Executive Summary

The Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee recommends adopting five new Judicial Council forms and revising 19 forms to implement new laws enacted by Senate Bill 320 (Rubio; Stats. 2021, ch. 685), Assembly Bill 1621 (Gipson; Stats. 2022, ch. 76), Senate Bill 374 (Min; Stats. 2021, ch. 135), Senate Bill 24 (Caballero; Stats. 2021, ch. 129), Senate Bill 538 (Rubio; Stats. 2021, ch. 686), and Assembly Bill 277 (Valladares; Stats. 2021, ch. 457). The committee also recommends revoking one form, which will be combined with an existing form, and repealing rule 5.495 of the California Rules of Court, which has been codified by SB 320.

The proposed repealed rule, and new, revised, or revoked forms are attached at pages 13–108.

Relevant Previous Council Action

Under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act, the Judicial Council must provide forms and instructions for use in domestic violence restraining order matters. The council has approved revisions to the forms when changes to the law required revisions and in response to suggestions made by the public, judicial officers, and court professionals. In 2022, forms DV-100, DV-105, DV-110, DV-120, DV-130, and DV-500-INFO were revised to reflect changes in the law to (1) add coercive control to the definition of abuse, and (2) include a request for and order by the court to find that debts incurred by the petitioner were the result of abuse. A number of additional changes were made to these same forms to make them more user-friendly and easier for self-represented litigants (SRLs) to complete.

Analysis/Rationale

This proposal is needed to implement six new laws. As most litigants in domestic violence restraining order proceedings represent themselves, it is particularly important for the council to act quickly to ensure that litigants are provided up-to-date information about available remedies and court procedures. A number of additional changes are recommended to make the forms more user-friendly.

SB 320

Effective January 1, 2022, SB 320 (Link A) codifies rule 5.495, Firearm relinquishment procedures, and provides additional requirements for courts to comply with when the court receives information that a restrained person has or may have firearms or ammunition in their possession or control.¹ Revisions to existing order forms are needed to allow the court to (1) give notice of a determination regarding possession of firearms or ammunition by the restrained person, (2) set a compliance review hearing, (3) order the clerk of the court to provide notice of noncompliance to law enforcement or the prosecuting agency, and (4) include an order for the restrained person to surrender ammunition.

Three new forms are also being proposed: forms DV-820, DV-830, and DV-840/FL-840. Form DV-820 would be used as an attachment to the temporary restraining order (form DV-110), continuance order (form DV-116), or any other family law order form, to make any of the findings and orders noted above. Form DV-830, would be used when the court is required to provide notice to law enforcement under Family Code section 6306 or notice to a prosecuting agency under Family Code section 6389(c)(4). Form DV-830 is a confidential form, as it could contain information from the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System, also known as CLETS, such as criminal history information. Form DV-840/FL-840 is a notice of hearing and order form, to be used by the court when it is setting a hearing to review compliance with firearms and ammunition provisions subsequent to a restraining order after hearing being issued.

In response to comments received, the committee also recommends listing “guns” as a parenthetical to firearms, rather than listing guns as a separate item. For example, on form DV-110, at item 5, the new heading for the firearms relinquishment order would be “No Firearms (Guns)...” rather than “No Guns, Other Firearms...” Forms for the respondent have also been revised to include firearm parts and ammunition as items that must be surrendered, in addition to firearms.²

AB 1621

Effective on June 30, 2022 (Link B), AB 1621 adds a definition of “firearm” under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act that includes firearm parts, specifically receivers, frames, and “firearm precursor parts” as defined under Penal Code section 16531(a). The change is intended to include “ghost guns” (unserialized and untraceable firearms that can be bought online and assembled at home) in the items that restrained people cannot possess and must surrender.³ This means that a restrained person may not have these parts or homemade firearms, for the duration of the order. AB 1621 was enacted as an urgency statute, and therefore went into effect immediately upon approval by the Governor on June 30, 2022. AB 1621 superseded AB 1057 (Petrie-Norris; Stats. 2021, ch. 682), which would have also added firearm parts to the definition of firearm under the Family Code. A proposal to implement AB 1057 was included as part of this proposal that was released for public comment on April 8, 2022. The committees believe that the same changes to the forms needed to implement AB 1057 would be appropriate to implement AB 1621.

This new definition of firearm will also apply to gun violence, juvenile, other civil, and criminal restraining orders. Because this bill impacts several protective order forms series, this committee worked with the Civil and Small Claims Advisory Committee to harmonize the changes to the extent possible. Both committees, and the Criminal Law Advisory Committee, recommend referring to receivers, frames, and unfinished receivers and frames as “firearm parts” rather than “firearms” or “firearm precursor parts.” The committees also propose using the nomenclature “ghost guns” on the information forms.

³ Assem. Com. On Public Safety Rep. on Assem. Bill No. 1621 (2021-2022 Reg. Sess.) as amended March 24, 2022 pp. 5-7.

Proof of Firearms Turned In, Sold, or Stored (form DV-800/JV-252) would be revised to include the new provisions about firearm parts from AB 1621 and the additional requirement to surrender ammunition resulting from SB 320. The form would also be renamed Receipt for Firearms, Firearm Parts, and Ammunition and renumbered as form DV-800/JV-270. Similar revisions would be made to the current How Do I Turn In, Sell, or Store My Firearms? (form DV-800-INFO/JV-252-INFO), including renaming the form to How Do I Turn In, Sell, or Store Firearms, Firearm Parts, and Ammunition? and renumbering it to DV-800-INFO/JV-270-INFO.

For form DV-800/JV-270, the committees propose reformatting the sections completed by law enforcement and licensed gun dealers.⁴ The changes to these sections would allow the agency or dealer to attach a document, listing some or all items surrendered. While somewhat different from the format that was circulated, this change is based on feedback from law enforcement and a licensed gun dealer that in most, if not all situations, completing a separate non-Judicial Council form is always required when providing the receipt. For law enforcement, each agency likely has its own property receipt form that must be completed. And for licensed gun dealers, the Department of Justice requires dealers to complete and submit a specific form anytime they receive a firearm. Making it clear on the Judicial Council form that a separate document can be used to list surrendered items will make it easier for law enforcement and licensed gun dealers to complete this form. In the event that an officer or a licensed gun dealer wants to list some or all surrendered items directly on form DV-800/JV-270, they can do so at item 6. If items are listed at item 6, the officer or dealer should indicate the action taken for each item surrendered (i.e., firearm stored, sold to dealer, or to be destroyed by law enforcement agency). This additional information may be helpful to the court, especially when parties have ongoing matters like child custody.

SB 374

Effective January 1, 2022, SB 374 (Link C) adds “reproductive coercion” as a form of coercive control under Family Code section 6320. To implement SB 374, the committee recommends revising the request form, two order forms, and an information form to include examples of reproductive coercion.⁵ An example of the new language and how it would appear on the temporary restraining order is provided below:

⁴For DV-800/JV-270, item 4 for law enforcement officer, and item 5 for licensed gun dealer.

⁵ See form DV-100, item 5; form DV-110, item 7; form DV-130, item 8; and page 2 of form DV-500-INFO.

9 Order to Not Abuse ☐ Not requested ☐ Denied until the hearing ☐ Granted as follows:

You must not do the following things to the person in ① and any person listed in ③:

- Harass, attack, strike, threaten, assault (sexually or otherwise), hit, follow, stalk, molest, destroy personal property, keep under surveillance, impersonate (on the internet, electronically, or otherwise), block movements, annoy by phone or other electronic means (including repeatedly contact), or disturb the peace.
- "Disturb the peace" means to destroy someone's mental or emotional calm. This can be done directly or indirectly, such as through someone else. This can also be done in any way, such as by phone, over text, or online. Disturbing the peace includes coercive control.
- "Coercive control" means a number of acts that unreasonably limit the free will and individual rights of any person protected by this restraining order. Examples include isolating them from friends, relatives, or other support; keeping them from food or basic needs; controlling or keeping track of them, including their movements, contacts, actions, money, or access to services; and making them do something by force, threat, or intimidation, including threats based on actual or suspected immigration status. Coercive control includes reproductive coercion meaning controlling someone's reproductive choices, such as using force, threat, or intimidation to pressure someone to be or not be pregnant, and to control or interfere with someone's contraception, birth control, pregnancy, or access to related health information.

SB 24

Effective January 1, 2023, SB 24 (Link D) would allow the court, when granting a domestic violence restraining order, to restrict a parent's access to certain information regarding their child, including health and school records. It would also require providers of health care, daycare, and educational or extracurricular activities to have protocols in place to properly safeguard the child's information when these orders are issued. To implement SB 24, the committee proposes adding an item on the child custody and visitation request form and a parallel item on the order form.⁶ Additionally, the order form would provide information directed at the provider, notifying the provider of their obligation under the new law to refrain from releasing records after the court has issued the order. Information was also added to form DV-530-INFO, to direct the petitioner of the restraining order to provide a copy of the order to providers ordered to safeguard the child information. An example of the new language on order form DV-140 is provided below:

⁶ See form DV-105, item 7, and form DV-140, item 5.

5 ☐ Stop Access to Children's School, Health, and Other Information

a. The person in (2) must not access or have access to the records or information for:

☐ All the children listed in (3).

☐ Only the children listed here (names):

b. From the following (check all that apply):

☐ Medical, dental, and mental health providers

☐ School and daycare providers

☐ Extracurricular activity providers, including summer camps and sports

☐ Child's employers (including volunteer and unpaid positions)

☐ Other (describe):

! If you are a provider listed above, you must not release information or records regarding the children listed in (5)a to the person in (2).

SB 538

Effective January 1, 2022, SB 538 (Link E) provides that parties and witnesses in a domestic violence or gun violence restraining order proceeding may appear remotely on a petition for a restraining order. It also provides that courts must provide e-filing as an option for filing domestic violence and gun violence restraining orders effective July 1, 2023. Revisions to a number of existing forms are recommended to provide notice of the option to appear remotely.⁷ In addition, form DV-505-INFO directs the person seeking a restraining order to check with their local court if they are interested in e-filing their request.

AB 277

Assembly Bill 277 (Link F) requires the council to include information about the California Secretary of State's Safe at Home program on form DV-500-INFO, by January 1, 2023. The following information has been added to form DV-500-INFO, on page 3: "If you are a victim of domestic violence or live with a victim of domestic violence, there is a special program called Safe At Home that you can apply for. It is a free program that would help you keep your address private. To learn more about the program, go to: <https://sos.ca.gov/registries/safe-home>. Note that it may take several weeks to be approved." A Safe at Home address was also added as a potential address on page 1 of the request (form DV-100) and the response (form DV-120).

Other changes to improve the forms

Forms DV-105 and DV-140

The committee recommends a number of changes to the Child Custody and Visitation forms. In the proposal circulated for comment, the committee proposed new layouts for the custody and visitation items, and sought specific comment on whether these new layouts would be easier for SRLs to understand and complete. Most commenters who responded to these questions indicated that the new layouts were helpful and easier to understand. One commenter stated that the new layouts are even easier for attorneys. The committee agrees and recommends adopting the new layouts, reflected at items 9, 12b, and 13b of form DV-105.

