requirement, they have attempted to reduce the costs to petitioners by limiting the information in the form to that which is statutorily mandated and, where appropriate, substituting references to other forms or sources that provide more detail. The committees also note that a petitioner may, with the recipient's consent, deliver notice electronically to a person listed in Probate Code section 1511(c).

Caregiving arrangements that do not require a court order

Several commenters objected to the global description of caregiving arrangements that do not require a court order as “informal.” The committees agree that this characterization of the caregiving arrangements described, for example, in item 2 of form GC-205-INFO, was misleading. Although none of them requires a court order, each requires a certain level of formality. The committees have revised the forms to refer to these caregiving arrangements that do not require a court order as nonparental caregiving arrangements, to move the substantive discussion of them to form GC-205-INFO, and to discuss them more precisely. In particular, the committees agree with the commenters that the reference to an “informal childcare agreement” was misleading. Some commenters correctly pointed out that a parent cannot transfer the rights and duties of legal custody over their child to another adult under California law. Only a court order can effect such a transfer.

A parent who wishes to authorize another adult to exercise their parental rights may, however, do so by executing a power of attorney consistent with the required statutory formalities. (See generally Prob. Code, §§ 4000–4310.) The power of attorney may grant express rights to the caregiver or may grant rights by reference to an applicable statute. (See, e.g., id., § 4263(a)(2).) But a power of attorney does not impose a duty on the caregiver to exercise the granted powers unless the caregiver agrees in writing to exercise them. (Id., § 4230.) Even if the caregiver agrees, the parent retains all their parental duties, too. Because of the formalities required to execute a valid power of attorney, the risk of error in specifying the rights granted the designated caregiver, and the need of a written agreement to impose a duty on the caregiver, the committees have cautioned users that advocates discourage the use of powers of attorney to make caregiving arrangements and encourage parents who want to explore their use to consult an attorney.

In addition, one commenter suggested adding information about Indian custodianship as a caregiving arrangement that does not require a court order. In response to this comment, the committees added information about Indian custodianship to item 2 on form GC-205-INFO and included an Indian custodian as a potential “other caregiver” in item 1 on form JV-210.⁷ The committees do not, however, recommend adding an option to indicate that the child lives on tribal land to item 2 on form JV-210. That item requests information needed to establish that the juvenile court where the application is filed is the proper venue or forum. The residence of the child on tribal land would not serve that purpose.

Foster parents and resource families

Multiple commenters suggested providing additional information on the difference between foster parents and resource families. In response to these comments, the committees revised forms GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO and JV-350-INFO to explain that resource families are foster parents who have been approved by the child welfare agency through the resource family approval (RFA) process, the details of which are beyond the scope of this proposal.⁸ Because the rights and duties and services and supports are the same regardless of whether the foster parent has received resource family approval, the forms treat them the same. In addition, these forms were revised to use “foster parent/resource family” together consistently to avoid confusion.

Authority to set hearing on request for juvenile court review under Welfare and Institutions Code section 331

Multiple commenters inquired about the source of the juvenile court’s authority to set a hearing on an application to review a social worker’s decision not to start juvenile court proceedings. The relevant statutes do not require, authorize, or prohibit a hearing. Setting a hearing, including an evidentiary hearing or argument, is nevertheless within the court’s inherent authority if necessary to resolve the matter. The Court of Appeal, in In re M.C. (2011) 199 Cal.App.4th 784, approves this exercise of judicial discretion in this situation:

[U]nder section 331, the juvenile court adjudicates a controversy. Whoever filed the affidavit pursuant to section 329 will initiate the section 331 proceeding before the juvenile court. The juvenile court must receive and consider not only the section 329 affidavit, but also the social worker’s endorsement stating the reasons why [they] declined to proceed. The court may also consider additional evidence in the form of investigative reports by the social worker, declarations, and, if necessary, witness testimony. Upon receipt of this evidence, the court makes an independent assessment of whether “there was or is within the county, or residing therein, a child within the provisions of Section 300.”⁹

A chart of all comments received and the committees’ responses is attached at pages 44–141.

Alternatives considered

The committees considered different methods and formats for presenting the information in forms GC-205-INFO, GC-206-INFO, GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO, and JV-350-INFO, as well as allocating the information differently among the forms. The recommended forms reflect the committees' determination of the most effective presentation of information to self-represented persons to help them understand the differences among nonparental caregiving arrangements.

The committees did not consider taking no action. As noted above, AB 260's amendment of Government Code section 68511.1 required the Judicial Council to develop a form providing information about guardianships and comparing them to other caregiving arrangements. The committees intend form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO to fulfill this statutory mandate. The revisions to the other information forms and the approval of form GC-206-INFO for guardianships of the estate were needed to ensure the forms provide accurate legal information.

The committees also did not consider not updating the forms used to apply for commencement of juvenile court proceedings or for juvenile court review on a child welfare agency's decision not to commence such proceedings. Assembly Bill 260's amendments to Probate Code section 1513(b) and Welfare and Institutions Code sections 329 and 331 required revisions. The committees did consider—as an alternative to recommending Probate Court Request for Juvenile Court Review of Decision Not to Commence Proceedings (form JV-213)—adding a section for the probate court's use to request juvenile court review of a decision not to start dependency proceedings to Application to Review Decision by Social Worker Not to Commence Proceedings (form JV-212). The committees determined, however, that these changes to form JV-212 would risk confusing private persons, most of whom are self-represented, and deterring them from using form JV-212.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

The courts will not incur any costs from serving or delivering form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO with notice of hearing. Probate Code section 1460 requires the petitioner, not the court, to serve or deliver notice of hearing on petitions filed under division 4 of the code, including guardianship petitions. However, trial court self-help centers will incur ongoing costs to print the information forms and provide them to petitioners, parents, and interested persons. These costs are expected to be minimal, as is the additional work for self-help center staff. Court costs may, to some extent, be offset by a reduction in continuances because self-represented litigants will be better informed. The use of form JV-213 may also streamline the process for the probate court to apply for juvenile court review.

GC-205-INFOInformation on Probate Guardianship of the Person

This form gives general information about guardianship of the person under the Probate Code. It discusses:

- Alternatives to guardianship;
- Nomination of a guardian;
- Who can be appointed as a guardian;
- How to ask the probate court to appoint a guardian;
- How to formalize the appointment;
- The rights and duties of a guardian of the person;
- Court oversight, removal, and replacement of the guardian; and
- How and when a guardianship can end.

For an overview of guardianship and a comparison of probate and juvenile court guardianships with placement ordered by the juvenile court with a foster/resource family, read Comparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers (form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO). For information on juvenile court guardianship, read Information on Juvenile Court Guardianship (form JV-350-INFO). For information on probate guardianship of the estate, read Information on Probate Guardianship of the Estate (form GC-206-INFO).

CAUTION: This form is not a substitute for legal advice from a licensed attorney. Parents and potential nonparent caregivers considering guardianship should consult a lawyer for answers to questions or concerns about their situation. Click this link, www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-findlawyer.htm, for help finding a lawyer. More information is available from the California Courts Online Self-Help Center and private publications and resources. The superior court clerk's office or self-help center also has general information, as well as information about any local procedures or rules.

Before asking a court to appoint a guardian, a parent or potential guardian may find it useful to think about these questions:

- Does the child really need a guardianship?
- What alternatives, such as those discussed on pages 2 and 3, are available?
- Would any of those alternatives be better for the child?
- Do the parents know about the alternatives and agree to the guardianship?
- If the parents don't agree, is there enough evidence to show the court that the child needs a guardian?

A person who cannot answer these questions is strongly encouraged to seek legal advice or, at least, more information.

① What Is a Guardianship?

A guardianship of the person is a court-ordered relationship that gives an adult, called a guardian, legal and physical custody of a child, with the right to make parental decisions about the child's care and control, residence, education, and medical treatment. (For a detailed discussion of a guardian's rights and duties, see ⑪, below.)

With a couple of exceptions (see ③, below), parents may not be appointed guardians of their own child.

Appointment of a guardian of the person completely suspends the parents' rights to have the child live with them and to make decisions for the child for as long as the guardianship lasts. The appointment of a guardian does not, however, terminate parental rights without additional action by the guardian and the court. For more information, see ⑩ and ⑮, below.

② Are There Nonparental Caregiver Arrangements That Do Not Require a Court Order?

Yes. Parents can make arrangements for their child to live with an adult who is not the child's parent without going to court. These arrangements can be useful if a parent knows or believes they will not be able to take care of the child for a limited time. For example, a custodial parent may be ill; need hospitalization or other residential treatment; be detained, deported, or incarcerated; or be deployed on active military duty.

GC-205-INFOInformation on Probate Guardianship of the Person*2

Under California law, a parent cannot give custody of their child to another person without a court order. Only a court can order legal and physical custody taken from a parent and given to a nonparent. This can happen in a few different types of cases, including a family law child custody case, a probate guardianship of the person, an adoption case, and a juvenile court case.

If a parent allows an adult relative or friend to take temporary care of their child, some service providers will question the caregiver's authority to make decisions or give permission for the child's activities or treatment. For example, a school may require written proof of the caregiver's right to enroll a child in school, or a health care provider may require a formal, written document that shows parental authorization of the caregiver to consent to the child's medical or dental care. This section discusses several ways to arrange for another adult to exercise parental authority.

a. Caregiver's Authorization Affidavit

The Family Code allows an adult, other than a parent, with whom a child is living to complete and sign a Caregiver's Authorization Affidavit (CAA) and make certain decisions for the child. A completed CAA authorizes a nonrelative caregiver to enroll the child in school and consent to the child's school-related medical care. A relative caregiver who provides additional information on the CAA also has authority to consent to the child's medical and dental care and limited authority over a child's mental health care.

Family Code section 6550 authorizes use of the CAA. Section 6552 describes the required contents of the CAA form. You can find a sample of the form here: www.courts.ca.gov/documents/caregiver.pdf. A paper copy may be available from your superior court clerk's office or self-help center, or the county public law library.

A CAA does not need to be filed in court, but it must be signed by the caregiver under penalty of perjury, which means that a caregiver who lies on the form can be charged with a crime. A CAA does not affect the decision-making rights of the child's parents and does not give the caregiver custody of the child.

- a. The child's parent can veto any of the caregiver's decisions, can take the child to live with them at any time, even if the caregiver does not think that is best for the child, and can end the CAA at any time.

b. Written caregiver agreement (power of attorney)

A parent who has full custody of a child can use a power of attorney (POA) to authorize another adult to take care of their child. A POA is a written document signed by one person giving another person authority to act for the first person.

CAUTION: Many child custody experts discourage parents from using a POA to authorize another adult to take care of a child. Creating a valid POA is difficult. It requires precise language, several formal steps, and can easily lead parents to grant rights different from those they intend. Any parent thinking about using a POA is strongly encouraged to consult an attorney to discuss the pros and cons.

A POA may be useful if a parent knows or believes they will be unavailable for a specific time, such as an active-duty military deployment, or wants to give a caregiver more authority than is allowed by a CAA. With a POA, a parent can give a caregiver all or some of the same powers as a guardian of the person (see ① and ⑪ for discussions of those powers).

If the caregiver agrees in writing, they owe the parent a strict duty to exercise the powers specified in the POA. The agreement is important. Without an agreement, a caregiver has no duty to use the powers the parent has given them in the POA to care for the child. A parent who creates a POA also keeps all powers and duties to care for their child. If a caregiver under a POA does not properly care for the child, the parent is still responsible for doing so.

In addition, the child's parent can veto any of the caregiver's decisions, can take the child to live with them at any time even if the caregiver does not think that is best for the child, and can end the arrangement at any time.

GC-205-INFOInformation on Probate Guardianship of the Person*c. Voluntary Placement Agreement

In some circumstances, parents can also voluntarily give temporary care and custody of their child to a child welfare agency, probation department, or tribe without a court order. This Voluntary Placement Agreement (VPA) must satisfy certain legal conditions; specify the child's legal status and the rights and obligations of the parents, the child, and the agency taking custody of the child; and be documented on Voluntary Placement Agreement—Placement Request (California Department of Social Services form SOC 155, available at <https://cdss.ca.gov/cdssweb/entres/forms/English/soc155.pdf>).

Under a VPA, the child is placed in foster care, which includes placement in the home of a relative or nonrelative extended family member if possible. The child may be eligible for foster care benefits, but the parents may also be required to pay for a portion of the child's care. The agreement usually lasts for 6 months, but it may be extended for an additional 6 months for a total period not to exceed 12 months. Parents can terminate the agreement at any time but, as noted above, if they end it before the child welfare agency agrees, the agency can file a dependency petition for the child in juvenile court.

d. Indian custodianship

An Indian custodianship can provide another option that does not require court involvement if the child is an Indian child, as defined by the federal Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA). An Indian custodian is any Indian person who has legal custody of an Indian child under tribal law or custom or under state law. Although under California law, a nonparent may gain legal custody of a child, including an Indian child, only by court order, the state recognizes legal custody of an Indian child that is valid under tribal law or custom. The child's parent may also create an Indian custodianship without a court order by transferring temporary physical care, custody, and control of the Indian child to an Indian person.

③ Who Can Be Appointed as Guardian?

The court may appoint any adult (a person 18 years of age or older)—including a relative, a friend of the family, or another interested person—as guardian of a child's person. The court may not appoint a parent unless (a) the parent is terminally ill and is appointed as co-guardian with a nonparent or (b) the child is 18–20 years old, has consented, and has requested Special Immigrant Juvenile findings.

④ Can a Parent or Other Person Pick the Person They Want to Be the Guardian?

A parent can nominate a guardian if:

- The other parent(s) also nominate, or consent in writing to the nomination of, the same guardian for that child.
- When the petition for appointment is filed, the other parent(s) are dead or lack legal capacity to consent to the nomination, or the consent of the other parent would not be required for the child's adoption.

The parent may make the nomination in the petition for appointment, at the hearing on the petition, or in a writing signed before or after the petition is filed. The nomination may state that the parent wants the nominee, if appointed, to have the same authority over the child as a parent with legal custody would have and to be able to exercise that authority without court oversight to the same extent as a parent with legal custody would be able to.