During the comment period, the draft version of form DV-105 that was included in the proposal circulated for comment was user-tested. Feedback showed some confusion with the organization of the form, specifically how the different sections (no visitation order vs. travel restrictions) relate to one another. One user also expressed confusion over presenting requests in the first person (e.g., “I ask that the person in 2 have no visitation with the children”). Based on the feedback from user-testing, the committee has made several further changes to form DV-105, including reorganizing the items and asking questions in a yes/no format rather than stating the requests in the first person.

The orders on form DV-140 would parallel the requests on form DV-105. Because form DV-140 would include supervised visitation and exchange orders to mirror form DV-105, form DV-150 would no longer be needed. As a result, the committee recommends revoking form DV-150.

New Form DV-125

The committee proposes a new attachment form, to allow the proposed restrained person to respond to any child custody and visitation orders requested by the petitioner. This new form would be a mandatory form and if completed would be attached to the response form (form DV-120).

New Form DV-105(A)

This new form would be used by the petitioner to list the residence history for children who have not lived together during the last five years. This would be different than form DV-105 which only provides space for the petitioner to list the residence history for children who have lived together for the last five years. Form DV-105(A) could also be used as an attachment to response form DV-125, if the respondent does not agree with the residence history for children listed by the petitioner.

Priority of Enforcement sections on forms DV-110 and DV-130

Changes were made to the Priority of Enforcement language on the temporary restraining order and restraining order after hearing.⁸ This language acts as an instruction to law enforcement in the event that there are conflicting restraining orders in effect at the same time. This committee worked with other advisory committees on this language to ensure that the instructions are consistent across restraining and protective order forms. One commenter noted that this section, while directed at law enforcement, would also be helpful for litigants to know. In a future cycle, the committee will consider whether additional changes to this section could be made to make the information more accessible to self-represented litigants.

In addition to including revisions to the firearms language, the instructions on the second page have been reformatted so that any content translated into Spanish now appears on the right side of the form, while the English content appears on the left. This committee recommends this format as easier to read for parties with limited English proficiency, and it parallels other plain language bi-lingual forms recently approved by the council.

Information forms

Several of the information forms have also been significantly revised to improve usability. Forms DV-120-INFO and DV-505-INFO are now organized into “parts” to reflect the different parts of the court process (e.g., filing forms, preparing for court date). Separating the entire process into pieces is a strategy often used by self-help centers and other providers to make the information more digestible for SRLs. The committee believes these changes will make the content easier to understand.

Policy implications

In addition to implementing legislative changes, this recommendation helps implement Goal I, “Access, Fairness, and Diversity,” of the Judicial Council’s strategic plan by helping to make forms easier to complete and understand for SRLs. Additionally, changes to the forms were based on user-testing and feedback from service providers, consistent with Goal IV of the strategic plan to provide the highest quality of justice and service to the public.

Comments

This proposal was released for public comment from April 8 through May 13, 2022. Ten commenters responded to the proposal. One agreed with the proposal, four agreed if modified, and five did not indicate a position; no commenters disagreed with the proposal. Commenters were the Superior Courts of Orange, Riverside, and San Diego Counties; the Joint Rules Subcommittee of the Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee and the Court Executives Advisory Committee; the California Partnership to End Domestic Violence; the Family Violence Appellate Project; the Giffords Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence; the Harriett Buhai Center for Family Law; the Orange County Bar Association; and one individual.

The committee thanks commenters for taking the time to respond to this proposal. In general, commenters supported many of the changes. Some of the more significant comments are provided below, including the responses to specific comments sought by the committee. All comments and the committee’s responses are provided in the attached chart of comments at pages 109–171.

Use of term “prohibited items”

The committee received a suggestion to not use the term “prohibited items” on the order forms to describe firearms, firearm parts, and ammunition. The committee considered this suggestion but rejected it. Because of SB 320, there are a number of additional orders that must be included related to firearms, firearm parts, and ammunition. Using the term “prohibited items” makes it easier to explain all the requirements that the restrained person must follow. The committee believes that using the term “prohibited items” does not create any ambiguity on what the term includes, as the order clearly states what the term includes.⁹

Method of notice to law enforcement and prosecuting agency

Another comment relating to SB 320 was a concern with courts notifying law enforcement or prosecuting agency by a method that would not be immediate, such as by mail. The committee agreed with this comment, and recommends that courts provide notice quickly such as by fax, email, or other electronic means.¹⁰ The committee believes that this change will not be an undue burden as many courts already have a process for notify law enforcement of a restraining order (e.g., sending restraining order to law enforcement to enter restraining order into the CLETS).

Additional information about child custody

Commenters suggested that information involving custody and visitation be included either on form DV-105 or on an information form. This could include information about the requirements under Family Code section 3044, supervised visitation and exchanges, and impact of noncompliance with firearm relinquishment orders on custody. The committee will consider creating a new information form specifically on issues related to child custody and visitation in a future cycle.

The committee sought specific comment on a number of issues. Commenters’ responses are summarized below.

Would it be helpful or relevant for courts to know whether a specific firearm or other prohibited item was stored or seized by law enforcement (see page 4 of form DV-800/JV-270)?

All commenters who responded indicated that it would be helpful or relevant for courts to have this information. Based on feedback from law enforcement, the committee recommends changing “seized” to “to be destroyed.” In other words, law enforcement can either store or destroy firearms or ammunition, while licensed gun dealers can store or buy these items.

Are the new layouts for the child custody and visitation sections easier for SRLs to understand and complete?

As stated above, most commenters who responded indicated “yes.” The committee agrees and recommends using the new layouts on forms DV-105 and DV-140.

Are there other examples of reproductive coercion that should be listed in item 5 of form DV-100, instead of the proposed example?

Most commenters believed that the proposed example was sufficient, while two commenters suggested changes to the example. The committee accepted both suggested revisions so that the example now reads, “tried to control/interfere with your contraception, birth control, pregnancy, or access to health information.”

⁹ See form DV-110, item 5b, and form DV-130, item 7b.

Should language to implement Senate Bill 654 be included on the domestic violence restraining order forms?

Some commenters answered “yes” while another commenter voiced concern over the language being too difficult or detailed for parties to understand. Senate Bill 654 provides an affirmative duty on the court to provide its reasons for granting unsupervised visits to a person accused of abuse, either on the record or in writing. As such, the committee proposes to include space on order form DV-140 for the judicial officer to indicate whether it is providing the information orally on the record, or on the form itself.¹¹ The committee also recommends adding a similar item under the custody section for the judge if sole or joint custody is granted to the restrained person.¹²

Alternatives considered

New forms and changes to the existing forms are necessary to conform to newly enacted laws. The committee did not consider taking no action as this would result in inaccurate and incomplete forms.

One change contemplated by the committee was to combine existing form DV-105, Request for Child Custody and Visitation Orders, and form DV-108, Request for Order: No Travel With Children, into one form. The committee believed that combining these two forms would give SRLs better access to the additional remedies to prevent child abduction (e.g., posting a bond, notifying consulate) combined on this form. As stated above, the proposed form DV-105 circulated for comment was user-tested. Results showed that combining the additional child abduction orders was confusing to users. For example, one user noted that the “no travel with children” order seemed sufficient to prevent against child abduction and could not understand why the other orders to prevent child abduction would be needed. Users also spent about 30 minutes to complete the one form. Based on user-testing results, the committee no longer recommends combining these two forms. The committee does recommend some minor changes to forms DV-108 and DV-145 to make the forms clearer and easier to understand, including retitling form DV-108 to Request for Orders to Prevent Child Abduction and retitling form DV-145 to Order to Prevent Child Abduction. These new titles better describe the orders contained on these two forms.

To implement the new requirement to notify a prosecuting agency of non-compliance with firearms and ammunition restrictions, the committee considered including on the order forms that the court has up to two days to provide notice.¹³ The committee rejected this and recommends the alternative of a simpler order which states that the court will immediately notify the prosecuting agency of the non-compliance. While courts still have up to two days to provide notice under Family Code section 6389(c)(4), the committee believes that the language proposed ¹¹ See form DV-140, item 10a.

¹² See form DV-140, item 6c.

¹³ Family Code section 6389(c)(4).

is easier to understand and effectively communicates to the restrained person that notification will happen quickly.

Fiscal and Operational Impacts

Commenting courts noted anticipated costs for implementing new and newly revised forms, including staff and judicial officer training, changes to docket codes in case management systems, and updates to paper forms packets, online forms, and tools. Two courts and the Joint Rules Subcommittee indicated that three months for implementation would not be sufficient. One court responded that three months would be sufficient, provided that the final forms are available three months before January 1, 2023. Given the importance and safety issues associated with the new laws, specifically Senate Bill 320, the committee does not recommend delaying implementation of this proposal.

(b) — Purpose

~~This rule addresses situations in which information is presented to the court about firearms and provides the court with options for appropriately addressing the issue. This rule is intended to:~~

- ~~(1) — Assist courts issuing domestic violence protective orders in determining whether a restrained person has a firearm in or subject to his or her immediate possession or control.~~
- ~~(2) — Assist courts that have issued domestic violence protective orders in determining whether a restrained person has complied with the court's order to relinquish, store, or sell the firearm under Family Code section 6389(c).~~

(c) — Firearm determination

~~When relevant information is presented to the court at any noticed hearing that a restrained person has a firearm, the court must consider that information to determine, by a preponderance of the evidence, whether the person subject to a protective order as defined in Family Code section 6218 or Welfare and Institutions Code section 213.5 has a firearm in or subject to his or her immediate possession or control in violation of Family Code section 6389.~~

(d) — Determination procedures

- ~~(1) — In making a determination under this rule, the court may consider whether the restrained person filed a firearm relinquishment, storage, or sales receipt or if an exemption from the firearm prohibition was granted under Family Code section 6389(h).~~
- ~~(2) — The court may make the determination at any noticed hearing when a domestic violence protective order is issued, at a subsequent review hearing,~~

1 or at any subsequent family or juvenile law hearing while the order remains 2 in effect.

4 (3) — If the court makes a determination that the restrained person has a firearm in 5 violation of Family Code section 6389, the court must make a written record
6 of the determination and provide a copy to any party who is present at the 7 hearing and, upon request, to any party not present at the hearing.

9 (e) — Subsequent review hearing

- 10
11 (1) — When presented with information under (c), the court may set a review
12 hearing to determine whether a violation of Family Code section 6389 has 13 taken place.
15 (2) — The review hearing must be held within 10 court days after the noticed
16 hearing at which the information was presented. If the restrained person is not 17 present when the court sets the review hearing, the protected person must 18 provide notice of the review hearing to the restrained person at least 2 court
19 days before the review hearing, in accordance with Code of Civil Procedure
20 414.10, by personal service or by mail to the restrained person's last known 21 address.
23 (3) — The court may for good cause extend the date of the review hearing for a 24 reasonable period or remove it from the calendar.
25
26 (4) — The court must order the restrained person to appear at the review hearing.
27
28 (5) — The court may conduct the review hearing in the absence of the protected
29 person.
30
31 (6) — Nothing in this rule prohibits the court from permitting a party to appear by 32 telephone under California Rules of Court, rule 5.9.