The nomination is effective when made, except that a written nomination may provide that the nomination takes effect only when a specified event or events, including the parent's later legal incapacity, detention, or death, has occurred.

Unless a written nomination provides otherwise, the nomination remains in effect even if the parent later dies or is determined to lack legal capacity.

⑤ Who Can Request Appointment of a Guardian?

A relative or other person, including the child if 12 years old or older, can file a petition asking the court to appoint a guardian. The person who files the petition does not need to be the same person as the one who wants to be appointed guardian, but usually is. This form assumes that the same person is filing the petition and asking to be guardian.

GC-205-INFOInformation on Probate Guardianship of the Person*6 Filing the Petition and Giving Notice of the Hearing*a. Petition

Once a person has decided that a child needs a guardian appointed, the first step in the process of establishing guardianship is to complete Petition for Appointment of Guardian of Minor (form GC-210) or Petition for Appointment of Guardian of the Person (form GC-210(P)) and all other required documents. Then file the forms with the clerk of the court in the county where the child lives unless it would be better for the child to file the petition in a different county. A list of statewide forms that need to be filed with a petition for appointment of a guardian of the person is available on Forms You Need to Ask the Court to Appoint a Guardian of the Person (form GC-505). Some courts have additional local forms that need to be filed along with the statewide forms.

NOTE: After a petition is filed, the court may, but is not required to, appoint an attorney to represent the child. Any interested person can ask the court to appoint an attorney for the child. If the child is an Indian child, the child's parent or Indian custodian has a right to an appointed attorney if they cannot afford to hire an attorney. The court is not otherwise authorized to appoint an attorney for a parent or for the petitioner.

The petition needs to ask the court to appoint a guardian of the person or a guardian of both the person and the estate, give the proposed guardian's name and address and the child's name and date of birth, and state that the appointment is "necessary or convenient." The petition must also give the names and addresses of the child's parents and other persons who have specific relationships with the child. If the child is an Indian child, the petition must state that fact and give the name and address of any Indian custodian and the child's tribe. The petition must also tell the court whether there are any adoption, child custody, juvenile court, family law, or other guardianship proceedings affecting the child in progress in California or any other state or country.

The court charges a fee for filing a guardianship petition. If the child or the child's estate cannot afford to pay the fees, the petitioner can ask the court to waive the fee requirement. The court clerk can provide the required fee waiver forms.

b. Notice

Before the court can hold a hearing to decide the petition, the person who filed the petition must give notice of the hearing to specific persons unless the court finds that the petitioner tried diligently and could not give notice to a person or that notice would be against the interests of justice. The notice must include a copy of the petition and a copy of Comparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers (form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO).

Notice must be given to the child if 12 years old or older, the parents, anyone else with legal custody, and anyone nominated to be the guardian by serving them personally or, if that is not possible, by first-class mail with an acknowledgment of receipt requested. For more information about service of notice, see What Is "Proof of Service" in a Guardianship? (form GC-510). Other persons may be given notice personally, by mail, or, if they consent, electronically. If the child is an Indian child, notice must be mailed to any Indian custodian and the child's tribe as required by the Indian Child Welfare Act.

7 Investigationa. Guardianship investigation

Unless it finds a good reason not to, the court will order an investigation before the hearing on the petition to appoint a guardian. A court investigator will contact the proposed guardian, the parents, the child, and any other persons who might know about the child's family and their needs. The investigator will give a report to the court and make a recommendation on what decision the court should make. The report is confidential; the court will make it available only to persons served (see item 6b, above) in the proceeding and their attorneys.

The court or county charges a fee for conducting the guardianship investigation. The court can waive its fee if it would cause a hardship to the child or the child's estate. The county may also waive its fee because of hardship.

b. Child welfare referral and investigation

If the probate court thinks the child has been, or is at risk of being, abused or neglected by a parent, the court may refer the child to the county child welfare agency for an investigation and commencement of

GC-205-INFOInformation on Probate Guardianship of the Person

- b. juvenile court proceedings. If the probate court makes a referral, the guardianship proceedings are paused, but the probate court can make any order necessary to protect the child, including an order appointing a temporary guardian or issuing a temporary restraining order.

If, after three weeks, the agency has not notified the probate court that it has filed a petition to begin proceedings in juvenile court, the probate court or the child's attorney, if the probate court has appointed one, may file a request with the juvenile court to review the agency's decision not to begin juvenile court proceedings and to order the agency to file a petition to begin those proceedings.

If the juvenile court begins proceedings, the probate guardianship proceedings must remain paused. If the juvenile court does not begin proceedings, the probate court can hold a hearing and decide whether to appoint a guardian.

8 Hearing and Standard for Appointment

An interested person may appear and object or respond to the petition in writing at or before the hearing. In addition, an interested person may appear and object or respond orally at the hearing. If no one objects, the court may decide the matter on the verified petition and declarations. If a person objects, then the court will consider evidence, determine any issues, and make appropriate orders.

Based on its determination of the child's best interest, the court may grant the petition, may grant another person's petition, or may find that the child does not need a guardianship and deny all the petitions. The probate court may appoint a guardian for a child when the appointment is "necessary or convenient." This can happen if no parent is willing, available, or suitable to have care, custody, and control of the child. A parent may not be able to care for the child because of the parent's death, incapacity, military obligations, detention, or other reasons. The petitioner must prove to the court that a guardianship is needed.

Appointing a guardian of the person may be necessary or convenient if the court decides that the appointment is in the child's best interest. If a parent objects to the appointment of a guardian of the person, the court must, before appointing a guardian, find that remaining in or returning to parental custody would be detrimental (harmful) to the child.

The longer a child has been living safely with the proposed guardian, the more likely a court is to find that returning to the parents is detrimental to the child or not in the child's best interest.

9 Affirmation and Letters

For appointment of a guardian to be valid, the court must sign the Order Appointing Guardian or Extending Guardianship of the Person (form GC-240). Once the court signs the order, the guardian needs to complete Letters of Guardianship (form GC-250) and take both forms GC-240 and GC-250 to the clerk's office. After affirming that the guardian will perform their duties according to law, the clerk will issue Letters of Guardianship, a legal document that is proof of appointment as the child's guardian. The clerk will keep the original Letters in the case file. The guardian should buy a certified copy from the clerk, make photocopies of the certified copy, and keep the certified copy in a safe place. Showing officials and service providers a copy of the Letters will help the guardian perform their duties, such as enrolling the child in school and obtaining medical care, by verifying their legal authority to act on the child's behalf.

10 Custody and Visitation Rights—Guardians and Parents

A guardian of the person has full legal and physical custody of the child and is responsible for all decisions relating to care and control of the child. The child's parents can no longer make decisions for the child during a guardianship. The rights of the parents are completely suspended—not terminated—as long as the guardianship remains in effect.

If a guardian is appointed, a parent or other person can ask the court to order the guardian to let them visit or spend time with the child. If the court does not make an order, the guardian can decide who visits the child, how often, and for how long.

After the child has been in the guardian's custody for a minimum time—varying from six months to three years depending on the applicable statute—the guardian may petition to terminate parental rights and adopt the child.

11 Guardian's Rights and Dutiesa. Basic rights and duties

A guardian of the person generally has the same rights to legal and physical custody of the child as a parent. If a parent nominates a person as guardian and that person is appointed by the court, the court will grant the guardian, to the extent provided in the nomination, the same rights and duties regarding the child that a custodial parent has unless the court finds good cause to withhold any of them.

In other circumstances, however, the court can order the guardian to get court approval before taking specific actions for which a parent would not need court approval. The order of appointment and the Letters will state whether the court has placed limits on the guardian's authority.

If the child has special needs, a guardian must strive to meet those needs or secure appropriate services. Some children may have physical or learning disabilities. Other children come from abusive homes or have been victims of abuse. Counseling and other services may be necessary to assist a child who has special needs or has had difficult or traumatic life experiences.

A guardian is responsible for providing for food, clothing, shelter, education, and all the medical and dental needs of the child. A guardian must also provide for the safety, protection, and physical and emotional growth of the child. Like a parent, a guardian should maintain close contact with the child's school and physician.

b. Residence

A guardian of the person has the right to decide where the child lives. The child normally lives with the guardian, but the guardian can make other arrangements if they are in the best interest of the child. The guardian should check with the court before placing the child to live with the parents.

A guardian must give proper written notice to the court and other persons of any change of address of either the child or the guardian. A guardian must get permission from the court before changing the child's address to a place outside California.

c. Education

A guardian of the person holds the child's educational rights and is responsible for the child's education. The guardian determines where the child will attend school and helps the child set and attain educational goals. The guardian must assist the child in obtaining services if the child has special educational needs. As the child's advocate in the school system, the guardian should attend teacher conferences and play an active role in the child's education. The guardian of a younger child may want to consider enrolling the child in Head Start or another similar program. The guardian of an older child should consider the child's future educational needs, such as college or a specialized school.

d. Health care

A guardian of the person is responsible for meeting the child's medical, dental, and mental health needs. In most cases, the guardian has the authority to consent to the child's medical treatment. However, surgery may not be performed on a child 14 years old or older except in an emergency unless either (1) both the child and the guardian give consent or (2) a court order specifically authorizes the surgery.

A guardian of the person may not place a child in a mental health treatment facility against the child's wishes. A mental health conservatorship proceeding is required for such an involuntary placement. However, the guardian should arrange counseling and other mental health services for the child if appropriate.

In certain situations, the law allows older and more mature children to consent to their own treatment, including outpatient mental health treatment, medical care related to pregnancy or sexually transmitted diseases, and drug and alcohol treatment.

e. Financial support

Even when the child has a guardian, the parents are still obligated to support the child financially. The guardian may take action to obtain child support. You may contact the local child support agency in your county to collect support from a parent. The child may also be eligible for other public benefits, Social Security benefits, Veterans Administration benefits, Indian child welfare benefits, and other public or private funds. For information about some options, see (12), below.

GC-205-INFOInformation on Probate Guardianship of the Person*f. Consent to changes to child's legal status

A guardian of the person has the authority to consent to (allow) many changes the child may want to make in the transition to independent adulthood. These include:

(1) United States passport application

A guardian has authority to apply for a United States passport for the child.

(2) Driver's license application

A guardian has authority to consent to a child's driver's license application. By giving consent, the guardian becomes liable for any civil damages that result if the minor causes an accident. The law requires that anyone signing the DMV application obtain insurance to cover the minor.

(3) Enlistment in the armed services

The guardian has authority to consent to a minor's enlistment in the armed services. If the minor enters into active duty with the armed services, the minor becomes emancipated under California law, and the guardianship ends.

(4) Marriage

For the child to get married, both the guardian and the court must give permission. If the minor enters a valid marriage, the minor becomes emancipated under California law, and the guardianship ends.

g. Liability for child's misconduct

A guardian, like a parent, is liable for the harm and damage caused by the willful misconduct of a child. There are special rules concerning harm caused by the use of a firearm. If you are concerned about your possible liability, you should consult an attorney.

h. Additional duties

The court may place other conditions on the guardianship or additional duties on the guardian. For example, the court may require the guardian to complete counseling or parenting classes, to obtain specific services for the child, or to follow a scheduled visitation plan between the child and the child's parents or relatives. The guardian must follow all court orders.

12Financial Support and Services for Children in Probate Guardianship

- a. Subject to certain conditions, a child living in the home of a nonrelative probate guardian may receive state Aid to Families with Dependent Children—Foster Care (AFDC-FC) in the same monthly amount as a child placed in the home of a foster parent or resource family. A child living with a relative guardian may receive CalWORKs cash payments based on income.

A youth 18 years of age or older who continues living with a former guardian may continue to receive AFDC-FC or CalWORKs while attending high school or an equivalent full-time educational or vocational training program if expected to graduate before the reach age 19 or, if they have a disability and are attending high school full time, until age 21.

- b. California offers a variety of publicly funded childcare programs that help low-income families, including families of children living with guardians, pay for childcare. These programs include CalWORKs childcare, Alternative Payment program (AP) voucher and contract-based childcare, California State Preschool Program (CSPP), Head Start and Early Head Start, and Transitional Kindergarten. Many of these childcare programs offer special consideration for families caring for children who have been formally or informally placed outside their home.

Each county in California has at least one childcare resource and referral agency that helps families find childcare and figure out whether they qualify for public funding to help pay for it. Guardians can use this website to find their local resource and referral agency: <https://rrnetwork.org/family-services/find-child-care>. This section discusses the main childcare programs in California.

(1) CalWORKs childcare vouchers:

CalWORKs childcare has three stages:

Stage 1: An entitlement for parents or guardians receiving CalWORKs cash assistance or who received cash assistance in the past 24 months and are engaged or want to engage in a Welfare-to-Work activity. Families stay in Stage 1 until they are transferred to Stage 2.

GC-205-INFOInformation on Probate Guardianship of the Person

- (1) Stage 2: An entitlement for parents or guardians who received CalWORKs cash assistance in the past 24 months or a lump-sum diversion payment or services. See (2), below, for eligibility requirements.

Stage 3: Subject to enough funding, families are transferred to Stage 3 after 24 months of receiving cash assistance or if they received a lump-sum diversion payment or services. See (2), below, for eligibility requirements.

Families get continuous CalWORKs childcare for children in their care, including children in formal and informal out-of-home care, for at least 12 months until recertification. Childcare is available until the child is 13 years old or until the child is 21 years old if they have a disability. Qualifying families should not be put on a subsidized childcare waiting list for CalWORKs Stages 1 and 2, as these are entitlement programs. Families can choose a childcare center, family childcare home, or family, friend, or neighbor setting that best meets their needs.*

(2) AP voucher and contract-based childcare (including CalWORKs Stages 2 and 3):

Families qualify for childcare based on income, or if they receive CalWORKs cash assistance, or if they are experiencing homelessness and the parent or guardian has a “need” for child care (for example, if they are working or going to school). Families have continuous eligibility for at least 12 months until recertification, until the child is 13 years old or until the child is 21 years old if the child has a disability. Families can choose a childcare center, family childcare home, or family, friend, or neighbor setting that best meets their needs.*

* Some counties may require guardians to use licensed “family, friend, or neighbor” child care.