33
34 (f) — Child custody and visitation

- 35
36 (1) — If the court determines that the restrained person has a firearm in violation of 37 Family Code section 6389, the court must consider that determination when 38 deciding whether the restrained person has overcome the presumption in 39 Family Code section 3044.
40
41 (2) — An order for custody or visitation issued at any time during a family law
42 matter must be made in a manner that ensures the health, safety, and welfare
43 of the child and the safety of all family members, as specified in Family Code

1 section 3020. The court must consider whether the best interest of the child,
2 based on the circumstances of the case, requires that any visitation or custody
3 arrangement be limited to situations in which a third person, specified by the 4 court, is present, or that visitation or custody be suspended or denied, as 5 specified in Family Code section 6323(d).

7 (3) — An order for visitation issued at any time during a juvenile court matter must 8 not jeopardize the safety of the child, as specified in Welfare and Institutions
9 Code section 362.1.

11 (g) — Other orders
12

13 (1) — The court may consider a determination that the restrained person has a 14 firearm in violation of Family Code section 6389 in issuing:
15

16 (A) — An order to show cause for contempt under section 1209(a)(5) of the 17 Code of Civil Procedure for failure to comply with the court's order to 18 surrender or sell a firearm; or 19

20 (B) — An order for money sanctions under section 177.5 of the Code of Civil 21 Procedure.

23 (2) — This rule should not be construed to limit the court's power to issue orders it
24 is otherwise authorized or required to issue.

26 Advisory Committee Comment
27

28 When issuing a family or juvenile law domestic violence protective order as defined in Family
29 Code section 6218 or Welfare and Institutions Code section 213.5, ex parte or after a noticed 30 hearing, the court is required to order a restrained person "to relinquish any firearm in [that 31 person's] immediate possession or control or subject to [that person's] immediate possession or 32 control." (Fam. Code, § 6389(c)(1).) Several mandatory Judicial Council forms — Temporary
33 Restraining Order (form DV 110), Restraining Order After Hearing (form DV 130), and Notice
34 of Hearing and Temporary Restraining Order — Juvenile (form JV 250) — include mandatory
35 orders in bold type that the restrained person must sell to or store with a licensed gun dealer or 36 turn in to a law enforcement agency any guns or other firearms within his or her immediate 37 possession or control within 24 hours after service of the order and must file a receipt with the 38 court showing compliance with the order within 48 hours of receiving the order. California law
39 requires personal service of the request for and any temporary protective order at least five days
40 before the hearing, unless the court issues an order shortening time for service. Therefore, by the 41 date of the hearing, the restrained person should have relinquished, stored, or sold his or her 42 firearms and submitted a receipt to the court.

1 ~~Courts are encouraged to develop local procedures to calendar firearm relinquishment review~~
2 ~~hearings for restrained persons.~~

4 ~~Section (f) of this rule restates existing law on the safety and welfare of children and family~~
5 ~~members and recognizes the safety issues associated with the presence of prohibited firearms.~~

7 ~~Although this rule does not require the court to compel a restrained person to testify, the court~~
8 ~~may wish to advise a party of his or her privilege against self incrimination under the Fifth~~
9 ~~Amendment to the United States Constitution. The court may also consider whether to grant use~~
10 ~~immunity under Family Code section 6389(d).~~

Certificate of Compliance With VAWA

This temporary protective order meets all “full faith and credit” requirements of the Violence Against Women Act, 18 U.S.C. section 2265 (1994) (VAWA), upon notice of the restrained person. This court has jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter; the restrained person has been or will be afforded notice and a timely opportunity to be heard as provided by the laws of this jurisdiction. This order is valid and entitled to enforcement in each jurisdiction throughout the 50 states of the United States, the District of Columbia, all tribal lands, and all U.S. territories, commonwealths, and possessions and shall be enforced as if it were an order of that jurisdiction.

Warnings and Notices to the Restrained Person in ②

Your Address to Receive Court Orders

If the judge makes a restraining order at the hearing (court date), which has the same orders as in this Temporary Restraining Order, you will get a copy of that order by mail at your last known address, which is written in ② on page 1. If your address was not listed on this form or is incorrect, contact the court. If you did not attend your hearing and want to know if the judge granted a restraining order against you, contact the court.

Child Custody, Visitation, and Support

- Child custody and visitation: If you do not attend your hearing (court date), the judge can make custody and visitation orders for your children without hearing from you.
- Child support: The judge can order child support based on the income of both parents. The judge can also have that support taken directly from a parent's paycheck. Child support can be a lot of money, and usually you have to pay until the child is age 18. File and serve form FL-150, Income and Expense Declaration, or form FL-155, Financial Statement \(Simplified\), if you want the judge to have information about your finances. Otherwise, the court may make support orders without hearing from you.
- Spousal support: File and serve form FL-150, Income and Expense Declaration, so the judge will have information about your finances. Otherwise, the court may make support orders without hearing from you.

Firearms (Guns), Firearm Parts, and Ammunition

Under California law, you cannot have any firearms (guns), certain firearm parts, or ammunition. (Family Code sections 6216 and 6389(a)). Ask the court for information on how to properly turn in, sell, or store these items in your city or county. You can also contact your local police department for instructions.

This is a Court Order.

Instructions for Law Enforcement

This order is effective when made. It is enforceable by any law enforcement agency that has received the order, is shown a copy of the order, or has verified its existence on the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS). If the law enforcement agency has not received proof of service on the restrained person, and the restrained person was not present at the court hearing, the agency shall advise the restrained person of the terms of the order and then shall enforce it. Violations of this order are subject to criminal penalties.

Duties of Officer Serving This Order

The officer who serves this order on the Restrained Person must do the following:

- Ask if the Restrained Person is in possession of any of the prohibited items listed in ⑥, or has custody or control of any that they have not already turned in.
- Order the Restrained Person to immediately surrender to you all prohibited items.
- Issue a receipt to the Restrained Person for all prohibited items that have been surrendered.
- Complete a proof of personal service and file it with the court. You may use form DV-200 for this purpose. Within one business day of service, submit the proof of service directly into the California Restraining and Protective Order System (CARPOS), including the serving officer's name and law enforcement agency.

Arrest Required if Order Is Violated

If an officer has probable cause to believe that the restrained person had notice of the order and has disobeyed the order, the officer must arrest the restrained person. (Penal Code sections 836(c)(1), 13701(b).) A violation of the order may be a violation of Penal Code section 166 or 273.6.

If the Protected Person Contacts the Restrained Person

Even if the protected person invites or consents to contact with the restrained person, the orders remain in effect and must be enforced. The protected person cannot be arrested for inviting or consenting to contact with the restrained person. The orders can be changed only by another court order. (Penal Code section 13710(b).)

Child Custody and Visitation

Child custody and visitation orders are listed on form DV-140 or another attached form. If the judge made these orders, look at items ⑩ and ⑪ of this order to see if the judge granted an exception for brief and peaceful contact with the person in ① as needed to follow court-ordered visits. Contact by the person in ② that is not brief and peaceful is a violation of this order. Forms DV-100 and DV-105 are not orders. Do not enforce them.

This is a Court Order.

Conflicting Orders—Priorities for Enforcement

If more than one restraining order has been issued protecting the protected person from the restrained person, the orders must be enforced in the following priority (see Penal Code section 136.2 and Family Code sections 6383(h)(2), 6405(b)):

1. Emergency Protective Order (EPO): If one of the orders is an Emergency Protective Order (form EPO-001), provisions (e.g., stay away order) that are more restrictive than in the other restraining/protective orders must be enforced. Provisions of another order that do not conflict with the EPO must be enforced.
2. No-Contact Order: If a restraining/protective order includes a no-contact order, the no-contact order must be enforced. Item ⑩ is an example of a no-contact order.
3. Criminal Protective Order (CPO): If none of the orders include an EPO or a no-contact order, the most recent CPO must be enforced. (Family Code sections 6383(h)(2) and 6405(b).) Additionally, a CPO issued in a criminal case involving charges of domestic violence, Penal Code sections 261, 261.5, or former 262, or charges requiring sex offender registration must be enforced over any civil court order. (Penal Code section 136.2(e)(2).) All provisions in the civil court order that do not conflict with the CPO must be enforced.
4. Civil Restraining Orders: If there is more than one civil restraining order (e.g., domestic violence, juvenile, elder abuse, civil harassment), then the order that was issued last must be enforced. Provisions that do not conflict with the most recent civil restraining order must be enforced.

DV-120-INFO How Can I Respond to a Request for Domestic Violence Restraining Order?

I was served with form DV-100, DV-109, or DV-110. What does this mean?

Someone has asked for a domestic violence restraining order against you. On the forms, you are the "person in ②" and the person who wants a restraining order against you is listed in ① on all the forms.

Form DV-100: This form has all the orders that the person in ① has asked the judge to order.

Form DV-109: Your court hearing (court date) is listed on this form. You should attend the court hearing if you do not agree to the orders requested. If you do not attend, the judge can make orders against you without hearing from you.

Form DV-110: If you were served with form DV-110, it means that the judge granted a temporary restraining order against you. You must follow the orders.

What is a Domestic Violence Restraining Order?

It is a court order that can help protect people who have been abused by someone they have been intimate with, or are closely related to. To be eligible, the person asking for the restraining order must be:

- Someone you date or used to date
- A spouse, ex-spouse, registered domestic partner, or ex-domestic partner
- Someone you live or lived with (more than a roommate)
- Your parent, sibling, child, grandparent, or grandchild related by blood, marriage, or adoption

What can a restraining order do?

A restraining order can include orders for you to:

- Not contact or harm the protected person, including children or others listed as protected people
- Stay away from all protected people and places
- Not have any firearms (guns), firearm parts, or ammunition. This includes homemade or untraceable guns, like "ghost guns."
- Move out of the place that you share with the protected person
- Follow custody and visitation orders
- Pay child support
- Pay spousal support
- Pay debt for property
- Give control of property (examples: cell phone, car, home) to the person asking for protection.

What if I have children with the person asking for a restraining order?

A restraining order can include orders for your children, including listing them as protected persons. It can also include child custody and visitation orders and orders to limit your ability to travel with your children.

How long does the order last?

If the judge granted a temporary restraining order (form DV-110), it will last until the hearing date. At your court hearing, the judge will decide whether to extend the order or cancel the order. The judge can extend the order for up to five years. Custody, visitation, child support, and spousal support orders can last longer than five years and they do not end when the restraining order ends.

What do I do next?