(3) California State Preschool Program (CSPP):

AP voucher and contract-based child care eligibility requirements apply, but there are some exceptions. CSPP is for children ages 4–5, and there are no “need-based” requirements for part-day CSPP. CSPPs are located on school campuses and in neighborhoods.

(4) Head Start and Early Head Start:

Families experiencing homelessness or receiving CalWORKs cash assistance or supplemental security income (SSI) qualify regardless of income. Other families must qualify based on income. Head Start offers full services to families with children ages 3–5; Early Head Start is for pregnant women and children under age 3.

(5) Transitional Kindergarten:

No-cost early care and education for 4-year-olds offered on school campuses. Parents and guardians with childcare subsidies may keep their 4-year-old children in non-school settings if they prefer.

c. Other community resources

Each county has agencies and service providers that can help a guardian meet the specific needs of a child who comes from a conflict-filled, troubled, or deprived environment. If the child has special needs, the guardian must strive to meet those needs or secure appropriate services. Some children have physical or learning disabilities. Other children come from abusive homes or have been victims of abuse. A child who has special needs or has had traumatic life experiences may need counseling and other services. The probate court cannot help a guardian get services. To find resources and get referrals, the guardian can check with the court self-help center, the local child welfare agency, or even a support group for guardians. A relative guardian can start by visiting the California Kinship Navigator at www.getvirtualsupport.org/app/.

13 Court Oversight of Guardian

Guardians are subject to the regulation and control of the court in performing their duties. To the extent resources are available, the court will require the guardian to complete and submit annual status reports to the court. Confidential Guardianship Status Report (form GC-251) must be used for this report. The report must provide information about the child’s residence, education, physical and emotional health, other persons the child lives with, the child’s relationship with the parents, and whether the guardianship is still needed. If the guardian, the child, or another interested person wants the court to decide whether the guardian has the authority or duty to take or not take a specific action, they can file a petition. After notice and a hearing, the court will decide and make orders.

GC-205-INFOInformation on Probate Guardianship of the Person*13

In addition, some counties have “court visitors” who track and review guardianships. In these counties, a guardian is expected to cooperate with all requests of the court visitor. And no matter the county, the guardian must always cooperate with the court and court investigators.

14 Removal and Replacement of Guardian

After notice and a hearing on a petition filed by the child, a relative or friend of the child, or any other interested person, the probate court may remove a guardian for specific reasons or when it is in the child’s best interest. The court may also suspend the powers of the guardian until it can hold a hearing on the petition for removal. A guardian may also file a petition to resign, and, if the court determines after a hearing that the resignation appears proper, the court must allow it.

If there is a vacancy for any reason, the court may appoint a successor guardian after notice and a hearing as in the case of the original appointment.

15 Termination of Guardianship

A guardianship of the person automatically terminates (ends) when the child reaches age 18 or one of the following events occurs before the child reaches age 18:

- The child is adopted;
- The child is emancipated by getting married, enlisting in the military, or court order; or
- The child dies.

If none of these events has occurred, the child, a parent, or the guardian may petition the court for termination of guardianship before the child reaches age 18. To grant the petition, the court must find that termination is in the child’s best interest.

The longer a child has been living safely with the guardian, the more difficult it will be to show that ending the guardianship is in the child’s best interest. In fact, several statutes authorize a guardian to file a petition to terminate parental rights in conjunction with a request to adopt the child.

Under the Probate Code, for example, if a child, other than an Indian child, has lived with a probate guardian for at least two years and the court has found that adoption by the guardian would be in the child’s best interest, a proceeding to terminate parental rights may be brought in the guardianship proceeding, in an adoption proceeding, or in a separate action. The rights and procedures in Family Code sections 7800–7895, including a parent’s right to notice and counsel, apply to this proceeding. (Family Code section 8802 provides different waiting periods and procedures depending on the situation.)

If the guardianship is terminated while the child is still a minor, and no other custodial arrangement is ordered, the child returns to parental custody.

If the child, before reaching age 18, has requested or consented to the extension of the guardianship to allow time to complete a federal application for Special Immigrant Juvenile status, the court may extend the guardianship past the youth’s 18th birthday, but not past the youth’s 21st birthday.

16 Legal Advice and Resources

As noted on page 1, prospective guardians and parents are strongly encouraged to talk with an attorney. The attorney can advise them about the legal effect of a guardianship on parental rights, a guardian’s rights and responsibilities, the limits of a guardian’s authority, the rights of the child, and the court processes for appointing, overseeing, modifying, and terminating a guardianship.

Court staff cannot give legal advice. The court’s self-help center can, however, give legal information to a person who is not represented by an attorney and help the person fill out any forms they need to file. Information and answers can also be found by contacting local community resources, researching private publications, or visiting the county public law library.

GC-206-INFO Information on Probate Guardianship of the Estate

This form is about acting as a guardian of the estate to manage a child's money or other property and preserving it until the child reaches 18 years of age.

The form explains:

- What is a guardian of the estate and who can be appointed as one;
- Who can nominate a guardian of the estate, and how;
- The court process for appointment of a guardian of the estate;
- The powers, duties, and liabilities of a guardian of the estate;
- The court's authority to oversee the guardian of the estate in the performance of the guardian's duties; and
- The procedures for removing and replacing a guardian or terminating a guardianship of the estate.

For information about probate guardianship of the person, read Judicial Council form GC-205-INFO. For information about juvenile court guardianship, read form JV-350-INFO. For a comparison of guardianship with juvenile court placement with a relative caregiver or foster (resource) family, read form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO.

Before asking a court to appoint a guardian, a parent, potential guardian, or other benefactor may find it useful to think about these questions:

- Does the child really need a guardianship?
- What alternatives are available?
- Would any of the alternatives be better for the child?
- Do the parents agree to the guardianship?
- If the parents don't agree, is there enough evidence to show that the child needs a guardian?
- Do you need legal advice or assistance?

CAUTION: This form is not a substitute for legal advice. Only a licensed attorney can give advice about how the law applies to a specific situation. 1 What is a guardian of the estate?

A guardian of the estate is a person appointed by the probate court to take control of a child's money or other property, manage that property, and preserve it for the child until the child reaches the age of 18 and can take control of the property for themselves. The court takes appointment of a guardian of the estate very seriously, and the law requires the guardian to collect and make an inventory and appraisal of the property, keep accurate financial records, and file regular financial accountings with the court.

Consulting an attorney for legal advice in managing the estate is highly recommended.

2 Are there alternatives to guardianship?

Yes. The law allows a parent or any other person from whom the child receives property to make financial arrangements for the child's property. For example, money received by a child may be deposited in an account accessible only in specified circumstances or by court order until the child reaches 18 years of age. This and other protective measures can be used without the appointment of a guardian of the estate. These financial arrangements can be complicated; consulting with an attorney before choosing one over another is highly encouraged.

Note: Some financial institutions, insurance companies, and courts require the appointment of a guardian of the estate before they will release funds to a person acting on behalf of a minor child.

3 Who can be appointed as guardian?

To become the court-appointed guardian of a child's estate, you must:

- Be an adult (18 years old or older); and
- Show the court that your appointment would be in the best interest of the child, considering both:
 - Your ability to manage and preserve the child's estate (money and property); and
 - Your concern for and interest in the welfare of the child.

GC-206-INFO Information on Probate Guardianship of the Estate

4 Can a parent or other person name a person they want to be appointed as guardian?

Yes. A parent can nominate a guardian of the estate if:

- The other parent(s) nominate or consent in writing to the nomination of the same guardian for the same child; or
- At the time the petition for appointment is filed, either the other parent(s) are dead or lack legal capacity to consent, or the consent of the other parent(s) would not be required for adoption of the child.

In addition, any person from whom, or by designation of whom, a minor child receives property may nominate a guardian of that property.

The nomination must be made in the petition for appointment of the guardian, at the hearing on the petition, or in a writing signed either before or after the petition is filed.

A nomination is valid when made, except that a written nomination may specify that it is to take effect only if one or more events, such as the incapacity, detention, or death of the person making the nomination, occur.

Unless a written nomination provides expressly otherwise, a nomination remains effective even if the person making the nomination dies or becomes legally incapacitated.

5 Who can file a petition for appointment of a guardian of the estate?

A relative or other person, or the child if 12 years of age or older, may file a petition for appointment of a guardian in probate court using Petition for Appointment of Guardian of Minor (form GC-210) in probate court.

THE APPOINTMENT PROCESS

6 Filing the petition

Once a person has decided that a child needs a guardian, the first step in the process is to complete Petition for Appointment of Guardian of Minor (form GC-210) and all other required documents. Then, file the forms with the clerk of the court in the county where the child lives unless it would be better for the child to file in a different county.

Some courts have additional local forms that need to be filed along with the statewide forms.

The petition needs to ask the court to appoint a guardian of the estate or a guardian of both the person and the estate; give the proposed guardian's name and address and the child's name and date of birth; and state that the appointment is necessary or convenient. The petition must also give the names and addresses of the child's parents and other persons who have specific relationships with the child. If the child is an Indian child, the petition must state that fact and give the name and address of any Indian custodian and the child's tribe. The petition must also tell the court whether there are any adoption, child custody, juvenile court, family law, or other guardianship proceedings affecting the child in progress in California or any other state or country.

The court charges a fee for filing a guardianship petition. If the child or the child's estate cannot afford to pay the fees, the petitioner may request that the court waive the fee requirement. The court clerk can provide the required fee waiver forms.

7 Notice of the hearing

Before the court can hold a hearing to decide the petition, the person who filed the petition must give notice of the hearing to specific persons unless the court finds that the petitioner tried diligently and couldn't give notice to a person or that notice would be against the interests of justice. The notice must include a copy of the petition and a copy of Comparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers (form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO).

Notice must be given to the child if 12 years old or older, the parents, anyone else with legal custody, and anyone nominated to be the guardian by serving them personally or, if that's not possible, by first-class mail with an acknowledgment of receipt requested. For more information about service of notice, see What Is "Proof of Service" in a Guardianship? (form GC-510). Other persons may be given notice personally, by mail, or, if they consent, electronically. If the child is an Indian child, notice must be mailed to any Indian custodian and the child's tribe as required by the Indian Child Welfare Act.

GC-206-INFO Information on Probate Guardianship of the Estate8 Investigation

Unless it finds a good reason not to, the court will order an investigation before the hearing on the petition to appoint a guardian. The court investigator will contact the proposed guardian, the child, and any other persons who might know about the child's family and their needs. The investigator will give a report to the court and make a recommendation on what decision the court should make.

The court or county charges a fee for conducting the guardianship investigation. The court can waive its fee if it would cause a hardship to the child or the child's estate. The county can also waive its fee because of hardship.

If someone objects to the appointment of a guardian or to the petitioner's appointment as guardian at or before the hearing, the court may decide it needs to hold a trial. Based on its determination of the child's best interest, the court may grant the petition, may grant another person's petition, or may find that the child doesn't need a guardianship and deny all the petitions.

If the probate court thinks the child has been, or is at risk of being, abused or neglected by a parent, the court may refer the child to the county child welfare agency for an investigation and commencement of juvenile court proceedings. If the probate court makes a referral, the guardianship proceedings are paused, but the probate court can make any order necessary to protect the child, including an order appointing a temporary guardian or issuing a temporary restraining order.

If, after three weeks, the agency has not notified the probate court that it has filed a petition to begin proceedings in juvenile court, the probate court or the child's attorney, if the probate court has appointed one, may file a request with the juvenile court to review the agency's decision not to begin juvenile court proceedings and to order the agency to file a petition to begin those proceedings.

If the juvenile court begins proceedings, the guardianship proceedings must remain paused. If the juvenile court does not begin proceedings, the probate court can hold a hearing and decide whether to appoint a guardian.

9 Hearing and standard for appointment

An interested person may appear and object or respond to the petition in writing at or before the hearing. In addition, an interested person may appear and object or respond orally at the hearing. If no one objects, the court may decide the matter on the verified petition and declarations. If a person objects, then the court will consider evidence, determine any issues, and make appropriate orders.

Based on its determination of the child's best interest, the court may grant the petition, may grant another person's petition, or may find that the child doesn't need a guardianship and deny all the petitions. The probate court may appoint a guardian for a child when the appointment is necessary or convenient. The petitioner must prove to the court that a guardianship is needed.

The court must appoint the person nominated as guardian of the estate unless the court determines that the nominee is not suitable. Subject to the preference for a nominee, the court will consider the best interest of the child, taking into account the proposed guardian's ability to manage and preserve the estate property and their concern for and interest in the welfare of the child. If the child is old enough to form an intelligent preference about whom should be appointed, the court must also consider that preference.

10 Oath, letters, and bond

For an appointment as guardian to be valid, the court must sign the Order Appointing Guardian or Extending Guardianship of the Person (form GC-240). The guardian then needs to complete Letters of Guardianship (form GC-250) and take both forms to the clerk's office. After the guardian affirms that they will perform their duties according to law and posts the court-ordered bond, the clerk will issue Letters of Guardianship as proof of appointment as guardian of the child's estate. The clerk will keep the original Letters in the case file. The guardian should buy a certified copy from the clerk, make copies of it for use, and keep the certified copy in a safe place. Showing the Letters to banks and other financial institutions will help the guardian perform duties, such as opening accounts or making investments, by verifying the legal authority to act on the child's behalf.

GC-206-INFO Information on Probate Guardianship of the Estate

MANAGING THE ESTATE—POWERS AND DUTIES

11 Prudent investments

As guardian of the estate, you must manage the child's money and property with the care of a prudent person dealing with someone else's property. This means that you must be cautious and may not make speculative or risky investments.

12 Separation of estate money and property

As guardian of the estate, you must keep the money and property of the child's estate separate from everyone else's, including your own. When you open a bank account for the estate, the account name must indicate that it is a guardianship account and not your personal account.

You should use the child's Social Security number when opening estate accounts. You should never deposit estate funds in your personal account or otherwise mix them with your own funds or anyone else's funds, even for brief periods.

Securities in the estate must be held in a name that shows that they are estate property and not your personal property.

13 Interest-bearing accounts and other investments

Except for checking accounts intended for ordinary expenses, you should place estate funds in interest-bearing accounts. You may deposit estate funds in insured accounts in federally insured financial institutions, but you should not put more than $250,000 in any single institution. You should consult with an attorney before making other kinds of investments.