Part 1: Turn in or sell prohibited items

If there is a temporary restraining order against you (see form DV-110), then you must immediately turn in, sell, or store any prohibited items you have or own. Prohibited items include:

- Firearms, including any handgun, rifle, shotgun, and assault weapon
- Firearm parts include any receiver, frame, or unfinished receiver/frame
- Ammunition, including bullets, shells, cartridges, and clips

You must then prove to the court that you've complied with the orders. Bring form DV-800/JV-270, Receipt for Firearms, Firearm Parts, and Ammunition, to a gun dealer or law enforcement when you turn in your items. After DV-800/JV-270 is complete, file it with the court. You may ask the court for information on how to turn in, sell, or store these items in your city or county. You can also read form DV-800-INFO/JV-270-INFO, How Do I Turn In, Sell, Or Store My Firearms, Firearm Parts, and Ammunition?

Part 2: Respond in writing (optional)

"Respond" means to let the judge and the other side know whether you agree or disagree with the request for restraining order, and why. Responding in writing is optional and there is no penalty if you don't. If you need more time to prepare for your case, talk to a lawyer or self-help center staff before you file a response.

If you want to respond in writing, complete form DV-120, Response to Request for Domestic Violence Restraining Order. After you complete the form, file it with the court. There is no court fee to file this form. Then "serve" the form on the person asking for the restraining order. "Serve" means to have someone 18 years old or older mail a copy to the person asking for the restraining order. You cannot be the one to mail your papers. The person who mails your form must fill out form DV-250, Proof of Service by Mail. After form DV-250 is completed, file it with the court.

Part 3: Get ready and go to your court hearing

Your court hearing is listed on form DV-109, Notice of Court Hearing. You have the option of attending your hearing in-person or remotely (by phone, or videoconference if available). For information on how to attend your hearing remotely, go to the court's website. Some courts may require advance notice. At the hearing, you and the other side will have the opportunity to tell your side of the story. For more information, read form DV-520-INFO, Get Ready for the Restraining Order Court Hearing. If you need more time to prepare your case, you may ask the judge for a new court date. The judge will decide whether to grant your request. Read form DV-115-INFO, How to Ask For a New Hearing Date, for more information. Note that if the judge does give you a new court date and if there is a temporary restraining order against you, the judge will usually extend the temporary restraining order until the next court date.

What if I need an interpreter?

You may use form INT-300 to request an interpreter or ask the clerk how you can request one.

What if I have a disability and need an accommodation?

You may use form MC-410 to request assistance. Contact the disability/ADA coordinator at your local court for more information.

Request for Accommodations

Assistive listening systems, computer-assisted real-time captioning, or sign language interpreter services are available if you ask at least five days before the hearing. Contact the clerk's office or go to www.courts.ca.gov/forms.htm for Disability Accommodation Request (form MC-410). (Civil Code section 54.8.)

DV-120-INFO How Can I Respond to a Request for Domestic Violence Restraining Order?

Do I need a lawyer?

It's possible to go through this process without a lawyer. But having a restraining order against you may have a lot of consequences, and you may want to hire a lawyer. If you don't hire a lawyer, you can get free help from your court's self-help center.

What if I was arrested or have criminal charges against me?

Anything you write in your court papers or say at a hearing for this case and for any criminal case can be used against you. Talk to a lawyer if you have any concerns about what you can do and say.

Where can I find a self-help center?

Free legal help is available at your court's self-help center. Find your local court's self-help center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp. Self-help center staff will not act as your lawyer but may be able to give you information to help you decide what to do in your case, and help you with the forms. Staff may also refer you to other agencies who may be able to help you.

What if I don't obey the order?

The police can arrest you. You can go to jail and pay a fine. You must still follow the orders even if you are not a U.S. citizen. If you are worried about your immigration status, talk to an immigration lawyer.

Can I use the restraining order to get divorced or end a domestic partnership?

No. These forms will not end your marriage or registered domestic partnership. You must file other forms to end your marriage or registered domestic partnership.

What if I want to leave the county or state?

You must still comply with the restraining order, including custody and visitation orders. The restraining order is valid anywhere in the United States.

What if I have more than one restraining order against me?

If the police are called to enforce the order, they will need to follow the rules of enforcement (see "Priority of Enforcement" listed on the back of form DV-110, DV-130, and CR-160). If you have questions about any of the orders against you, contact your local self-help center or talk to a lawyer. Find your local court's self-help center at:

www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp.

What if I am a victim or survivor of domestic violence?

The National Domestic Violence Hotline provides free and private safety tips. Help is available in over 100 languages. Visit online at www.thehotline.org or call 1-800-799-7233; 1-800-787-3224 (TTY).

What if I need a restraining order against the other person?

Do not use form DV-120 to request a domestic violence restraining order. For information on how to file your own restraining order, read form DV-505-INFO. You can also ask the court clerk about free or low-cost legal help.

Information about the court process is also available online

Certificate of Compliance With VAWA

This restraining (protective) order meets all “full faith and credit” requirements of the Violence Against Women Act, 18 U.S.C. section 2265 (1994) (VAWA) upon notice of the restrained person. This court has jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter; the restrained person has been or will be afforded notice and a timely opportunity to be heard as provided by the laws of this jurisdiction. This order is valid and entitled to enforcement in each jurisdiction throughout the 50 states of the United States, the District of Columbia, all tribal lands, and all U.S. territories, commonwealths, and possessions and shall be enforced as if it were an order of that jurisdiction.

Instructions for Law EnforcementStart Date and End Date of Orders

This order starts on the earlier of the following dates:

- The hearing date in item (5)(a) on page 2; or
- The date next to the judge’s signature on this page.

This order ends on the expiration date in (4). If no date is listed, they end three years from the hearing date.

Duties of Officer Serving This Order

The officer who serves this order on the Restrained Person must do the following:

- Ask if the Restrained Person is in possession of any of the prohibited items listed in (7)b, or has custody or control of any that they have not already turned in.
- Order the Restrained Person to immediately surrender to you all prohibited items.
- Issue a receipt to the Restrained Person for all prohibited items that have been surrendered.
- Complete a proof of personal service and file it with the court. You may use form DV-200 for this purpose.
- Within one business day of service, submit the proof of service directly into the California Restraining and Protective Order System (CARPOS), including the serving officer’s name and law enforcement agency.

Enforcing the Restraining Order in California

Any law enforcement officer in California who receives, sees, or verifies the orders on a paper copy, in the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS), or in an NCIC Protection Order File must enforce the orders.

Notice/Proof of Service

Law enforcement must first determine if the restrained person had notice of the orders. If notice cannot be verified, the restrained person must be advised of the terms of the orders. If the restrained person then fails to obey the orders, the officer must enforce them. (Family Code section 6383.)

Consider the restrained person “served” (notified) if:

- The officer sees a copy of the Proof of Service or confirms that the Proof of Service is on file; or
- The restrained person was at the restraining order hearing or was informed of the order by an officer. (Family Code section 6383; Penal Code section 836(c)(2).) An officer can obtain information about the contents of the order in the California Restraining and Protective Order System (CARPOS). (Family Code section 6381(b)-(c).)

This is a Court Order.

Arrest Required if Order Is Violated

If an officer has probable cause to believe that the restrained person had notice of the order and has disobeyed the order, the officer must arrest the restrained person. (Penal Code sections 836(c)(1), 13701(b).) A violation of the order may be a violation of Penal Code section 166 or 273.6.

If the Protected Person Contacts the Restrained Person

Even if the protected person invites or consents to contact with the restrained person, the orders remain in effect and must be enforced. The protected person cannot be arrested for inviting or consenting to contact with the restrained person. The orders can be changed only by another court order. (Penal Code section 13710(b).)

Child Custody and Visitation

Child custody and visitation orders are listed on form DV-140 or another attached form. If the judge made these orders, look at items 13 and 14 of this order to see if the judge granted an exception for brief and peaceful contact with the person in 1 as needed to follow court-ordered visits. Contact by the person in 2 that is not brief and peaceful is a violation of this order.

Conflicting Orders—Priorities for Enforcement

If more than one restraining order has been issued protecting the protected person from the restrained person, the orders must be enforced in the following priority (see Penal Code section 136.2 and Family Code sections 6383(h)(2), 6405(b)):

- Emergency Protective Order (EPO): If one of the orders is an Emergency Protective Order (form EPO-001), provisions (e.g., stay away order) that are more restrictive than in the other restraining/protective orders must be enforced. Provisions of another order that do not conflict with the EPO must be enforced.
- No-Contact Order: If a restraining/protective order includes a no-contact order, the no-contact order must be enforced. Item 13 is an example of a no-contact order.
- Criminal Protective Order (CPO): If none of the orders include an EPO or a no-contact order, the most recent CPO must be enforced. (Family Code sections 6383(h)(2) and 6405(b)). Additionally, a CPO issued in a criminal case involving charges of domestic violence, Penal Code sections 261, 261.5, or former 262, or charges requiring sex offender registration must be enforced over any civil court order. (Penal Code section 136.2(e)(2)). All provisions in the civil court order that do not conflict with the CPO must be enforced.
- Civil Restraining Orders: If there is more than one civil restraining order (e.g., domestic violence, juvenile, elderabuse, civil harassment), then the order that was issued last must be enforced. Provisions that do not conflict with the most recent civil restraining order must be enforced.

Can a Domestic Violence Restraining Order Help Me?

What is a “domestic violence restraining order”?

It is a court order that can help protect people who have been abused by someone they've had an intimate relationship with, are closely related to, or have lived with as more than just roommates.

How can a restraining order help me?

A judge can order the restrained person to:

- Not contact you, your children or relatives, or people you live with;
- Stay away from you, your children or relatives, or people you live with, your home, your job, etc.;
- Not have any firearms (guns, including "ghost guns"), firearm parts, or ammunition;
- Move out of a home that you live in;
- Obey child custody and visitation orders;
- Pay child support;
- Pay spousal support;
- Pay debt for property; and
- Give you control of property (examples: cell phone, car, home).

Does this request cost money to file?

No, filing this request with the court is free.

How long can a restraining order last?

If the judge makes a temporary order, it will last until your hearing date (court date). Your hearing is usually three weeks after you turn in your court papers. At your hearing, the judge will decide whether to grant you a long-term restraining order that can last up to five years.

How soon can I get the order?

If you decide to ask for a restraining order, you will need to complete court papers. Once you turn in your court papers, a judge will decide the same day or next business day on whether to grant you a temporary restraining order.

How old must I be to ask for one?

To ask for a restraining order on your own, you must be 12 years old or older. In some cases, the judge may ask that an adult (someone 18 years old or older), like a trusted relative, help you in your case.

What if I don't have a green card?

You can get a restraining order even if you are not a U.S. citizen. If you are worried about deportation, you may want to talk with an immigration lawyer.

Can a restraining order protect my children?

Yes, you can ask the judge to protect your children. If you are asking for a restraining order against someone you have children with, you can also ask the judge to make child custody and visitation orders. And if you think that the other parent might abduct (kidnap) your children, you can ask for orders to prevent kidnapping.

Can I use a restraining order to get divorced or terminate a registered domestic partnership?

No. These forms will not end your marriage or registered domestic partnership. You must file other forms to end your marriage or registered domestic partnership.

Am I eligible?

To qualify for a domestic violence restraining order, you must have a (1) required relationship and (2) show that the person you want a restraining order against has been abusive.

Required relationship

- Your spouse, ex-spouse, registered domestic partner, or ex-registered domestic partner;
- Someone you have a child with;
- Your parent, child, sibling, or grandparent (includes in-laws and step relationships);
- Someone you live with or used to live with (more than just roommates);

Abuse

Abuse can be spoken, written, or physical. It can be physical, sexual, or emotional. It includes threats to harm you or your family, stalking, harassment, destroying personal property, repeated contact, and disturbing the peace.

What does disturbing the peace mean?

It means to destroy someone's mental or emotional calm. Disturbing the peace includes coercive control. Coercive control means a number of acts that unreasonably limit the free will and individual rights of any person. Examples include:

- Isolating someone from their friends, relatives, or other support;
- Keeping them from food or basic needs;
- Controlling or keeping track of them, including their movements, contacts, actions, money, or access to services;
- Threats to immigration status;
- Making them do something that they don't want to do; and
- Controlling or interfering with someone's contraception (birth control, condoms); pregnancy or ability to become a parent; or access to health information.

What if I don't qualify for a domestic violence restraining order?

There are other kinds of restraining orders you can ask for. Here are some examples:

- Civil harassment order (can be used for neighbors, roommates, cousins, uncles, and aunts).
- Dependent adult or elder abuse restraining order (if you are at least 65 or a dependent adult).
- Gun violence restraining order (to prevent someone from hurting themselves or others with a firearm).

Note that all restraining orders include a firearms and ammunition restriction. A gun violence restraining order gives limited protection because it only restrains the person from having firearms and ammunition. To learn more about other kinds of restraining orders, go to: <https://selfhelp.courts.ca.gov/restraining-orders>.

How do I ask for a domestic violence restraining order?

See form DV-505-INFO, How to Ask for a Domestic Violence Restraining Order. The forms are available online at www.courts.ca.gov/forms. If you want a paper copy, go to any California courthouse. You can also check with your county's law library.

Will I have a court hearing (court date)?

Yes. The court will give you a day and time to attend court. If you want to attend court remotely (by phone or videoconference), go to the court's website to find out how to attend remotely. To learn more about what to expect at your hearing, read form DV-520-INFO, Get Ready for Your Restraining Order Court Hearing, or go to: <https://selfhelp.courts.ca.gov/prepare-your-restraining-order-court-date>.

Do I need a lawyer to make this request?

No, but this type of request can be hard to get through on your own. Free help may be available at your local court's self-help center. (See below.)

Where can I find a self-help center?

Find your local court's self-help center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp. Self-help center staff will not act as your lawyer but may be able to give you information to help you decide what to do in your case, and help you with the forms.

What if I need an interpreter?

If you decide to ask for a restraining order, you will need to talk to a judge. If you need an interpreter, use form INT-300 to request an interpreter or ask the court clerk how you can request one.

I have a disability. How can I get help?

You may use form MC-410 to request assistance. Contact the disability or ADA coordinator at your local court for more information.

Request for Accommodations

Assistive listening systems, computer-assisted real-time captioning, or sign language interpreter services are available if you ask at least five days before the hearing. Contact the clerk's office or go to www.courts.ca.gov/forms.htm for Disability Accommodation Request (form MC-410). (Civil Code section 54.8.)

Confidential Address Program

If you are a victim of domestic violence or live with a victim of domestic violence, there is a special program called Safe At Home that you can apply for. It is a free program that would help you keep your address private. To learn more about the program, go to:

<https://www.sos.ca.gov/registries/safe-home/>.

Note that it may take several weeks to be approved.

How to Ask for a Domestic Violence Restraining Order

Part 1: Complete court forms

You will need to complete at least three forms to ask for a domestic violence restraining order:

Required forms:

- Form DV-100;
- Form DV-109; and
- Form DV-110.

Optional forms:

If you have a child or children with the other side, you can ask for additional protection, like child custody orders. To make these requests, you must complete two more forms:

- Form DV-105; and
- Form DV-140.

If you want to ask for child support or spousal support, make the request on form DV-100 (see item (24) or (25)) and complete one more form:

- Form FL-150.

Most court forms are public documents. What does "public" mean?

When you file papers with the court, those papers become "public." This means that anyone may ask the court to see the information you put on your papers. Also, the person you are asking for protection from will see all the information on your court papers, because you will have to have these papers personally delivered to them. This is called "personal service," and more information is available on form DV-200-INFO, What Is "Proof of Personal Service"?

How old must I be to ask for my own restraining order against someone?

To ask for a restraining order, you must be 12 years old or older. In some cases, the judge may ask that an adult (someone 18 years old or older), like a trusted relative, help you in your case.

Tips for completing form DV-100

Required relationship

At item (3), you must have one of the listed relationships between you and the person you want protection from. If none apply, go to <https://selfhelp.courts.ca.gov/restraining-orders> for information on other types of restraining orders you might qualify for.

Describe the abuse

At items (5)–(7), you must describe the abuse that happened. This part is important, because a judge will decide whether to give you a restraining order based on the information you give. For more information of what abuse means under the law, see form DV-500-INFO, Can A Domestic Violence Restraining Order Help Me?

I don't want people to see my address

You may not want someone to be able to see certain information, like your address. You do not have to give the address to where you live on form DV-100, item (1). You can use a different address, like a friend's address or P.O. box. Just be sure to get the person's permission to use their address first, because any papers the court or other side mails to you will go to the address you list in item (1). And make sure that person will tell you right away if you get mail from the court.

I don't want people to see information I provide about a child (minor)

You can ask the court to make some of the information you provide about a child private (confidential). If the court makes information about a child private, the public will not be able to see this information on your court papers. See form DV-160-INFO for help with asking the court to make a child's information private.

What if the other side has firearms (guns) or ammunition?

In item (9), list information you have about any firearms (guns), firearm parts, or ammunition that the other side might own or have access to. This information is important to the judge. The judge can notify law enforcement about any firearms, including illegal or untraceable firearms called "ghost guns." Once notified, law enforcement must do what they can to get the firearms if there is a restraining order in place.

What does "Other orders" (item (14)) mean?

This section allows you to make any special requests that you need to prevent more abuse by the other side.

What is the difference between "Pay Debts Owed for Property (item (22)) and "Pay Expenses Caused by the Abuse (item (23))?"

If you want the other side to pay a debt owed for property, like a car or mortgage, you can make this request at item (22). If you want the other person to pay you back for damage that happened because of their abuse, like breaking your cellphone or for medical bills, you can make this request at item (23).

What is "Spousal Support" (item (25))?

If you are married to the person you want protection from or in a registered domestic partnership, you can ask a judge to order them to pay you spousal support. The amount of spousal support depends on different factors, including how much you make versus how much the other side makes. It is important to know that in California, you cannot get spousal support for "common law" marriages, where parties have lived like a married couple but never legally married. California does not recognize "common law" marriage.

What is a "Batterer Intervention Program" (item (27))?

In most cases, it is a year-long program that helps a person recognize abusive behavior so that they will stop the abuse. Unlike anger management programs, the goal of batterer intervention programs is to stop a person from using power and control in their relationships. If ordered to complete the program by a judge, the restrained person will have to pay program fees. The program will keep track of progress and attendance.

Part 2: File your court papers

Filing is when you turn in your completed court papers to the court. To file your court papers, you can call the court clerk to see find out which courthouse to go to. If you want to file online (e-file), check your local court's website for more information. To find your local court or their website, go to:

www.courts.ca.gov/find-my-court.htm.

Part 3: Get your papers from court

After you turn in your court papers, you will need to get them back from the court. Your papers will be ready the same day or the next business day. Ask the court clerk when your court papers will be ready. You may have to return to the courthouse to pick up your papers if the court cannot return them to you electronically. Look at your papers to see if the judge granted you a temporary restraining order, on form DV-110.

- ▶ If the judge granted you temporary protection and you want it to last longer, make sure you attend your court hearing (listed on form DV-109).
- ▶ If the judge did not grant you a temporary restraining order, the judge can grant you a restraining order at your court hearing (listed on form DV-109).

Part 4: Have someone serve your papers

You must have an adult personally give a copy of all your court papers to the person you want a restraining order against. It cannot be you or anyone listed on the restraining order. Serving papers can be a dangerous situation. If you want the sheriff to serve your papers, they will do so for free. For more information on service, read form DV-200-INFO, What Is "Proof of Personal Service"?

Part 5: Get ready for and go to your court hearing

At your court hearing, the judge will decide whether to grant you a long-term restraining order that can last up to five years. You have the option of attending your hearing in-person or remotely (by phone, or videoconference if available). For information on how to attend your hearing remotely, go to the court's website. Some courts may require advance notice. At the hearing, you and the other side will have the opportunity to tell your side of the story. For more information, read form DV-520-INFO, Get Ready for the Restraining Order Court Hearing. If you need more time to prepare your case, you may ask for a new court date. Read form DV-115-INFO, How to Ask For a New Hearing Date, for more information.

Information about the process is also available online

<https://selfhelp.courts.ca.gov/DV-restraining-order/process>.

Where can I find free help?

Free legal help is available at your court's self-help center. Find your local court's self-help center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp. Self-help center staff will not act as your lawyer but may be able to give you information to help you decide what to do in your case, and help you with the forms. Staff may also refer you to other agencies who may be able to help you.

Make arrangements before your court hearing

- If you or a witness wants to attend court remotely (by phone or videoconference)

Check the court's website as soon as possible to see what you need to do to attend remotely. You can use www.courts.ca.gov/find-my-court.htm to find your court's website.

- Court interpreter: If you need an interpreter, use form INT-300 to request an interpreter or ask the court clerk how you can request one. You can also use this form to ask for an interpreter for a witness.
- Childcare: Find childcare because court may take all morning or afternoon, even all day. Some courts have a Children's Waiting Room, a safe place for children to wait while parents are in court. You can check with your court in advance to see if this is available.
- Support person: You can have someone attend court with you. The person you bring cannot speak for you but can sit next to you when your case is called (if you attend in person). If you attend by videoconference, your support person can also attend with you.
- Disability accommodation: You may use form MC-410 to request assistance. Contact the disability/ADA coordinator at your local court for more information.

Request for Accommodations

Assistive listening systems, computer-assisted real-time captioning, or sign language interpreter services are available if you ask at least five days before the hearing. Contact the clerk's office or go to www.courts.ca.gov/forms.htm for Disability Accommodation Request (form MC-410). (Civil Code section 54.8.)

Bring evidence or witnesses to your court hearing

If you have evidence or witnesses, read the information below. Bringing evidence or witnesses is optional and not required. Your statements alone can be proof for your case. If you are the person asking for the restraining order you will have to convince the judge that abuse occurred. The judge will make a decision based on all evidence and statements made by both sides.