14 Blocked accounts

A blocked account is a type of account with a financial institution in which money or securities are placed. No person may withdraw funds from a blocked account without the court's permission.

Depending on the amount and character of the child's property, the guardian may choose or the court may require that estate money or other assets be placed in a blocked account. As guardian of the estate, you must follow the directions of the court and the procedures required to deposit funds in this type of account. The use of a blocked account is a safeguard and may save the estate the cost of a bond.

15 Other restrictions

Other restrictions on your authority to deal with estate assets exist. Without a prior court order, you may not pay fees to yourself or your attorney. You may not make a gift of estate assets to anyone. You may not borrow money from the estate. You may not use estate funds to purchase real property without prior court order.

If you spend estate funds without court permission, the court may compel you to reimburse the estate from your own funds and remove you as guardian. You should consult with an attorney concerning the legal requirements relating to sales, leases, mortgages, and investment of estate property.

If the child whose estate you are managing has a living parent, or if that child receives assets or is entitled to support from another source, you must obtain court approval before using guardianship assets for the child's support, maintenance, or education. You must file a petition or request approval in the original petition and set forth exceptional circumstances that justify any use of guardianship assets for the child's support. The court ordinarily will grant such a petition for only a limited period of time, usually not more than one year, and only for specific and limited purposes.

16 Inventory and appraisal of estate property

You must locate, take possession of, and protect the child's income and property that will be part of the estate. You must change the ownership of all assets into the guardianship estate's name. For real estate, you should record a copy of your Letters of Guardianship with the county recorder in each county where the child owns real property.

Next, you must arrange to have a designated probate referee determine the value of the estate property unless this requirement is waived by the court. You, not the referee, must determine the value of certain "cash items." An attorney can advise you on this.

After you have gathered all the child's money and property and determined how much it is worth, you must complete and file an Inventory and Appraisal with the court within 90 days of appointment using forms GC-040 and GC-041. The court may order you to return 90 days after your appointment to ensure that you properly file the inventory and appraisal.

GC-206-INFO Information on Probate Guardianship of the Estate

17 Insurance

You should make sure that the property of the estate and any risks to it are protected by appropriate and sufficient insurance. You should maintain the insurance coverage throughout the entire period of the guardianship or until the insured property is sold.

18 Records and accounts

You must keep complete, accurate records of each financial transaction affecting the estate. The checkbook for the guardianship checking account is an indispensable tool for keeping records of income and expenditures. You should also keep receipts for all purchases.

Record keeping is critical because you will have to prepare periodic accountings of all money and property you have received, what you have spent, the date of each transaction, and its purpose. You will also have to describe in detail the money and property remaining after you have paid the estate's expenses.

Beginning one year after initial appointment as guardian of the estate and then at least every two years after that, you must file an accounting for the previous period with a petition asking the court to review and approve the accounting. The court may ask that you explain or justify some or all expenses charged to the estate. You should have receipts, account statements, and other related documents available for inspection in case the court requests them.

If you do not file your accounting as required, the court will order you to do so. You may be removed as guardian if you don't file an accounting. If you know you are going to need extra time to prepare and file an accounting, be sure to ask the court for an extension ahead of the deadline.

You must comply with all state and local rules when filing your accounting. The Probate Code requires that all accounts be submitted on Judicial Council forms. There is a set of forms for standard accounts; the numbers of all these forms start with GC-400. There is also a set of forms for simplified accounts; the numbers of these forms start with GC-405.

California Rules of Court, rule 7.575 explains the accounting process and the forms. You should also check local rules for any special local requirements.

An attorney can advise you and help you prepare the inventory, accountings, and petitions. If you have any questions, you should consult with an attorney.

FURTHER COURT PROCEEDINGS

19 Court oversight

The guardian is subject to the regulation and control of the court in performing their duties. In addition to reviewing periodic accountings, the court may order you to enter into specific transactions or prohibit transactions for the benefit of the child. The guardian, the child, or any interested person can ask the court for such an order. After notice and a hearing, the court will make orders in the best interest of the child.

20 Removal and replacement of guardian

After notice and a hearing on a petition filed by the child, a relative or friend of the child, or any other interested person, the probate court may remove a guardian for specific reasons or when it is in the child's best interest. The court may also suspend the powers of the guardian until it can hold a hearing on the petition for removal. A guardian may also file a petition to resign, and the court must allow the resignation if it appears proper.

If for any reason there is a vacancy, the court may appoint a successor guardian after notice and a hearing as in the case of the original appointment.

21 Termination of guardianship

A guardianship of the estate terminates when the child reaches age 18 or if the child dies before age 18, subject to the duty to keep and preserve the estate until it is delivered to the child's personal representative and to settle the estate's accounts. The court may also terminate the guardianship if it decides that is in the child's best interest. At termination, the guardian must distribute the estate property and file a final account and petition for discharge with the court.

Notice of the hearing on a petition for appointment of a probate guardian must include a copy of this form.

A California court can order care, custody, and control of a child transferred from a parent to another caregiver in a variety of cases. This form compares juvenile court and probate guardianship cases. In juvenile court, a foster parent, sometimes called a resource family, is a temporary caregiver. A guardian is a “permanent” caregiver. A probate court can also appoint a guardian, using different procedures and standards. The three charts in this form compare the rights and duties, available services and supports, and court processes in juvenile court and probate guardianship cases.

Starting a case in probate court or juvenile court

A probate guardianship case begins when a private person files a petition to appoint a guardian. A juvenile dependency case begins only if the child welfare agency files a petition. However, a private person can ask the agency to file a petition. If the agency does not, that person can ask the juvenile court to order the agency to file a petition. Even if the agency files a petition, the juvenile court can deny it if the child doesn’t meet the legal standard. If the probate court thinks a juvenile dependency case might be appropriate after a guardianship case begins but before a guardian is appointed, the court can ask the agency to file a dependency petition and, if the agency does not, can ask the juvenile court to order the agency to file a petition.

Families can also arrange for care and a place to live for a child without going to court. These arrangements are usually temporary and often involve documents such as a Caregiver’s Authorization Affidavit (see www.courts.ca.gov/documents/caregiver.pdf) or a Voluntary Placement Agreement with a child welfare agency (see www.cdss.ca.gov/cdssweb/entres/forms/english/soc155.pdf). Information on the Probate Guardianship of the Person (form GC-205-INFO) gives information about these arrangements.

Foster parents/resource families

If a juvenile court finds that a child cannot continue living safely at home, the court will order the child placed out of the home in the care and custody of the county child welfare agency (sometimes called child protective services or CPS). The agency can then place the child in the home of an approved foster parent. If a foster parent has been approved through the resource family approval (RFA) process, the foster parent is sometimes called a resource family, so this form uses the term “foster parent/resource family.” Approval as a foster parent/resource family is difficult and takes time. Some families will not be approved because they do not meet the strict standards.

Guardians

A guardian is an adult appointed by either the probate court or the juvenile court to take long-term care, custody, and control of a child when the child’s parents are unavailable or unable to care for the child. A relative or nonrelative can be appointed as guardian if the court finds the appointment is in the child’s best interest. In general, probate guardians have the same rights and duties as juvenile court guardians. However, probate guardians have access to different, and often fewer, financial supports, services, and resources.

1. The Rights and Duties of Different Types of Caregivers

Foster Parents/Resource Families	Guardians (Probate and Juvenile Court)
Caregiver's Fundamental Responsibilities and General Duties
A foster parent/resource family works with child welfare agency social workers to provide care, supervision, and housing for the child. A foster parent/resource family receives foster care funds for the child's needs, such as food and clothing, and works with the social worker to make sure the child receives available resources and services if the child has special needs.	A guardian, whether appointed by a probate court or juvenile court, has the same general rights and duties toward the child as a parent. In other words, a guardian has care, custody, and control of the child. However, the court that appoints the guardian can order the guardian to do or not to do certain things. The guardian is responsible for providing for food, clothing, shelter, education, and all the medical and dental needs of the child. The guardian must provide for the safety, protection, and physical and emotional growth of the child. Like a parent, a guardian should maintain close contact with the child's school and doctor. If the child has special needs, the guardian must strive to meet those needs and secure appropriate services. Some children may have physical or learning disabilities. Other children come from abusive homes or have been victims of abuse. Counseling and other services may be necessary to help these children.
Custody and Visitation
Physical custody of the child—that is, the right to decide where the child lives—is with the child welfare agency unless the court orders a specific placement. Parents retain legal custody subject to limitations set by the court. A foster parent/resource family must make sure the child takes part in visits and phone calls with parents and others authorized by the social worker or ordered by the court. A foster parent/resource family cannot, on their own, ask the court to terminate parental rights and adopt the child. They can, however, tell the social worker they would like to adopt the child.	The guardian has legal and physical custody of the child. Parents can no longer make decisions for the child while there is a guardianship. The rights of the parents are completely suspended—but not terminated—as long as the guardianship remains in effect. If a guardian is appointed, a parent or other person can ask the court to order the guardian to let them visit or spend time with the child. (In juvenile court, the court must allow the parent to visit the child unless it would be detrimental to the child.) If the court does not make an order, the guardian can decide who visits the child. After the child has been in the guardian's custody for a minimum time, varying from six months to three years depending on the circumstances, the guardian may petition to terminate parental rights and adopt the child.
Residence
The social worker and the court decide who the child will live with.	A guardian decides where the child lives. The child normally will live with the guardian, but the guardian can make other arrangements if they are in the best interest of the child. A guardian must give proper notice to the court and others of any address change of either the child or the guardian. A guardian must get court permission before changing the child's residence to a place outside California.

GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFOComparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers

Foster Parents/Resource Families	Guardians (Probate and Juvenile Court)
Health Care
The social worker arranges care and treatment for the child's medical, dental, and mental health needs, but the foster parent/resource family might be responsible for scheduling and transporting the child to these appointments. Parents keep their rights to make health-care decisions for the child except in an emergency or if the court orders otherwise.	The guardian must make sure that the child's health-care needs are met. In most cases, the guardian has the authority to consent to the child's medical treatment. However, if the child is 14 years of age or older, surgery may not be performed on the child unless (1) both the child and the guardian consent, (2) a court order specifically authorizes the surgery, or (3) an emergency exists. A guardian may not place a child in a mental health treatment facility against the child's wishes. A separate legal process is required for such a placement. However, the guardian must obtain any counseling or other necessary mental health services needed by the child. The law also allows children to consent to certain types of treatment—including outpatient mental health treatment, medical care related to pregnancy or sexually transmitted diseases, and drug or alcohol treatment—without the consent of a parent or guardian.
Education
When a child is in foster care, parents retain the rights to make educational and developmental-services decisions for the child unless the court limits these rights and assigns them to another person. If the court limits parental rights to make educational and developmental-services decisions, it may assign those rights to a foster parent/resource family. Otherwise, a foster parent/resource family cannot make those decisions or attend Individualized Education Program (IEP) meetings for the child unless invited by the person holding educational rights. A foster parent/resource family is responsible for making sure that the child attends school. If the child is receiving special education services, the foster parent/resource family works with the school district and service providers to ensure that the child receives all the services and supports in the child's IEP. (See page 8 for information about financial support for children with special needs.)	A guardian is responsible for the child's education and holds the child's educational and developmental-services decisionmaking rights, unless the court appoints someone else to hold them. If a child needs special education and related services, the guardian must advocate for the child with the school district and make the appropriate arrangements. (See page 8 for information about financial support for children with special needs.)

GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFOComparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers

Foster Parents/Resource Families	Guardians (Probate and Juvenile Court)
Consent to Changes to the Child's Status
A foster parent/resource family cannot consent to the child's marriage, military enlistment, or driver's license application, but the juvenile court can consent.	A guardian and the court must give permission for a minor child to get married. A guardian may consent to a minor child's enlistment in the armed services or application for a driver's license. A guardian may apply for a passport for a minor child.
Financial Obligations
A foster parent/resource family receives foster care funds to pay for the child's needs.	The guardian is responsible for the day-to-day financial support of the child, even though the parents are still obligated to support the child. The guardian may take legal action or contact the local child support agency to obtain child support from a parent. The child may also be eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children—Foster Care (AFDC-FC), Social Security benefits, Veterans Administration benefits, Indian child welfare benefits, and support from other public or private sources. (See Chart 2.)
Legal Liability
Except in limited circumstances, a foster parent/resource family is immune from liability in a civil action to recover damages for injury, death, or loss to person or property caused by an act or omission of a child or nonminor dependent while the child or nonminor dependent is placed in the home of the foster parent/resource family. (See Welfare and Institutions Code section 362.06(b)(2).)	A guardian, like a parent, is liable for the harm and damage caused by the willful misconduct of a child. (See Civil Code, § 1714.1(a).) There is usually a limit on how much a guardian may be required to pay. There are special rules concerning harm caused by the use of a firearm.
If you are concerned about your liability for a child's conduct, you should contact an attorney.
Other Rights or Duties
Foster parents/resource families are entitled to notice of statutory review hearings and permanency hearings. They may attend the hearings and give information about the child to the court. Caregivers who wish to submit information in writing may use Caregiver Information Form (form JV-290). Foster parents/resource families must be included in a child's Child and Family Team (CFT) and must be notified of every CFT meeting. They may be invited to participate in or support a child's services, such as counseling or other types of treatment.	The court may require the guardian to perform other duties, such as completing a parenting class or attend counseling sessions with the child. The guardian must follow all court orders and cooperate with court investigators. Court visitors and status reports: Some counties have programs in which "court visitors" track and review guardianships. If your county has such a program, you will be expected to cooperate with all the court visitor's requests. In addition, a guardian may have to fill out and file status reports.

2. The Services and Financial Support Available to Different Types of Caregivers

The payment amounts discussed below are updated annually based on the cost of living. Payments are made retroactively. For example, a child placed with a caregiver in January would receive funds for the month of January in February. The payment amounts given below are in effect from July 1, 2022, to June 30, 2023. For updated amounts, see www.cdss.ca.gov/inforesources/letters-regulations/letters-and-notice/all-county-letters.

Foster Parent/Resource Family	Probate Guardian	Juvenile Court Guardian
Cash Payments per Child—Relatives
Before a relative is approved as a foster parent/resource family, Emergency Caregiver (EC) funding is available at the foster care basic rate starting from the date the child is placed with the relative. EC funding is limited to the foster care basic rate, $1,129 per month. After approval, the foster parent/resource family will receive foster care payments through federal Aid for Families with Dependent Children—Foster Care (AFDC-FC). These payments are set at the foster care basic rate, $1,129 per month. There are different eligibility requirements for federal and state AFDC-FC. The child welfare agency will determine eligibility. For a child in relative foster care who is not eligible for federal AFDC-FC or EC, Approved Relative Caregiver (ARC) payments are available. These payments are set at the foster care basic rate, $1,129 per month. California foster youth who are placed with a relative out of state are eligible for funds at the foster care rate in the state where they are placed.	Child-only California Work Opportunity and Responsibility to Kids Program (CalWORKs) payments are available for a child living with a relative guardian. The income of the family is considered in calculating the amount of cash aid the family receives. Payments are approximately one-half of the foster care basic rate paid to nonrelatives. A relative caregiver can receive this assistance before appointment as guardian if the child lives with the relative. Payments can drop below one-half of the foster care basic rate if there are multiple children in the home. CalWORKs Maximum Aid Payment (MAP) levels depend on variables such as geographic region and exempt/nonexempt status and are hard to calculate. From October 1, 2022, to September 30, 2024, MAP amounts for one child in California are expected to range from $669 to $779 per month. A social worker who specializes in benefits would be the best person to ask about MAP levels for cash aid. Payments end when the child turns 18 years old, but it is possible to extend payments to age 19 if the child is completing high school.	Kinship Guardianship Assistance Payment (Kin-GAP) payments are available to children who have lived with an approved relative guardian for at least six months. Kin-GAP families sign a written agreement with the county. The Kin-GAP payments begin once the agreement is signed and the juvenile court terminates the dependency case. Payments cannot exceed the amount the child was receiving in foster care, but they can include the foster care basic rate and any special needs supplements the child was receiving. The income of the child's parents, Kin-GAP guardian, or any other relative living in the household is not used to determine the child's Kin-GAP eligibility. Kin-GAP payments generally end when a child turns 18 but can continue until age 19 if the child is completing high school or until age 21 if the Kin-GAP payments started after the child turned 16 or if the child has an ongoing disability. If the court keeps the juvenile case open after appointing a relative guardian, the guardian can receive Approved Relative Caregiver (ARC) or foster care payments instead of Kin-GAP. In very rare situations, a relative guardian may not qualify for Kin-GAP, foster care, or ARC payments, but may still qualify for California Work Opportunity and Responsibility to Kids Program (CalWORKs) payments.

Cash Payments per Child—Nonrelatives
Before approval as a resource family, a nonrelative foster parent/resource family may receive Emergency Caregiver (EC) funding at the foster care basic rate, $1,129 per month, starting from the date the child is placed with the nonrelative. After approval, the foster parent/resource family will receive foster care payments. Nonrelative resource families receive Aid to Families with Dependent Children—Foster Care (AFDC-FC) funds. There are federal and state AFDC-FC funding programs, and they have different eligibility requirements. The foster care basic rate is $1,129 per month.	No cash payments are available until a guardian is appointed and the child begins living with the guardian. An eligible child living with a nonrelative probate guardian may receive state Aid to Families with Dependent Children—Foster Care (AFDC-FC) payments equivalent to the foster care basic rate, $1,129 per month, after the court establishes a temporary guardianship. Payments usually end when the child turns 18 years old but may continue to age 19 if the child is completing high school or to age 21 if the child has a disability.	State Aid to Families with Dependent Children—Foster Care (AFDC-FC) is available to children who live with a nonrelative guardian. This rate may change depending on where you live, so before you move, ask if there will be a rate change. The foster care basic rate is $1,129 per month. A youth who continues living with a former nonrelative guardian after reaching age 18 can continue to receive AFDC-FC payments until they turn 21 if they meet certain participation criteria related to work, school, or activities designed to remove barriers to employment.
Medical Insurance
Children who qualify for the cash payments described above are also eligible for full-scope Medi-Cal services. Youth are eligible for Former Foster Youth Medi-Cal up to age 26.	A child who qualifies for CalWORKs (relative guardian) or AFDC-FC (nonrelative guardian) payments is eligible for Medi-Cal. After turning 18, a youth is not eligible for Former Foster Youth Medi-Cal but may qualify for Medi-Cal based on income.	Children who qualify for Kin-GAP, ARC, or CalWORKs payments also receive full-scope Medi-Cal health care services.
Extended Foster Care and Other Transition Age Supports
Extended Foster Care benefits are available for youth living in foster care when they turn 18. These nonminor dependents can receive ongoing case management and EFC payments until they turn 21; they may also qualify for transitional housing and independent living placements.	A youth who turns 18 in a probate guardianship is not eligible for Extended Foster Care, Independent Living Program services, or Chafee Education and Training Vouchers.	Extended Foster Care benefits are not available for a youth who is under juvenile court guardianship when the youth turns 18 years old. But if the former guardian dies or no longer provides ongoing support to the youth, the youth can ask the juvenile court to open the dependency case again. If the court does, the youth may qualify for EFC payments if they complete the requirements.

GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFOComparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers*3. How a Guardian Is Appointed and What Happens Afterward

STAGE	Probate Guardian	Juvenile Court Guardian
Petition	A person who wants to be appointed guardian of a child must file a petition with the probate court. The child's parent or the child, if at least 12 years old, can also file the petition. (See Information on Probate Guardianship of the Person (form GC-205-INFO).)	To start a juvenile court case, a county social worker or prosecuting attorney must file a petition in juvenile court.
Investigation	Before the court decides to appoint a guardian, an investigation is usually required. If the proposed guardian is a relative, a court investigator conducts the investigation. If the proposed guardian is not a relative, a county social worker conducts the investigation. The investigator prepares a report, makes a recommendation whether the petition should be granted, and files the report with the court, which makes it available to all persons served in the proceeding and their attorneys. The parent and the proposed guardian are responsible for the costs of the investigation unless payment would be a hardship.	The social worker or probation officer conducts an investigation to determine, among other things, whether to detain the child temporarily out of the parent's home and whether to recommend that the court remove the child from the parent's home. A person who wants to serve as guardian of a child in juvenile court should contact the child's social worker or probation officer early in the case to ask if the child can live with them.
Appointment of Counsel	The probate court has the authority to appoint an attorney to represent the child. The court may also appoint an attorney for the Indian custodian or biological parent of an Indian child but does not otherwise have the authority to appoint counsel for a parent.	In a dependency case, the juvenile court must appoint counsel for the child unless it finds that the child would not benefit from the appointment. And in almost every case, the court appoints counsel for a parent who cannot afford counsel. In a juvenile justice case, the court must appoint counsel for the child if the child appears without counsel. The court may also appoint separate counsel for a parent in specific circumstances.
Hearing	The court holds a hearing to decide whether to appoint a guardian. A parent or other interested person may go to the hearing and object, orally or in writing, to the appointment of a guardian for the child or to the appointment of the person proposed as guardian in the petition. The court will decide whether appointing a guardian is necessary and in the child's best interest.	The court holds a hearing to decide if the petition is true and whether to order the child placed out of the parent's home. If it decides the child cannot live safely at home, the court will not appoint a guardian right away unless the parents and child agree. Instead, it will order the child placed first with a foster parent/resource family and order the social worker or probation officer to provide reunification services (see below).
Reunification Services	The probate court cannot order family reunification services but can order supportive services for the guardian and child, if needed.	The juvenile court can order services to help the parents and child reunify (live together safely) before it chooses a permanent plan (e.g., guardianship) but not afterward.

GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFOComparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers

STAGE	Probate Guardian	Juvenile Court Guardian
Decision to Appoint a Guardian	If the probate court finds that appointment of a guardian is necessary and in the child's best interest, the court may appoint a guardian.	The juvenile court may appoint a guardian at different times during the case, after making the required findings. In a dependency case, if the court finds that the petition is true, it can appoint a guardian for the child at the dispositional hearing, if the parents and the child agree and the court finds that appointing the guardian is in the child's best interest. In a juvenile justice case, the court can appoint a guardian for the child at any time after the dispositional hearing if the probation officer recommends it or the child's attorney requests it. In either a dependency or juvenile justice case, if the court has ordered out-of-home placement and denied or terminated reunification services, the court can appoint a guardian as the child's permanent plan at a separate hearing. The court decides whom to appoint as guardian. The person who has been caring for the child is almost always appointed. The procedures for appointing a guardian are generally the same in dependency and juvenile justice, but there are some differences. For more information, see Information on Juvenile Court Guardianship (form JV-350-INFO), and check with the social worker or probation officer.
Court Oversight	After a guardian is appointed, there are no regular court hearings, although the probate court has the authority to regulate and control the guardian's actions. The court can order the guardian to allow visitation of the child with parents or other persons. The court may order the guardian to submit an annual status report to the court and, depending on the county, the court may hold a hearing. (See Information on Probate Guardianship of the Person (form GC-205-INFO).) On receipt of a request, the court may order the guardian to take action. The court may also order the guardian to appear and explain actions they have taken; the court may approve or rescind those actions.	The juvenile court keeps jurisdiction over the guardianship. When the court appoints a guardian, it must also issue parental visitation orders unless it finds that visitation would be detrimental to the child. In many cases after the guardianship is granted, especially if the guardian is related to the child, the court will terminate dependency or juvenile justice jurisdiction and will not hold any more regularly scheduled court hearings. In other cases, the court will grant the guardianship, keep dependency or juvenile justice jurisdiction, and continue to hold regular review hearings. After it terminates juvenile jurisdiction, the juvenile court keeps jurisdiction over the guardianship and can give orders to the guardian. Any request to change a court order, including a visitation order, or to end the guardianship must be filed in the juvenile court using Request to Change Court Order (form JV-180).

STAGE	Probate Guardian	Juvenile Court Guardian
Role of Social Worker or Probation Officer	A county social worker is responsible for screening any proposed guardian and for conducting the guardianship investigation if the proposed guardian is not related to the child. If the probate court thinks a child who is the subject of a guardianship petition may be abused or neglected, it can ask a social worker to investigate and file a dependency petition in the juvenile court before it decides whether to appoint a guardian. If the social worker files a dependency petition, then the juvenile court will have authority over the child's custody and placement. The probate court case will be put on hold until the juvenile court case is over. After a probate guardian is appointed, no social worker is involved unless the child or guardian receives public financial support or services.	If the dependency or juvenile justice case is kept open after guardianship is granted, the social worker or probation officer will provide support to the guardian and child and prepare reports for scheduled juvenile court hearings. If the juvenile dependency or juvenile justice case is closed after guardianship is granted, the juvenile court will continue to oversee the guardianship. Continued involvement by the social worker or probation officer will depend on any services and financial support the child continues to receive.
Terminating Guardianship	The guardianship automatically terminates (ends) when the child turns 18 or if, before turning 18, the child dies, is emancipated by court order, gets married, joins the armed services, or is adopted. If the guardian, a parent, the child, an Indian custodian, or the child's tribe shows that it is in the child's best interest, the court can end the guardianship before the child turns 18. The longer the child has lived with the guardian, the harder it is to show that termination is in the child's best interest. If the child consents, the court can extend a guardianship up to the child's 21st birthday to let the child complete a federal application for Special Immigrant Juvenile status.	The guardianship automatically terminates when the child turns 18 or if, before reaching age 18, the child dies, is emancipated by court order, gets married, joins the armed services, or is adopted. The court can terminate the guardianship if it finds that another permanent plan, such as adoption, is in the child's best interest. A social worker or probation officer, the guardian, a parent, the child, an Indian custodian, or the child's tribe can file a request with the juvenile court to terminate the guardianship.
Terminating Parental Rights	Appointment of a probate guardian suspends parental rights, but does not terminate them. However, under the Probate Code, if a child has been living with the guardian for at least two years, the guardian can file a petition to terminate parental rights so that the guardian can adopt the child. Parents are entitled to appointed counsel if this happens. In some situations, specified in the Family Code, the guardian can ask to adopt the child after as few as six months have passed or may need to wait up to three years. If the child is an Indian child, the Indian Child Welfare Act requires different procedures.	Appointment of a juvenile court guardian suspends parental rights, but does not terminate them. A social worker or probation officer, the guardian, or the child can file a request with the juvenile court to terminate parental rights and change the permanent plan to adoption. The court will hold a hearing to decide whether to grant the request. Each parent is entitled to notice of the hearing, to participate, and to have an attorney appointed for them. If the child is an Indian child, the Indian Child Welfare Act requires different procedures.

JV-350-INFO Information on Juvenile Court Guardianship

This form is about legal guardianship ordered by the juvenile court as the permanent plan for a child under the court's jurisdiction who cannot return home safely or be adopted.

The form explains:

- What is a guardianship and who can be appointed guardian;
- How and when to ask to be appointed guardian in juvenile court;
- Differences between a foster parent or resource family (a foster parent approved through a specific process), a court-appointed guardian, and an adoptive parent; and
- A guardian's legal rights, duties, and eligibility for financial help.

For more information, visit the California Courts website at www.courts.ca.gov/1206.htm or talk to a lawyer with experience in juvenile court. Learn how to find a lawyer on the website at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp-findlawyer.htm.

For information about probate guardianship of the person and the estate, read Judicial Council forms GC-205-INFO and GC-206-INFO. For a comparison of probate and juvenile court guardianship with juvenile court placement with a relative caregiver or foster parent/resource family, read form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO.

1 What is a guardianship?

A guardianship—technically a guardianship of the person—is a court-ordered relationship in which a person, other than the child's parent, is given legal and physical custody of a child and can make the decisions that a parent can about the child's care and control, residence, education, and medical treatment. When a guardianship is established, the parents' rights to have the child live with them and to make decisions for the child are completely suspended and given to the guardian for as long as the guardianship lasts.

2 Who can be appointed guardian by the juvenile court?

A child's juvenile court guardian must:

- Be an adult (18 years old or older);
- Not be the child's parent; and
- Be approved by the county child welfare agency or juvenile probation department.