- Evidence: Evidence can include pictures, emails, medical records showing injuries, police reports, etc. If you have evidence, you will need to make it available to the judge and other side to see. Sometimes the judge cannot look at or consider certain documents. The judge will decide which documents can be included in your case. If you are attending court in person, bring three copies of your written evidence, if you have not already filed and served it on the other side. If you have evidence and want to attend your court date by phone or videoconference, contact your local self-help center for information on how to share your evidence with the judge and other side.
- Witnesses: You can ask the judge to allow witnesses to speak at your court hearing. If you have a lot of witnesses, you may need to complete paperwork before your court hearing. Ask your local self-help center for more information.

Tips for your court hearing

Plan what you want to say to the judge

It may help to plan out and make notes about what you want to say to the judge. If needed, you can use your notes for your court hearing. Read over the court papers in your case and write out anything else you want the judge to know. Focus on the facts and details that support your side of the story. Go over any papers you received from the other side. Try to understand what they are asking for and arguing in the case (their allegations). If you do not agree, tell the judge. Think about and write down how you want to defend against their arguments

Attend early and safely

Show up or call in to your hearing early. If you are attending online, practice using the technology, like Zoom, before your court date. If you are late, you may miss your case being called. If you might be late, try to call the court right away to let courtroom staff know that you will be late.

- ▶ If you attend in person, do not sit near or talk to the other person. If you are afraid of the other person, tell the officer who is in the courtroom.
- ▶ If you attend by videoconference, and you don't want the other side to see where you are or your phone number (if you call in), talk with an advocate about how to safely attend using videoconference. This may include using a virtual background or using another phone number to call in. You can contact the National Domestic Violence Hotline for free help. See page 4 for information.

Follow courtroom rules

Here are some common rules:

- Put your cellphone on silent mode, if you're attending in person.
- Do not eat or drink during your hearing, except for water.
- Do not wear a hat or sunglasses on your head.
- When speaking to the judge, call the judge "Your honor" or "judge."
- Don't interrupt anyone who is speaking.
- Wait until it's your turn to speak and let the judge know you want a chance to speak.

What will happen during my case?

The judge will give both sides time to speak

Usually, the judge asks the person who wants the restraining order to talk first. No matter who talks first, you will both get a chance to speak. Attending court can be difficult and stressful but it is important not to talk over anyone. If you have something to say and it is not your turn, let the person finish talking and then ask the judge for permission to speak.

The judge will reschedule your court hearing or make a decision

- ▶ There are a few reasons why the judge may have rescheduled your court date. This is called a continuance. Here are some examples:
 - Person asking for the restraining order did not serve the other side in time (by the deadline).
 - The judge needs to set aside more time to hear your case.
 - If the restrained person has not filed a response (form DV-120) and asks for more time to prepare for the case, the judge must grant their request if they ask for one at the first court date.

If the judge reschedules your court date, the judge will usually extend the temporary restraining order, if one was granted. If the judge reschedules your court date, make sure you get a new order (form DV-116, Order on Request to Continue Hearing).

- ▶ If the restraining order is denied, this means that the judge has decided that there was not enough evidence to prove that abuse happened. This means that your restraining order case is finished and any temporary protection expires.
- ▶ If the restraining order is granted, this means that the judge has decided that there is enough evidence to prove that abuse happened. You should go over the restraining order to make sure you understand all the orders. See the next page for information on next steps.

DV-520-INFOGet Ready For Your Restraining Order Court Hearing*What do I do after a restraining order is granted?

If you've had your day in court and the judge granted you a long-term restraining order, you may have a couple more steps to take. Make sure all steps are completed as soon as possible. If you do not, the police may not be able to enforce your restraining order.

Protected person:

- ① Your restraining order will be on form DV-130, Restraining Order After Hearing. If you don't have a form DV-130 that is signed by the judge, check with the clerk to see if one was filed. If it has, ask for a copy. If one has not been filed, you will need to fill out:
 - Form DV-130 (required).
 - Form DV-140, Child Custody and Visitation Order (required if court made orders for your children).
 - Form FL-342, Child Support Information and Order Attachment, or form FL-343, Spousal, Domestic Partner, or Family Support Order Attachment, if the judge orders child support or spousal support.
- ② Turn in your completed form(s) to the court clerk. The clerk will then give it to the judge to review and sign. You will need to pick it up once it is signed. Ask the court clerk when your forms will be ready. There is no fee for turning in this form, and you should receive some free copies.
- ③ Look at form DV-130 to see if the judge ordered you to serve the form by mail or in person. If you are ordered to serve the form by mail, this means your server only has to mail a copy of the restraining order. But, serving someone in person is always best. When you mail court papers, it may be hard to prove that the person actually received a copy especially if the person moves a lot. Learn more about service at: <https://selfhelp.courts.ca.gov/DV-restraining-order/serve-longterm-order>.

Restrained person:

- ① You must obey orders the judge makes. The orders will be on form DV-130, Restraining Order After Hearing. If you do not obey them, you could be arrested, or convicted of a crime.
- ② If you have any prohibited items (firearms (guns), firearm parts, ammunition), you must bring all items to a licensed gun dealer or police. For more information, read form DV-800-INFO/JV-270-INFO, How Do I Turn In, Sell, or Store My Firearms, Firearm Parts, and Ammunition? The information is also available online at: www.selfhelp.courts.ca.gov/respond-to-DV-restraining-order/obey-firearms-orders. Free help is also available at your local self-help center. Find your local court's self-help center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp.

Get Ready For Your Restraining Order Court Hearing

What if I have a child with the other side?

If you ask for child custody or visitation (parenting time) orders, the judge may have you meet with a court professional to see if you and the other parent can agree on parenting time. This process is called "mediation." You can ask to meet separately and not with the other side in your case. Ask the court staff how you can make this request. For more information on mediation, go to: www.selfhelp.courts.ca.gov/child-custody/what-to-expect-mediation.

What happens if I don't attend the court hearing?

- ▶ If you asked for a restraining order and you do not attend the hearing, any protection you have in this case will expire. If the other side attends the hearing and you don't, the judge could make some orders against you, like lawyer's fees. To get another restraining order, you would have to fill out and file a new set of forms. If you've changed your mind and no longer want a restraining order, talk with self-help center staff or a lawyer.
- ▶ If someone asked for a restraining order against you, and you do not attend the hearing, a judge may grant a restraining order against you without hearing your side. The order can last for up to five years, and can include orders regarding children or property that you have with the person asking for protection.

Information about the court process is also available online

<https://selfhelp.courts.ca.gov/DV-restraining-order/process>.

Where can I find a self-help center?

Find your local court's self-help center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp. Self-help center staff will not act as your lawyer but may be able to give you information to help you decide what to do in your case.

Where can I find other help?

The National Domestic Violence Hotline provides free and private safety tips. Help is available every day, 24 hours a day, and in over 100 languages. Visit online at www.thehotline.org or call 1-800-799-7233; 1-800-787-3224 (TTY).

DV-530-INFOHow to Enforce Your Restraining Order*Report a violation to the police

Now that you have a domestic violence restraining order, you may need to enforce it if the restrained person violates the order. Enforce usually means to call the police to report a violation. To have the police enforce your order, call 911. If the restrained person has firearms (guns), “ghost guns” (a homemade or unregistered gun), or other weapons, make sure to tell the police.

What can the police do?

The police can arrest the restrained person for violating the restraining order. Based on your report of the violation, the district attorney or prosecutor can charge the restrained person with a crime. If you have questions about a case or whether a criminal case was filed, you can call the District Attorney's Office in your county, or the county where the violation happened. The restrained person can go to jail or pay a fine if convicted of violating your restraining order.

Ask the judge to act on the violation

Violating the restraining order means that the restrained person did not obey the judge's order. This could have consequences for the restrained person. For example, if you have a child with the restrained person, a violation could affect the restrained person's parenting time with your child. You can ask the judge to change custody or visitation orders because of the violation. You can also ask the judge to order the restrained person to pay you or the court money as “sanctions” or to hold the restrained person “in contempt of court,” and the restrained person can be ordered to pay money to the court, do community service, and/or spend up to five days in jail per violation. For more information about what a judge can do, contact your local self-help center or talk to a lawyer. For more information about self-help centers, see page 2.

What form is my restraining order on?

Here are some examples:

- DV-130
- DV-110
- DV-730
- DV-116
- CR-160
- EPO-001

Keep a copy of your restraining order with you

You should have a copy of your restraining order with you at all times. Make sure it is the most recent restraining order and still in effect (not expired). If you have more than one, have a copy of each one. If you have a cellphone, use your cellphone to take a picture of all the pages so you always have proof of it. If the restrained person was not at the court hearing, make sure you have a copy of the proof of service form too. The proof of service proves that the restrained person knows about the restraining order and must follow the order.

What if the judge granted orders to protect my children?

You can give a copy of the restraining order to any place that your child will be. If the restrained person is not allowed to have access to your child's medical records, school records, or other information, make sure to let your child's providers know right away. It may be a good idea to change your passwords to any shared online accounts, and update your contact information with those providers.

Give copies of the order to other people

If you want other people to know about your restraining order and help you enforce it, give them a copy. This is optional and should only be done if it is safe to do so. Here are some examples:

- Your child's school or childcare, if your restraining order protects your child.
- Other people protected by your restraining order, when appropriate.
- Your employer, if you are worried about being harassed or abused at work.
- Local police department: Giving a copy to your local police department is optional because all law enforcement agencies have access to restraining orders through a law enforcement database.

Where can I find other help?

The National Domestic Violence Hotline provides free and private safety tips. Help is available every day, 24 hours a day, and in over 100 languages. Visit online at www.thehotline.org or call 1-800-799-7233; 1-800-787-3224 (TTY).

What if I have more than one restraining order against the same person?

Keep a copy of all active restraining orders with you. If you call the police to enforce the order, the police will need to follow the rules of enforcement (see "Priority of Enforcement" listed on the back of forms DV-110, DV-130, and CR-160). If you have questions about any of the orders, contact your local self-help center or talk to a lawyer.

Where can I find a self-help center?

Find your local court's self-help center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp. Self-help center staff will not act as your lawyer but may be able to give you information to help you decide what to do in your case, and help you with the forms.

DV-800-INFO/JV-270-INFO

How Do I Turn In, Sell, or Store My Firearms, Firearm Parts, and Ammunition?

What do I need to turn in, sell, or store?

You must turn in, sell, or store all of the following prohibited items that you have or own:

- Firearms, including any handgun, rifle, shotgun, and assault weapon;
- Firearm parts includes any receiver, frame, unfinished receiver, or unfinished frame (also called “ghost guns”); and
- Ammunition, including bullets, shells, cartridges, and clips.

How do I properly turn in, sell, or store the prohibited items?

You must take them to:

- Law enforcement, who will accept all prohibited items for safekeeping or to destroy, or
- A licensed gun dealer, who can buy or store your firearms. If you have firearm parts or ammunition, call ahead for more information.