3 Can a relative be appointed guardian?

Yes. The court can appoint any approved adult, including any relative except the child's parent.

4 Is a foster parent/resource family the same as a guardian?

No. A foster parent/resource family is not a guardian, but the court will often appoint one, especially a relative, as guardian if the child cannot return home. Foster parents/resource families have some legal rights, including:

- The right to notice of the child's review or permanency hearings and go to the hearings; and
- The right to give the court information about the child's needs. Caregiver Information Form (form JV-290) may be used for this purpose.

5 How is a guardian different from a foster parent/resource family?

Foster parents/resource families and guardians are both responsible for taking care of other people's children. But there are important differences.

- Permanence. Placement with a foster parent/resource family, including a relative, is intended to be temporary; it can end at any time. A guardianship is a permanent plan, intended to give a child a stable, lasting home and a caring relationship.
- Court supervision. The court holds review hearings every six months for a child in foster care. A social worker or probation officer visits a foster/resource family placement regularly. In a guardianship, no regular hearings or visits are required unless the court keeps the juvenile case open, though a guardian who receives services and financial support may continue to have contact with a social worker.
- Duties. A foster parent/resource family provides food, clothing, housing, and emotional support to the child under the supervision of a social worker or probation officer. A guardian has more rights and duties toward the child but may receive fewer services and less financial and personal support.

6 Who else can be involved in the court case?

The child's relatives. A relative, even if not the child's foster parent/resource family, has a right to give the court information about the child in writing. Relative Information (form JV-285) may be used for this purpose. Relatives can also ask the court to allow them to go to the child's hearings.

JV-350-INFO Information on Juvenile Court Guardianship

7 Will the child be returned to the parent?

In most cases, the social worker or probation officer works with the family by giving them services so that the child can return to live safely at home.

Sometimes the court decides the child will not be able to return home safely. If that happens, the court will deny or stop services for the parent. The social worker or probation officer will recommend a permanent plan for the child in a written report to the court.

8 Is guardianship a permanent plan?

Yes. A guardianship is one of three authorized permanent plans. It is intended to last until the child turns 18 years of age. If the child cannot return home, adoption is the legally preferred permanent plan because it is more stable and secure. (Later, this form talks more about adoption.) But if adoption is not a legally available option, the court will try to appoint a guardian for the child.

Note: If you are not recommended as guardian, ask the social worker or probation officer if they will name you as a prospective successor guardian. Then you might be assessed and appointed if the first appointed guardian can no longer serve.

- d. There will be a court hearing to decide the child's permanent plan. You will get a notice that tells you when and where the hearing will happen.
- e. Go to the hearing and talk to the judge. The child's parents and other people interested in the case can also go to the hearing and tell the judge what they think about you being the child's guardian.

11 How will the court decide whether to appoint me as guardian?

The court will consider:

- Whether the child can be adopted;
- The recommendation in the agency's report;
- What you and other people say at the hearing; and
- Any other reasons for or against appointing you as guardian.

The court will appoint you as guardian if it decides that:

- A guardianship is best for the child; and
- You are the best person to be the child's guardian.

12 What if the court appoints me as guardian?

If the court appoints you as guardian, take the order to the clerk. After you affirm that you will perform the duties of a guardian under the law, the clerk will issue Letters of Guardianship (form JV-330) as proof that you are the child's legal guardian. Buy a certified copy of the form from the clerk, make copies of it, and keep the certified copy in a safe place.

Take a copy of the Letters with you whenever you:

- Take the child to a doctor, dentist, or therapist;
- Sign the child up for school or go to school meetings; or
- Travel with the child.

HOW CAN I BECOME THE CHILD'S GUARDIAN?

9 How do I ask to become the guardian?

If you want the court to appoint you the child's guardian, you should:

- Tell the social worker or probation officer right away; and
- Ask the judge at a hearing as soon as you can.

Think carefully! If the court appoints you, the guardianship will last until the child turns 18. The court will not "undo" or end a guardianship unless:

- The situation has changed since appointment; and
- It is in the child's best interest to end it.

10 What are the steps to becoming a guardian?

There are several steps to becoming a child's guardian in juvenile court:

- a. The social worker or probation officer will interview you and visit your home to make sure you, your home, and everyone living there are safe for the child.
- b. Your home must be approved.
- c. The social worker or probation officer will write a report to the court recommending a permanent plan for the child.

JV-350-INFO Information on Juvenile Court Guardianship13 Will the court oversee me as guardian?

When it appoints you, the court can give you other orders, such as to notify the court if you move or to allow the parents or siblings to visit and spend time with the child. You must obey the court's orders.

After it appoints you, the juvenile court may oversee the guardianship to make sure you perform your duties. You won't usually have to go to court unless the court keeps the juvenile case open or someone asks the court to change its orders or make new orders.

Note: Even after the juvenile case is closed, anyone, including you, can use Request to Change Court Order (form JV-180) to ask the juvenile court to give you directions, review your plans or actions as guardian, change its previous orders, or end the guardianship.

The social worker or probation officer might also offer permanent placement services to the child. If you're not related to the child, a social worker will visit you every six months and update a voluntary case plan. If you don't follow the case plan, the worker might ask the court to order you to do so.

14 When will the guardianship end?

A guardianship lasts until the child turns 18 unless:

- The child dies before then;
- The child is adopted (by you or another adult); or
- The child is emancipated (or freed from your control) by getting married, entering active military duty, or getting a court order.

The court can order a guardianship to end before the child turns 18, but only if the proposed alternative is in the child's best interests; that is, it would be better for the child than continuing the guardianship.

Note: If the child keeps living with you after turning 18, you can get financial help if the child is eligible for Kin-GAP or state AFDC-FC and meets the program requirements. See page 5 for more information about financial support generally.

15 Can the court replace me as guardian?

Yes. The court will consider replacing you as guardian if asked by:

- You, the guardian;
- Any other interested adult; or

- The child, if 14 years old or older.

The judge will replace you only if the judge decides after a hearing that the situation has changed and a new guardian is in the child's best interests.

16 How is guardianship different from adoption?

Both a guardian and an adoptive parent have legal and physical custody of the child in place of the birth parents. But there are many differences.

Permanence. In a guardianship, the parent's rights are only suspended. The court can end a guardianship and give the parents back their rights if that would be in the child's best interests. In an adoption, parental rights are permanently ended. The adoptive parent is the child's legal parent. The birth parents cannot get their rights back.

Visitation. In a guardianship, the court can make an order allowing the parents or other relatives to visit a child. The guardian must obey the visitation order, as well as all other court orders. In an adoption, parents and other relatives lose their rights to visit the child unless the court and the adoptive parents agree that they can have contact after the adoption.

Duration. A guardianship lasts until the child turns 18 unless something happens to end the guardianship before then. (A court can order a guardianship to end if that is in the child's best interest.) An adoption is intended to last forever. A court can end an adoption only by terminating parental rights in a new juvenile or family law case.

Court oversight. The court keeps jurisdiction over a guardianship and can direct the guardian, replace the guardian, or end the guardianship if someone asks and the order is in the child's best interests. The court does not oversee an adoption once it is final.

Inheritance. A child in a guardianship can inherit property from a parent if the parent dies without a will. If the court knows the child might inherit property, it may appoint a "guardian of the estate" to manage the property. An adopted child usually has no right to inherit from a birth parent but may receive a gift from a birth parent's will or trust.

JV-350-INFO Information on Juvenile Court Guardianship

WHAT ARE A GUARDIAN'S RIGHTS AND DUTIES?

Subject to the court's orders, a court-appointed guardian has the same rights to legal and physical custody of the child as a parent does. In general, you must care for and control the child the same way a parent would.

Specifically, that means:

17 Arrange a place for the child to live

If you move the child to a new address in California, you must notify the court in writing. To move the child out of California, you must get court approval first. Use form JV-180 to ask the court to approve. Other states have different guardianship laws. If you plan to move to another state, find out about your legal rights and duties in that state.

18 Arrange for the child's health care

You can consent to (allow) most medical or dental treatment for the child. But if the child is at least 14 years old and does not want to have a non-emergency surgery, you must first get permission from the court.

The law also allows children, usually older ones, to get some kinds of medical treatment on their own without your approval, including:

- Outpatient mental health treatment;
- Reproductive health care; and
- Drug and alcohol treatment.

19 Provide for the child's education

You can choose the child's school and learning programs just as a parent can. In special situations, the court may also be involved in these decisions. Pay attention to how the child does in school, and meet with the child's teachers. If the child needs special education or other specialized services, you can also ask the school or other providers for these services.

20 Access social services

You can get help for the child from other programs, such as:

- Head Start;
- Regional centers for persons with developmental delays or disabilities;
- Health care services; and
- After-school care.

21 Give consent to the child's marriage

You can allow the child to marry, but you must get the court's permission first. Once the child gets married, the guardianship will end.

22 Give consent to the child's military service

You can allow the child to enlist in the U.S. military. Once the child enters active duty, the guardianship will end.

23 Give consent for the child's driver's license

The child cannot get a driver's license without your written permission. (See also the duties described below.) If you change your mind later, you can sign a form at the DMV to cancel the child's driver's license.

24 Pay for harm caused by the child's driving

You must get insurance to cover the child when driving. You will have to pay for damage the child causes when driving that's not covered by insurance, but the law limits how much money you can be forced to pay. If you're concerned about this duty, you should talk to a lawyer.

25 Pay for harm caused by the child's other acts

Willful misconduct. In most cases, a guardian can be made to pay only for harm to another person caused by the child's willful misconduct. There is usually a limit to how much you can be required to pay.

Negligent conduct. In some cases, you can be made to pay for harm caused by the child's negligent conduct. If you're concerned about this duty, you should talk to a lawyer.

26 Pay for the child's needs

The parents are still legally responsible for child support, but you can accept this responsibility. You can get money to help you support the child. See page 5 for more information.

27 Obey all court orders

The court may require you to accept other duties. For example, the judge may order you to take the child to visit a parent or other relative. You must do what the court orders.

JV-350-INFOInformation on Juvenile Court Guardianship*WHAT FINANCIAL SUPPORT CAN I RECEIVE?

You may be able to get financial help from the county, state, or federal government. The type of help depends on the child's eligibility and their relationship to you.

Important! Before you become the child's guardian, ask the child's social worker or probation officer or a lawyer if you will qualify for financial help. For a detailed comparison of services and supports available to foster parents, relative caregivers, and guardians, read Comparison of Guardians With Other Nonparent Caregivers (form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO).

If the child is related to you

If you become the guardian of a child who is a relative, you may qualify for financial help from these programs:

- Kin-GAP payments: If the child has lived with you for at least six months, you have been approved as a resource family, you sign a written agreement, and the court closes the dependency case, you can qualify for Kin-GAP payments. Kin-GAP gives you the same monthly payments as a foster parent caring for a foster child, including any rate the county might pay to care for the child's special needs.

You can receive Kin-GAP in any county or state, but the amount may change based on where you live. In California, the payments are the same amount as foster care payments.

- Approved Relative Caregiver (ARC) or foster care program: If the court keeps the juvenile case open after appointing you guardian, you can receive ARC or foster care payments instead of Kin-GAP.
- CalWORKs (cash assistance): In very rare situations, you may not qualify for Kin-GAP, foster care, or ARC payments. In those cases, you may still qualify for CalWORKs payments. If you have a low income, you may get a full CalWORKs grant. If your income is too high to qualify for a full grant, you may still receive a "child-only" CalWORKs grant.
- Health care: A child who qualifies for Kin-GAP, ARC, foster care, or CalWORKs payments gets health care through Medi-Cal.
- Independent living program (ILP): Beginning at age 16, most children can receive ILP funds and services to help them become successful adults. The services available depend on the child's age when Kin-GAP payments started.

- Chafee Education and Training Vouchers for postsecondary education are available for youth who were in foster care on or after age 16. Vouchers are worth up to $5,000 per year.

If the child is NOT related to you

In California, guardians who are not related to the child are eligible for foster care payments from the state. You can receive these payments in any county or state, but the amount may change if you live in another state. Before you move, ask if the rate will change! If you receive payments, a case worker will visit you every six months.

- Health care: Children who qualify for foster care payments get health care through Medi-Cal.
- Independent living program (ILP): Beginning at age 16, most children can receive ILP funds and services to help them become successful adults.
- Chafee Education and Training Vouchers for postsecondary education are available for youth who were in foster care on or after age 16. Vouchers are worth up to $5,000 per year.

If you keep supporting the child after age 18

Even though the guardianship ends when the child turns 18, payments can continue if the youth still lives with you, you continue to care for and support the youth, the youth meets all other eligibility requirements, and you both sign written agreements.

Generally, Kin-GAP payments end when a child turns 18, unless the payments started after the child turned 16 (they continue until age 21) or the child has a mental or physical disability (funding continues until 21) or the child is in high school (funding continues until 19 or graduation).

Important! Talk to the child's social worker or probation officer or a lawyer a few months before the child turns 18 to make sure the child doesn't miss any payments.

JV-350-INFOInformation on Juvenile Court Guardianship*CAN I RECEIVE CHILDCARE ASSISTANCE?

California offers a variety of publicly funded childcare programs that help families with low income, including guardians, pay for emergency and long-term, continuous childcare. Programs include: CalWORKs childcare; Alternative Payment Program (AP) voucher and contract-based childcare; California State Preschool Program (CSPP); Head Start and Early Head Start; and Transitional Kindergarten. Many of these childcare programs offer special consideration for families caring for children who have been formally or informally placed outside their home.

Every county in California has at least one childcare resource & referral agency that helps families find childcare and determine whether they qualify for public funding to help them pay for it. Parents and guardians can use this website to find their local resource and referral agency for childcare assistance: <https://rrnetwork.org/family-services/find-child-care>.

The main childcare programs in California are:

- CalWORKs Childcare: CalWORKs childcare has three stages:
Stage 1: An entitlement for parents or guardians receiving CalWORKs cash assistance or who received cash assistance in the past 24 months and are engaged or want to engage in a Welfare-to-Work activity. Families stay in Stage 1 until they are transferred to Stage 2.
Stage 2: An entitlement for parents or guardians who received CalWORKs cash-assistance in the past 24 months or a lump-sum diversion payment or services. See AP voucher & contract-based childcare, below, for eligibility requirements.
Stage 3: Subject to enough funding, families are transferred to Stage 3 after 24 months of receiving cash assistance or if they received a lump-sum diversion payment or services. See AP voucher & contract-based childcare, below, for eligibility requirements
 Families get continuous CalWORKs childcare for children in their care, including children in formal and informal out-of-home care, for at least 12 months until recertification. Childcare is available until the child is 13 years old or, if the child has a disability, until the child is 21. Qualifying families should not be put on a waiting list for CalWORKs Stages 1 & 2, as these are entitlement programs. Families can usually choose the childcare setting that best meets their needs.*

- AP voucher and contract-based childcare (including CalWORKs Stages 2 & 3): Families with children in guardianship qualify for childcare based on income, or if they receive CalWORKs cash assistance, or if they are experiencing homelessness and the guardian has a “need” for childcare, such as working or attending school. Families have continuous eligibility for at least 12 months until recertification, until the child is 13 years old or until the child is 21 years old if the child has a disability. Families can usually choose the childcare setting that best meets their needs.*
- California State Preschool Program (CSPP): AP voucher and contract-based childcare eligibility requirements apply, with some exceptions. CSPP is for children ages 4–5; there are no “need” requirements for part-day CSPP. CSPPs are located on school campuses and in neighborhoods.
- Head Start and Early Head Start: Families experiencing homelessness or families receiving CalWORKs cash payments or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) qualify regardless of their income. Other families must qualify based on their income. Head Start offers comprehensive services to families with children ages 3–5 and Early Head Start is for pregnant women and children under age 3.
- Transitional Kindergarten: No-cost early care & education for 4-year-olds offered on school campuses. Parents and guardians with childcare subsidies may keep their 4-year-old children in non-school settings if they prefer.

Local assistance

You can get help and information about financial support and services from local agencies. For example, if the child does not qualify for Kin-GAP, AFDC-FC, or other foster care payments, you may still be able to get Social Security, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), Medi-Cal, or other financial help. Contact your local child welfare agency if you have questions.

* Some counties do not allow guardians to choose unlicensed family, friend, or neighbor childcare.

			Although the form and accompanying sections of the Probate Code and Welfare and Institutions Code provide adequate direction for courts to carry out the process created by AB 260, a Rule of Court or Information Sheet may provide additional guidance on this new process. For example, if the matter is set for argument, is a representative of the probate court expected to appear in support of its request? If so, who is best suited to that representative? Will the probate court and the minor receive notice of argument on the matter? Clarifying these questions would help avoid confusion in implementation. 			their care will be a factor counted against them when they ask for their child's return.
			This can lead to what was intended to be a short, temporary guardianship to become a longer-term, permanent guardianship. This lapse of time outside of the parent's care is then used to justify keeping the child in the custody of the guardian, instead of the parent.	The committees have added information to form GC-205-INFO and GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO to indicate that the longer the child lives with the guardian, the more difficult it will be to show that terminating the guardianship is in the child's best interest.
			As drafted, the proposed forms and revisions primarily focus on the rights and support services for caregivers. Although there is some information geared toward parents, that information can be hard to find in these extensively detailed forms and is framed in a way to overly simplify the challenges parents will face if they ever wish to reunify with their children.	The committees do not recommend developing a form designed solely or primarily to address the effect of guardianship on parental rights and interests at this time. Such a form is beyond the scope of this proposal. In addition, the long-term consequences of a guardianship on parental rights are contingent on many events that may occur both before and after the appointment of a guardian. These events vary widely among cases and defy easy cataloguing on an information form. However, the committees have added further information on the relationship between guardianship and termination of parental rights in chart 3 of GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO and in GC-205-INFO.
			To make an informed decision on whether a guardianship or dependency proceeding would be better situated for a parent's circumstances, more information on their rights and support services must be provided.	The committees agree and have expanded the information on the forms, in particular form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO, addressing parental rights and interests. As other commenters have pointed out, however, the

6.	Christine Flynn, Probate Court Investigator Superior Court of Mendocino County	AM	These informational forms are not user friendly. There is too much information and a lot of guardians who file petitions have limited education and some are illiterate. I do not see guardians reading all of the information. If they do read the forms, they may believe they have a choice about opting for a juvenile court case when they do not. I think it needs to be made clear that it is up to CPS whether to file a juvenile case or up to the juvenile court to order them to file via JV-212. Usually, CPS says the situation is stabilized and there is no reason to open a JV case. Risks or allegations of abuse and neglect are no longer an issue since the minor is no longer living with the parent and is being properly cared for by a relative or non-relative caregiver. Maybe consider simplifying or cutting some repetitive information from the informational forms. See comments on specific forms below.	The committees have revised the forms to clarify and simplify them while retaining critical information. The committees have added information to page 1 of form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO to clarify that only a child welfare agency may start a juvenile dependency case. Oneatha Herne, Probate Court Investigator Superior Court of Sacramento County	AM	While the legislation expanded the process for probate court to use W&I 329 and 331, information about the ability of any person to refer a child who is or may be at risk of abuse or neglect as described in W&I 300 by way of W&I 329 and 331 is not widely known. 				committees' discussions disclosed unavoidable differences among courts—including differences in court size, number and assignment of judicial officers, case management systems, and general court operations—that would prevent them from implementing the legislative intent of AB 260 through uniform statewide procedures imposed by rule. For example, the procedures needed in the Superior Court of Los Angeles County to prevent the loss or delay of referrals and responses among the probate departments and the juvenile departments would be unique to that court, the only court of its size in California. Other procedures, or no procedures at all, would be required to prevent loss or delay in other courts. Third, the committees are sensitive to the requirement, in Government Code section 77001, that rules of court establish a decentralized system of trial court management. In most, though certainly not all, cases, the process enacted in Welfare and Institutions Code section 331(b) and Probate Code section 1513(b) will be conducted internally, that is, between two different departments within a single superior court. The processes at issue in those cases seem, therefore, to fall within the scope of internal operational procedures best left to local discretion. Orange County Bar Association by Daniel Robinson, President	AM	The OCBA agrees that this proposal moderately addresses the stated purposes provided the following modifications are made: (1) This proposal and specifically Form GC-205-Info were intended to comply with the mandatory terms for such forms as set forth in AB260 (Stats. 2021); one of those requirements is for this form to explain how a probate guardianship differs from the services available to a child welfare caregiver in the child welfare system and a guardian appointed by the juvenile court. This form does not appear to explain those differences in legal rights and services but instead just obliquely references some comparisons found in Forms JV-350-Info, GC206-Info and GC-207-Info/JV-352-Info. The stated purpose of AB 260 was to remedy some of the problems identified in various recent law review and expert publications about the abuses found by a “Hidden Foster Care” system created by various informal child welfare agency referrals. We do not see any adequate explanations of the different legal rights and remedies available in the various court and child welfare systems.	No response required. Government Code section 68511.1, as amended by AB 260 (Stats. 2021, ch. 578, § 1), required the Judicial Council to “develop a form explaining the nature of a guardianship of a minor, the rights, duties, and obligations of a person serving as guardian of a minor, and information about the services and supports available to a probate guardian and how they differ from the services and supports available to a caregiver in the child welfare system or a guardian appointed by the juvenile court.” The committees intend form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO to serve as the form mandated by section 68511.1. 12.	Superior Court of Los Angeles County by Brian Borys	AM	Agree that providing specific rules for processing of the JV210 when used by the probate court for referral may be helpful, specifically to indicate whether parties are to be served with copy of court filing, whether copy of the filing should be available in probate case or only in juvenile court, and if available in probate case, whether confidential.	The committees do not recommend adopting rules of court to provide uniform statewide procedures for the probate court's application under Probate Code section 1513(b), whether using form JV-210 or a different vehicle, to the child welfare agency for conduct of an investigation and commencement of juvenile court proceedings. That process was not the subject of the committee's request and is beyond the scope of this proposal. The committees nevertheless considered the comment and concluded that the suggested rules of court are not needed at this time. The content and deadlines in Probate Code section 1513(b) and Welfare and Institutions Code section 329(b) for the probate court's referral to the agency are clear, yet leave room for differing procedures to make the process work efficiently in any particular county. No rule is required to specify this statutory requirement. The committees do not recommend adopting a rule or revising form JV-210 in response to this comment. Probate Code section 1513(b) has for many years required the agency to report the findings of its investigation to the probate court. Each court has processed, and may continue to process, this report in a manner compatible with its e-filing and case management systems. AB 260 does not impose any additional requirements on that process. The committees concluded that the differing capacities of e-filing systems provide a reason to leave the details of how to process an agency report submitted under section 1513(b) up to each court and county. A rule imposing a uniform statewide requirement for processing the agency's report would almost certainly be burdensome for some courts.

The committees concluded that rules of court specifying additional processes or mechanisms for carrying out processes would not usefully add to the statutory requirements and, as noted above, would interfere with the local discretion needed to implement the statutory policies in each court. Second, the committees' discussions disclosed unavoidable differences among courts—including differences in court size, number and assignment of judicial officers, case management systems, and general court operations—that would prevent them from implementing the legislative intent of AB 260 through uniform statewide procedures imposed by rule. Third, the committees are sensitive to the requirement, in Government Code section 77001, that rules of court establish a decentralized system of trial court management. In most, though certainly not all, cases, the process enacted in Welfare and Institutions Code section 331(b) and Probate Code section 1513(b) will be conducted internally, that is, between two different departments within a single superior court. The processes at issue in those cases seem, therefore, to fall within the scope of internal operational procedures best left to local

15.	Superior Court of San Diego County by Mike Roddy, Executive Officer	AM N	Agree, in part , with proposed changes if modified and do not agree, in part . Specifically, as noted below, the court has concerns regarding the service requirements of these new forms. Requiring service may prove problematic for several reasons, including the fact that they are multiple pages and there are generally numerous parties that require service in these cases. It is all too often that service-related issues cause these cases to be continued. Adding any additional hurdles (possibilities for defects) to this process is concerning, especially considering that many of these litigants are self-represented. Does the proposal appropriately address the stated purpose? Yes and no. The proposed new forms and revisions are well written and informative, but they are long and verbose. Given the intended audience, it may be beneficial to simplify and shorten. Should the committees recommend statewide	No response required. The committees do not recommend a change in response to this comment because service of this form is required by statute. Probate Code section 1511 requires that notice of the hearing on a petition to appoint a probate guardian include a copy of the new mandatory information form. Form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO fulfills the mandate in Government Code section 68511.1 by including all the elements required by that statute. The petitioner must, therefore, serve that form with notice of hearing on the petition. The committees have revised the forms to clarify and simplify them without omitting critical information. The forms now caution users that they are not intended as a substitute for legal advice and also include links to the online directory of court self-help centers. Because it would appear to provide procedures for individual applicants to the child welfare agency or the juvenile court under Welfare and Institutions Code sections 329(a) or 331(a) rather than the probate court's request for review under section 331(b), such a rule is beyond the scope of the request for comment and this proposal. Alliance for Children's Rights et al. by Sabrina Forte, Director of Policy and Impact Litigation	1. Reclassify and clarify the limitations of "informal childcare arrangements." We agree that families should understand the types of caregiving arrangements that are available without a court order. We recommend more clarity in describing the caregiving arrangements discussed in Question 2 ("Are there childcare arrangements that do not require a court order?"), especially caregiving arrangements that are not clearly defined under California law. As the Note on the first page of the GC-205-INFO describes, generally, a custodial parent cannot give their legal rights and responsibilities regarding their child to another caregiver without a court order. There are two exceptions to this general rule under California law: Caregiver Authorization Affidavits, authorized by Family Code section 6550 et seq., and Voluntary Placement Agreements, authorized by Welfare and Institutions Code section 16507.2-16507.6. There is no statutory authority for the "informal childcare agreement" described on the second page of the GC-205-INFO. In our experience, families receive a lot of misinformation about these informal written agreements (e.g., that a written agreement is not valid unless it is notarized, that signatories must specify the period of time that the agreement is in effect, that signatories must not specify the period of time that the agreement is in effect, etc.). The commenter is correct that a parent cannot transfer the rights and, more important, the duties of legal custody to another adult under California law. Only a court order can effect such a transfer. A nonparent may, however, exercise parental authority without a court order under several different arrangements as long as the applicable legal requirements are met. Section 2 of the form is intended to explain these arrangements in sufficient detail to prompt a parent or caregiver to decide whether to seek further information or guidance regarding any of them. California law recognizes two options in addition to those mentioned by the commenter. One is an Indian custodianship, discussed in response to other comments. The other is a power of attorney. A parent who wishes to

This form does little to address these problems of misinformation and misuse, especially because the GC-207-INFO does not provide additional information about informal written agreements. Additionally, classifying these arrangements as informal childcare arrangements is confusing. “Childcare” or “Child care” is legally defined under California Health & Safety Code sections 1596.750 (defining licensed child care generally), 1596.76 (child care center), 1596.771 (employer-sponsored child care center), 1596.78 (family child care), 1596.792 (legally-licensed exempt care). Licensed childcare is non-medical care for less than 24 hours. The health and safety of licensed child care is regulated by the California Department of Social Services, Community Care Licensing Division. Using the terms “child care” or “childcare” to describe an informal situation where other adults can make decisions about the welfare of the child is confusing. For these reasons, we recommend revising the section on “informal childcare arrangements” to specify that the scope of these arrangements is not clearly defined by California law, which makes them difficult to enforce. We also recommend removing the Note, which overlaps with and is less clear than	authorize another adult to exercise their parental rights may do so by executing a power of attorney consistent with the required statutory formalities. (See, e.g., id., § 4263(a)(2).) But a parent cannot delegate parental duties, and a power of attorney does not impose a duty on the designated caregiver to exercise the granted powers unless the caregiver agrees in writing to exercise them. 	The court will presume that maintaining a child's stability in the guardian's home will be in their best interest."	Code section 1514(b)(1). Probate Code section 1601 does not incorporate the same standards to termination of a guardianship, and whether those standards apply to termination is not settled law. Section 1601 authorizes the court to terminate a guardianship if it is in the child's best interest. Stability in the guardian's home is critical, but not the only factor relevant to determining whether termination is in the child's best interest.