When do I turn in, sell, or store prohibited items?

Immediately, if law enforcement asks you to.
Otherwise, within 24 hours of being served, or told by a judge to do so.

Can I give my prohibited items to family or friends?

No, only to law enforcement or a licensed gun dealer.
You cannot give your prohibited items to a family member, friend, or anyone else.

Do I have to pay a fee to store prohibited items?

You may have to pay a fee. Contact law enforcement or a licensed gun dealer about fees and whether they have space to store your items.

How do I take prohibited items to law enforcement?

Call your local law enforcement agency to ask about their procedures. They will give you specific instructions, like making sure your firearms are unloaded and in the trunk of the car. Take a copy of the restraining order with you. Do not bring your firearms to court.

If I turn in my firearms to law enforcement, how long will they keep them?

It depends. There are procedures for getting your firearms back after a restraining order expires. Ask the law enforcement agency.

After I give my firearms to law enforcement, can I change my mind?

Yes. You are allowed to make one sale through a licensed gun dealer. To do this, a licensed gun dealer must present a bill of sale to your local law enforcement agency. The law enforcement agency will give the licensed gun dealer the firearms you are selling.

How do I prove to the judge that I have complied with (obeyed) the orders?

- ① Bring a copy of form DV-800/JV-270, Receipt for Firearms, Firearm Parts, and Ammunition, with you, and ask the dealer or officer to complete and sign the form.
- ② File form DV-800/JV-270 with the court. Make sure you get two copies. All receipts must be filed with the court within 48 hours from the time you were served with the restraining order, unless the judge gave you another deadline.

Do I need to bring a copy of the receipt to anyone besides the judge?

Yes, if:

- ▶ Law enforcement served you with the restraining order, you must give them a copy of your receipt (example: form DV-800/JV-270). If you don't know who served you with the restraining order, ask the court clerk for a copy of the proof of service form for the restraining order. The law enforcement agency is listed on that form.
- ▶ You did not obey the order when you were supposed to, and the court notified law enforcement or a prosecuting attorney. (Tip: Look at forms DV-110, DV-130, or DV-820 to see if the court notified another agency. If the court did, give a copy of the receipt to the agencies listed on any of the forms).

Where can I find free help?

Free legal help is available at your court's self-help center. Find your local court's self-help center at www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp. Self-help center staff will not act as your lawyer but may be able to give you information to help you decide what to do in your case, and help you with the forms. Staff may also refer you to other agencies who may be able to help you.

A copy shall be filed with the court as soon as practicable after issuance. Also, the officer shall have the order entered into CLETS (CARPOS). The availability of an emergency protective order shall not be affected by the fact that the endangered person has vacated the household to avoid abuse. A law enforcement officer shall use every reasonable means to enforce an emergency protective order. A law enforcement officer who acts in good faith to enforce an emergency protective order shall not be held civilly or criminally liable.

This emergency protective order is effective when made. This order shall expire on the date and time specified in item 5 on the reverse. The provisions of this emergency protective order take precedence in enforcement over provisions of other existing protective orders between the same protected and restrained persons to the extent the provisions of this order are more restrictive. In other words, the provisions in this emergency protective order take precedence over the provisions in any other protective order, including a criminal protective order, if (1) the person to be protected is already protected by the other protective order, (2) the person to be restrained is subject to that other order, and (3) the provisions in this emergency order are more restrictive than the provisions in that other order. The provisions in another existing protective order remain in effect and take precedence if they are more restrictive than the provisions in this emergency protective order.

1.	California Partnership to End Domestic Violence by Christine Smith, Public Policy Coordinator	AM	Does the proposal appropriately address the stated purpose? Yes, this proposal appropriately addresses the stated purpose.	Thank you for reviewing and submitting comments for this proposal.
			Would it be helpful or relevant for courts to know whether a specific firearm or other prohibited item was stored or seized by law enforcement (see page 4 of form DV-800/JV-270)? We are in alignment with the comments submitted by Giffords Law Center.	See responses to the Giffords Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence.
			Is the new layout for the child custody section (form DV-105, item 6) easier for self-represented litigants to understand and complete? Yes, this is a significant improvement from the previous version. We appreciate this change to make it easier for self-represented litigants, many of whom are domestic violence survivors.	Thank you for your response. The committee agrees that the new layouts for custody and visitation are more user-friendly and recommends using the new format on form DV-105.
			Is the new layout for the visitation section (form DV-105, items 7 and 8) easier for self-represented litigants to understand and complete? DV-105: The name of this form has been changed, but it was not highlighted on the draft forms as was other new language. This new title could be very confusing to SRLs because this new name does not specify “custody” and “visitation” in the title.	In the proposal circulated with the Invitation to Comment the committee recommended combining forms DV-105 and DV-108, and to change the title to encompass those additional orders. Based on user-testing and comments received, the committee recommends keeping the child abduction orders on a separate form. As a result, the committee recommends reverting back to the existing title of form DV-105, “Request for Child Custody and Visitation Orders.” Additionally, at item 15 of form DV-100, the committee has added examples of orders that may be requested on form DV-105, including no visitation, supervised visitation, and orders to stop access to children’s information and records.

			DV-105A: At the top where the petitioner would check the box identifying that the form is attached to the DV-105, to be clearer the language should specifically state that the form should only be used if the address information cannot fit on the DV-105. When included as part of the very thick standard forms packet given to SRL, they will think they have to use this form in every case unless it is very clear this form is only to be used in certain limited circumstances. Something like, “Only use this form if the DV-105 does not have enough space for you to list the residence history for all your children.”	The committee agrees and has changed the instruction to make it more clear when form DV-105(A) should be used.
			The draft language is vague and unclear as to how “safe” is determined. This may lead a self-represented petitioner to understand that they could be the one to determine the child’s safety. To be clear, this option should say: “No visitation, until the Court decides it is safe for the children to visit with the person in 2.”	This section has been reorganized and no longer includes the language identified by commenter.
			DV-105 Item 7.b. The link to the website is only limitedly useful because very few self-represented petitioners complete the forms on the web. Also, the website does not appear to be available in languages other than English. An INFO page with this information in a variety of languages would be more useful than this link.	The committee agrees that having an information form to address supervised visitation and to explain other issues related to the content on form DV-105 would be helpful. The committee will consider creating a new information form for this purpose in a future cycle. In the meantime, information will be made available online on the statewide website, which will also be available in Spanish.

			Re the Prevent Child Abduction (Kidnapping) instruction box: “If you do not want to ask for these orders, do not complete the rest of this form.” Does not seem clear enough for a self-represented litigant, who often receives these forms as part of a thick packet and does/can not differentiate one form from another. It would be clearer to say in bold something like, “If you do not want to ask for these orders, do not complete the following Sections 11 through 16.”	Based on comments and user-testing, the committee recommends keeping the child abduction request (on form DV-108) and orders separate from the child custody and visitation orders. The top of form DV-108 also includes an instruction for when the litigant should complete the form.
			Are there other examples of reproductive coercion that should be listed in item 5 of form DV-100, instead of the proposed example? No, the examples are appropriate and comprehensive.	The committee agrees that the examples are appropriate. One change was made to the example, in response to a comment received. The committee changed the example to include trying to interfere or control “access to health information,” and not just access to “related health information.”
			Should language to implement Senate Bill 654 be included on the domestic violence restraining order forms? The proposal can be found at www.courts.ca.gov/policyadmin-invitationstocomment.htm It would be confusing to have this on judicial council forms, since these would be handled by Family Court Services.	The committee believes that having a space on the form for the judicial officer to state their reasons for granting unsupervised visit would be helpful. This new item is at 11a on form DV-140. The committee also recommends adding at item 7c of form DV-140, space for the judge to state its reasons for granting custody to the person in 2 (restrained person).
2.	Hon. Christine Donovan, Judge of the Superior Court of Solano County	NI	My comment concerns the DV-110 form. The DV-130 form has a section for “original order” and “_____ amended order” at the top of page 1. However, the DV-110 does not have this same option, even though courts can (and often do) issue amended TROs, a situation contemplated by the DV-116 in Item 5(b) on page 1. This means that courts are forced to doctor the DV-110 to note	The committee has made this addition.

			Yes, helpful new layout for DV-105, items 6, 7, and 8 (responding to two questions here).

			DV-110, Temporary Restraining Order On page 2, item 5(e), some language in this item is not reader-accessible. The second sentence is also potentially confusing because it is unclear what law enforcement agency the restrained person must surrender the firearms, firearms parts, or ammunition to. Potential language could be: “If law enforcement served you with a restraining order, you must immediately surrender (or give) any of the prohibited items listed in 5b to the officer, if the officer asks for them. Within 48 hours, you must also file a receipt that proves you have turned in or sold all of the prohibited items with the law enforcement agency that served you with the restraining order.”	This item has been revised. At 5(d), it now states that the restrained person must surrender items, if asked by law enforcement. The committee has also accepted commenter’s suggestion to specify that the law enforcement agency that must be provided a receipt is the agency that served the respondent with a copy of the restraining order.

For this section, the committee recommends using “firearms (guns), firearm parts, or ammunition.” This is a simplified list that is used on other forms to capture the general categories of prohibited items.
			Page 2, item 3. Both the heading and section A use the term “complied with.” As stated before, some sections in the various forms state “obey” whereas others state “complied with.” It might be helpful to have in parenthetical the word obey when using “complied with” for the first time on any give form to ensure reader accessibility.	The committee has made this change on form DV-820.

			Page 1, item 3, states “guns, firearms, firearms parts, or ammunition.” (See comments above regarding using consistent language in all forms to describe prohibited items.)	This has been changed to “firearms (guns), firearm parts, or ammunition.”
			Page 2, there is an option for the court to mail a copy of the non-compliance with firearms order to law enforcement. If the goal of the firearms statute is to have immediate relinquishment of firearms, firearms parts, and ammunition to protect survivors and prevent serious injury or death in domestic violence cases, mailing an order of non-compliance, which could unnecessarily delay law-enforcement obtaining knowledge of this information defeats this goal. Suggest that notification must be by telephone, fax, or email so that it is the notification to law enforcement of non-compliance immediate.	The committee agrees and has changed the option for mail to personal delivery.

			Page 1, item 4(e). Some language in this section is not reader-accessible. The second sentence is also potentially confusing because it is unclear what law enforcement agency the restrained person must surrender the firearms, firearms parts, or ammunition to. Potential language could be: “If law enforcement served you with a restraining order, you must immediately surrender (or give) any of the prohibited items listed in 5b to the officer, if the officer asks for them. Within 48 hours, you must also file a receipt that proves you have turned in or sold all of the prohibited items with the law enforcement agency that served you with the restraining order.”	This item has been revised. At 5(d), it now states that the restrained person must surrender items, if asked by law enforcement. The committee has also accepted commenter’s suggestion to specify that the law enforcement agency that must be provided a receipt is the agency that served the respondent with a copy of the restraining order.