	The use of “juvenile court-ordered out-of-home childcare placement” on page 1 of GC-205-INFO may contribute to the perception that children will not be placed with a relative in a dependency proceeding, even though there is a preference for the same under the Welfare and Institutions Code. One purpose of AB 260 was to eliminate the use of these nonstandard “safety plans.” (See Assem. Com. on Judiciary, Analysis of Assem. Bill No. 260 (2021–2022 Reg. Sess.) as introduced Jan. 15, 2021, pp. 1, 6, 7–10.) For this reason, the committees do not recommend adding a discussion of safety plans to this form or any part of this proposal.
	Pg 1 Item 1 - 5th sentence – Suggestion: Change to - completely suspends the legal rights and duties of both parents, and transfers	The committees do not recommend the suggested change, as the language is overbroad. The appointment of a guardian does not, for example, suspend the parents’ duty to support their child financially. In addition, the term “both parents” may not apply to all families; Family Code section 7612(c) authorizes a court to find that a child has more than two parents if recognizing only two parents would be detrimental to the child.

Orange County Bar Association by Daniel Robinson, President	The OCBA agrees that this proposal moderately addresses the stated purposes provided the following modifications are made: (1) This proposal and specifically Form GC-205-Info were intended to comply with the mandatory terms for such forms as set forth in AB260 (Stats. 2021); one of those requirements is for this form to explain how a probate guardianship differs from the services available to a child welfare caregiver in the child welfare system and a guardian appointed by the juvenile court. This form does not appear to explain those differences in legal rights and services but instead just obliquely references some comparisons found in Forms JV-350-Info, GC206-Info and GC-207-Info/JV-352-Info. The stated purpose of AB 260 was to remedy some of the problems identified in various recent law review and expert publications about the abuses found by a “Hidden Foster Care” system created by various informal child welfare agency referrals. We do not see any adequate explanations of the different legal rights and remedies available in the various court and child welfare systems.	Thank you for reviewing and submitting comments for this proposal. Government Code section 68511.1, as amended by AB 260 (Stats. 2021, ch. 578, § 1), requires the Judicial Council to “develop a form explaining the nature of a guardianship of a minor, the rights, duties, and obligations of a person serving as guardian of a minor, and information about the services and supports available to a probate guardian and how they differ from the services and supports available to a caregiver in the child welfare system or a guardian appointed by the juvenile court.” The committees intend form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO to serve as the form mandated by section 68511.1 The other information forms in the proposal are intended to complement form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO and provide additional information about specific types of guardianship. 	important, we recommend cutting the column on out-of-court alternatives (CAAs and VPAs). These can be sufficiently covered in the GC-205-INFO form and will not be relevant to most of the readers of the GC-207-INFO form, which is provided after someone has already filed a probate guardianship petition. 3. Clarify that dependency court path is not always chosen and that not all caregivers are eligible to become resource parents. A goal of this proposal is to ensure that families can make informed choices when it is necessary to separate a child from their parents. As practitioners in probate and/or juvenile court, we know that families do not always have equal access to each of the available options. Often, we meet families when a juvenile or probate court petition is already pending, which limits the families' options going forward. Unlike in probate court, dependency court jurisdiction requires the child welfare agency to file a petition; families cannot commence dependency court proceedings on their own; and the court may decide not to take jurisdiction over the child. We recommend including language at the beginning of the GC-207-INFO, and where appropriate throughout, to help families understand that even if they decide that dependency court is the best option for their family, the child may not meet the threshold for becoming a dependent, and the caregiver may not meet the requirements for becoming a resource parent, which are far more detailed and specific than any requirements for being appointed a child's guardian in probate court. This is an important, and often dispositive, consideration for families.	determining that caregiving arrangements without court involvement are beyond the scope of the form mandated by Government Code section 68511.1, have removed this column from chart 1 of the form. The committees have modified the form to clarify that that the child welfare agency, and no one else, may file a petition to commence juvenile dependency proceedings. The committees agree and have added responsive information to page 1 of the form.

	4. Clarify funding information. We recommend putting all the information about financial supports and cash payments in one place, separate from the information on responsibilities and financial liability. We also recommend clarifying that foster care rates are per child (CalWORKs rates are more complicated and do not increase per child in the same way) and that rates are different for children placed out of state. We appreciate that staff intends to update the forms annually to reflect the annual foster care rate changes. Otherwise, the information on financial supports would become obsolete quickly. Although readers can search the year's All-County Letters (linked in the GC-207-INFO form) to find the new rates, this requires a level of time and resources that the primary audience of these forms will not have. 5. 	6. Clarify availability of the full array of child care resources that are not tied to court jurisdiction. While it is true that there are no child care assistance programs solely dedicated to informal caregivers or court-ordered guardians, we recommend including information about the broad array of subsidized child care programs that are available to families with low incomes. Families caring for children who have been formally or informally placed outside their home qualify for most of these child care programs, regardless of family income. This additional information will also help resource families better understand how the Emergency Child Care Bridge fits in with other subsidized child care options. Because most of the available child care options are based on factors unrelated to court jurisdiction, we recommend merging the columns under “Childcare Assistance” on page 26 and adding the text below. If the columns are not merged, then the recommended language below should replace the current language in each column (with an additional reference to the Emergency Child Care Bridge in the first column). We also recommend changing the heading from “Childcare Assistance” to “Publicly-Funded Child Care.”	“foster parent,” is likely to confuse users. The committees have therefore explained on page 1 that a “resource family” is a foster parent who has been approved through the resource family approval process and used the term “foster parent/resource family” in applicable headings and text to indicate that these terms refer to the same type of caregiver. “Caregiver” is used as an umbrella term to refer to any nonparent who cares for a child. The committees agree that the suggested information would be helpful to families and caregivers and have incorporated it, with some modifications, it into the form.

Additional information about several topics, including appointment of counsel and investigations, has been added to this form in response to public comments. The other forms provide more detail about specific types of guardianship.
Superior Court of Los Angeles County by Brian Borys	GC-207 Info form should be adopted but not required for the court to serve upon first hearing; by this point the parties have filed a petition with the court. This form should be available on court websites, self-help and can be referenced in the petition info forms, notice of hearing, and other sources but the court should not be required to serve it.	The committees agree that the court is not required to serve form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO. Probate Code section 1511 requires that notice of the hearing on a petition to appoint a probate guardian include a copy of the information form mandated by Government Code section 68511.1. GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO is that form. Because section 1511 does not specify who must give notice of hearing and, thus, the form (and a copy of the petition), section 1460 prescribes the duty to give notice. Section 1460(b) requires the petitioner to give notice of the hearing, so the duty falls on the petitioner to include with the notice a copy of the petition and form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO. Nothing in statute or form can reasonably be read to preclude the posting of the form on court websites, to discourage persons from visiting self-help centers, or to discourage self-help center staff from providing information to self-represented visitors.
Superior Court of San Diego County by Mike Roddy, Executive Officer	While the new form is informative, it may be beneficial to simplify and shorten for the intended audience.	The committees have revised the form to clarify and simplify it without omitting critical information. The form now cautions users that it is not intended as a substitute for legal advice and also includes links to the online directory of court self-help centers.

	Our court opposes the requirement for this form to be served with the petition. As mentioned, service in Guardianship cases is one of the most difficult defects for self-represented litigants to overcome. Adding this significant of an additional service requirement is not practical. Additionally, most of these litigants do not have the means to pay for all the additional pages that would need to be copied and/or mailed. For example, in a typical Guardianship case, service to the two parents and four grandparents would equate to an additional 78-pages to be copied. Thirteen additional pages would also add significant postage for mailing. Additionally, it seems unnecessary to require this to be served on a Guardianship of the Estate matter, as the Juvenile and other Nonparent Caregiver comparisons are not applicable. Page 1: Suggested edits – Caregivers who provide care for children involved in a court case • Foster parents or resource families: If it is not in a child’s best interest to continue living at home, the juvenile court may order the child placed out of the home and in the care and custody of the a child welfare agency. ... • Guardians: ... Advokids by Lauren Montana, Supervising Attorney	No Comments. We like this form! Clear and well organized. Helpful revisions.	No response required.
Alliance for Children’s Rights et al. by Sabrina Forte, Director of Policy and Impact Litigation	Although the creation of a separate section for the probate court’s referral is helpful, we recommend adding instructions so that applicants understand that they must complete Part II (individual applicants) or Part III (probate court) but not both. We suggest adding an instruction before Part II that says, “Individual applicants: Complete Part II. Probate Court applicants: Complete Part III.” Alternatively, we recommend revising the heading of Part II to say “Part II. Applicant’s Affidavit (Non-Probate Court Referral).”	The committees agree and have added instructions indicating that part I should be completed by all users, part II is for use by individual applicants and part III is only for use by the probate court.
California Tribal Families Coalition by Mica Llerandi, Senior Attorney, Legal and Program Services	[Part 1. Child’s Information; #1.g. Other caregiver] [Part 2. The child described in item 1] In this section, we recommend adding that an “other caregiver” might be an Indian custodian and a box option to check if a child lived or lives on an Indian reservation.	The committees have added language to item 1g to indicate that “other caregiver” includes an Indian custodian. The committees added language to item 1g to indicate that “other caregiver” might be an Indian custodian in response to the previous comment, and do not recommend adding that information to item 2. Neither do the committees recommend adding an option to indicate whether a child lives on tribal land. Items 2a and 2b are the grounds under Welfare and Institutions Code section 329(a) for establishing that the county in which the application is made is proper. That a child lives on tribal land is not among the statutory grounds and is not relevant to choosing the proper county in which to file the application.

Oneatha Herne, Probate Court Investigator, Sacramento County	While the legislation expanded the process for probate court to use W&I 329 and 331, information about the ability of any person to refer a child who is or may be at risk of abuse or neglect as described in W&I 300 by way of W&I 329 and 331 is not widely known. This information and the availability of applicable forms should be included. Information only on the probate court gives the impression that this process is only available after the filing of a probate guardianship petition and only can be used by the probate court.	The committees agree that this information is important and have added information about the application processes under Welfare and Institutions Code sections 329 and 331 to page 1 of form GC-207-INFO/JV-352-INFO.

Form JV-213, Probate Court Request for Juvenile Court Review of Decision not to Commence Proceedings
Commenter	Comment	Committee Response
Advokids by Lauren Montana, Supervising Attorney	Combining JV212 & JV213 should be reconsidered. JV210 looks great, very clear. If it is not too confusing to have a separate probate section on the JV210, why is it too confusing to have it on the JV212?	The committees do not recommend incorporating the probate court request for juvenile court review into form JV-212. A separate form for the probate court to use is preferable, in part because form JV-212 is designed for use by an individual applicant external to the superior court. Form JV-213, on the other hand, is intended primarily for internal communication between two departments of the same superior court. It refers to some materials that would not be available to a private applicant, including a social worker's report that must be filed directly with the court and maintained confidentially. The committees are concerned, therefore, that, even clearly marked, inserting a section for internal court use to form JV-212 would mislead self-represented applicants. (Form JV-210, on the other hand, is submitted to the child welfare agency by a party external to the agency, whether an individual or the probate court.)
	Specific recommendation is to reconsider revising JV212 to accommodate probate court's request for juvenile court review of the agency's decision not to file a dependency petition by updating the self-represented individuals section with the clearer language as is stated on the proposed JV-213	Updating the sections for use by self-represented individuals and the juvenile court on form JV-212 is beyond the scope of this proposal. The committees will consider revising this form in a future cycle.

Alliance for Children’s Rights et al. by Sabrina Forte, Director of Policy and Impact Litigation	We appreciate the clarity of this new form. We recommend incorporating the applicable juvenile court findings and orders into the existing JV-212 form, as these findings and orders make clear that juvenile court judges may set these matters for argument and/or order the social worker to file a petition by a date certain.	The committees do not recommend revising form JV-212 at this time. Revision of these sections of the form is beyond the scope of this proposal. The committees will consider revising the form in a future cycle.
Superior Court of Orange County by Vivian Tran, Operations Analyst	This proposed form indicates juvenile court may set the matter for argument (item 2 under the Juvenile Court section of the form). Recommend including the code that gives juvenile court authority to set the matter for argument on the bottom of the form for reference. Clarify which parties will provide argument at the hearing.	The committees have revised the form to indicate that the court may set the matter for hearing, not merely argument. Setting the matter for a hearing, including an evidentiary hearing or argument, is within the court’s inherent authority to resolve matters before it, as confirmed in In re M.C. (2011) 199 Cal.App.4th 784, 813–814 & fn. 21. See also the response to the Orange County Bar Association’s comment, above. Following an application for juvenile court review under Welfare and Institutions Code section 331, the court has discretion to hear argument and receive evidence from any interested person, as long as the hearing comports with the requirements of due process.
Superior Court of San Diego County by Mike Roddy, Executive Officer	1. Consider adding a space for not only the Department ____, but the assigned Judicial Officer. Although it is a best practice for the child to live with the guardian before appointment, the statutes do not establish a clear residence requirement. Welfare and Institutions Code section 366.26(b)(3) does provide for appointment as guardian of a relative “with whom the child is currently residing,” but section 366.26(b)(5) authorizes appointment of a nonrelative as guardian without a residence requirement. There is neither express authorization nor prohibition of appointing a relative guardian with whom the child is not living. The reason for this absence is unclear. It is possible that the Legislature intended to require a permanent plan with a relative with whom the child was not living to begin as a placement with a fit and willing relative, under section 366.26(b)(6), with a goal of appointing the relative as guardian as soon as they become eligible for Kin-GAP. Otherwise, the preference for a nonrelative over a relative seems anomalous.

And though RFA approval is a condition of a relative guardian’s eligibility to receive Kin-GAP payments, it is not clear that such approval is a condition of the relative’s appointment as guardian. Moreover, Welfare and Institutions Code sections 361.5(g)(1), 366.21(i)(1), 366.22(c)(1), and 366.25(b)(1) do not require the mandatory assessment conducted when the court sets a section 366.26 hearing to discuss whether a proposed guardian or prospective adoptive parent has been approved as a resource family.