			Implementing SB 24 The bill language was added to DV-105 (item 9), DV-140 (item 11) and is included in the new DV-125 (item 9). In general, the language mirrors the law. The term “access” to records can be vague outside the context of the full bill. The idea of the bill is that a third party will know not to give a restrained parent access to records once they have been notified of this order. However, access is much more than that. It could mean opening a file folder on a computer with that information. It could mean seeing something in a child’s backpack. For unrepresented litigants, it is important to be clear that this order is referencing access via third party. There is no language in the proposed changes that makes it clear that the places where these records are kept need to be given a copy of the order including the form DV-110, any proof of extensions and a long-term order if issued. While the language says the restraining party shall not have access, there is does not seem to be a proactive requirement for the restrained party to remove themselves from records they already have access to such as a school or activities list-serv.	The committee has added a notice to third-party entities at item 5 on form DV-140 that information or records for the children listed must not be provided to the restrained person. It also states at item 5 that the restrained person “must not access or have access to records or information” for the children. The committee believes that this makes it clear to the restrained person that they must not access the information or records protected by the order.
			A separate consideration may be whether there would be a context where this order was made separate from the context of overall orders for the minor children. 			depending on the circumstances, and could fall under a violation of the order to seek out the location of the protected parties. It also falls under the issue of information that could allow the restrained party to locate and jeopardize the safety of the protected parties. Given all that, it may make sense to either reference the availability of this request in the form DV-100 itself, and include a reference to an attached order in the form DV-110, as well as the form DV-130, which would make it easier to find the order from its current location on page 4 of the form DV-140. This bill reflects the fact that all it takes is one informational slip-up to put people's lives in jeopardy, so in that vein, the request and the order should be highlighted as conspicuously as possible, i.e., earlier in the document, or at least referenced as being available in the form DV-100, and again referenced in the forms DV-110 and DV-130.	committee recommends including the request on form DV-105, and not DV-100.

			term “go to” your hearing in the first sentence instead of the new word “attend.”
			In general, the language is good. For unrepresented litigants, though it is important to be clear that arrangements must be made in advance. As written, people are asked to go to a website to find their court’s website which they then have to go to in order to find out more information, but it is not clear that they have to or why. Based on what we see happen all the time, litigants may not be allowed to appear remotely if they do not follow the court’s local procedure, which at a minimum involves advance request and may require a form to be served. Adding language that folks need to check with their court in advance is important. It would also be helpful to clarify that both parties can appear remotely. The DV-120 info is clearer in that it says, “[i]f you want to attend remotely, go to the court’s website.” It would also be clearer to say, “to find out how to request to appear remotely” rather than “for more information.” The DV-520-INFO could include remote appearance as an item under the “Make arrangements” heading. Since witnesses may also appear remotely that should be added to the item on witnesses on the DV-520-INFO.	The committee has made these changes. 			In general, where there is a reference to calling the courthouse there should also be a reference to checking the court's website as calling the courthouse is simply not effective depending on the courthouse and their system and their hours.	The committee did not make this change as more information would be needed. Litigants are directed to call when a matter is time-sensitive, like if they are running late to their court hearing.

			Describe Abuse Under the Describe Abuse section, the description as listed is sufficient and effective. The language about access to health care information should be folded in elsewhere as it goes beyond health information related to pregnancy. Preventing someone from seeking health care or health information (e.g., a survivor with a dangerous or deadly disease or illness, such as HIV/AIDS), or from using condoms, or other barriers for STDs, any of which can in itself be a form of coercive control or otherwise be DVPA definition of abuse—and it important to recognize these behaviors outside of the context of reproduction. I would also recommend switching the columns so that the clear language from the statute appears first. While the Describe Abuse section is not intended to be comprehensive or in order of priority, from the perspective of someone filling this out on their own, it is clearer for them to see those forms of abuse first and determine whether or not they apply.	The committee agrees and has changed “access to related health information” to “access to health information.” The committee did not accept the suggestion to switch the columns. When form DV-100 was last revised, the committee decided to list the examples of physical abuse in the second column so as to not imply that physical abuse was preferred over non-physical abuse. This was in response to a commenter's suggestion to list non-physical examples first.

			disturbing the peace and coercive control. It is sufficient in the DV-110 to say “and reproductive coercion, including controlling someone’s reproductive choices” or “including controlling someone’s choices around pregnancy and birth control.” The lengthy explanation of the ways in which reproductive coercion can appear make it more difficult to read the other forms of coercive control which in and of themselves could also have many forms.	INFO, which includes the examples of coercive control. The committee also notes that many of the examples of coercive control provided by statute are listed at item 5. The committee believes it is important to retain the examples on the order forms so that the restrained person has notice of what coercive control includes.
			For the DV-100, item 10 seems to separate coercive control behaviors from destroying mental and emotional wellbeing, whereas elsewhere it is clearer that disturbing the peace is the destroying the mental and emotional wellbeing, and coercive control is a type of disturbing the peace. By saying destroying mental and emotional wellbeing is included in disturbing the peace, and is an example like coercive control, seems to confuse and conflate them. Coercive control is only one example, not the only example, of disturbing the peace, and disturbing the peace is only one type of abuse.	The committee has simplified this item. Instead of listing out examples of disturbing the peace, the form refers to the information form that provides all the statutory examples of disturbing the peace and the definition of disturbing the peace. The committee also notes that many of the examples of coercive control provided by statute are listed at item 5.
			For the form DV-500-INFO, it is not clear that the statute requires more than listing it as an example under the forms of coercive control rather than singling it out above the examples and then including it in the examples. It also is listed as two of the examples when there are only six in total, which again is disproportionate to the other forms of coercive control, thus unduly raising reproductive coercion in comparison to other	The section describing abuse has been reorganized to clarify the relationship between disturbing the peace and coercive control.

			Implementing AB 277 The inclusion on the form DV-500-INFO is fine. However, given that there is a discussion of address privacy on the DV-100 I think it would be useful to add something there in item 1(c). I understand given the length of time it can take, the forms do not want to mislead survivors into thinking they can get a Safe At Home address right away. At the same time, maybe even adding the words Safe At Home to the description 1(c) would help since it is designed specifically to help the survivors. So, for example, “you can use a post office box, a Safe at Home address, or another person’s address . . .” This will actually help with the purpose of the bill since not everyone reads the DV-500-INFO, or INFO forms in general.	The committee agrees and has made this addition at item 1(c) on DV-100.
			DV-105, DV-108, DV-140, DV-145
			In general, these forms and the revisions are a welcome change and will absolutely help unrepresented litigants to better understand what they can request in a DVRO and what kind of orders have been made. The change in title is helpful because it takes out the legal terms custody and visitation and makes it clear that the orders and requests can go beyond just those two issues. The new layouts for requesting custody and visitation and making those orders is clearer and more user-friendly than before.	The committee agrees that the new layouts for custody and visitation are more user-friendly and have incorporated those new layouts on form DV-105 and DV-140. 				Custody and Visitation Orders.” To help litigants understand what types of orders they can request on form DV-105, at item 15 of form DV-100, the committee has added examples of orders that may be requested including no visitation, supervised visitation, and orders to stop access to children’s information and records.
			Child Abuse For the specific issue of Child Abduction which was to be addressed as part of the request through the DV-108 and through orders as part of the DV-108 the change helps to clarify that the issue of child abduction goes beyond no-travel orders and requests. It also will allow for greater consideration of those issues at the same time the other requests are being made. It will be important that those orders are crossed out or there is another way to indicate which orders were not granted or if there was no finding made.	User-testing was conducted on the proposed form DV-105. Results showed that litigants were confused by the abduction orders being included on the proposed form, as a “no travel with children order” seemed sufficient. Based on these results, the committee does not recommend combining form DV-105 with DV-108.
			A particular concern, though, is the way in which the request at item 11 and the orders seem to imply that one only needs to have one of the items checked off to have a basis for a child abduction request and finding. Simply being a non-US citizen or having a criminal record regardless of the crime does not allow a court to make an abduction order. It is not uncommon for courts to make orders about abduction simply on these bases even though the law is clear that the threshold is not that low. For survivors who have restraining orders file against them in retaliation, they may have already been told that their	It is unclear whether the issue raised by commenter can be addressed by changing the form but the committee has revised the instruction in DV-108 to read as follows, “In this section, explain to the judge why you believe there is a risk that the person in 2 will take your children without your permission and hide them from you. 			immigration status will be used to take custody. As presented in the forms, it appears that any one of the items checked off will be enough to issue an order when that is not the case. In general, it is a positive change that the Respondent will have to independently ask for abduction orders rather than being able to do so easily through their response, for survivors who have restraining orders. Having seen abduction orders be filed against survivors simply because they were not U.S. citizens it will hopefully make a difference. However, neither petitioners who are actually abusive nor survivors should believe or get the idea that some of the factors absent other factors will be enough for an abduction order and frankly neither should the court.
			For the custody box on the DV-105, the explanation and definitions are helpful and make it clearer. But the sentence that if a judge makes a custody order the person with custody cannot take the child out of California without permission from the court is confusing. First the parties can stipulate without court order that the child may leave California, even though that is not likely, it is still possible. Second by specifically mentioning the person with custody, it makes it seem as if the person without custody would be able to take the child out of California, which is of course not the case. Both parties in fact may be under ATROs to not remove the child if they are already part of a larger case. While I understand the issue of making sure survivors know they may not be able to legally flee the state with the kids, as phrased it	The committee agrees and has removed the advisement.

			seems somewhat inaccurate, one-sided, and misleading.
			The confusion also carries over to item 10, where one can request that they or the other party not be able to travel without permission because it includes California. First why would a petitioner request an order that they not be allowed to travel with the children. Second, if as noted in the Custody box, the person with custody already cannot take the child out of California what is the purpose of this order unless the other party can in spite of not having custody or having joint custody which is generally not true.	The committee agrees and has modified this item to remove the request regarding restricting travel for petitioners.
			It may also be unclear why someone has to complete the rest of the form on child kidnapping when they have already requested not taking the children out of California in Item 10. Would it make sense to ask for orders under Item 10 if you did not believe there was a risk? It may make more sense to add a parenthetical that makes it clear that this is about travel within and without the state. The box on Prevent Child Abduction could have more emphasis on stopping and not completing the rest of the form there if the orders will not be requested.	The committee agrees, as indicated above, and recommends keeping the child abduction orders on a separate form.
			I think the issue of costs for supervised visitation should be clarified to make it clear that they may not always be costs or that there may be reduced costs. Judges routinely use cost as a reason not to order supervised visitation, and a survivor may not request supervised visitation because they are concerned that the other side can't pay, will not	This requested change is outside the scope of this proposal but will be considered in the future as time and resources allow.

			pay, or will be more angry as a result. I don't know why we have to put it on the survivor to request who should pay when the court should be ordering the person who needs to be supervised to pay, if required. If the court wants to order the parties to split it, the court can still do that, but why does the survivor have to request not to have to pay those costs? While it is possible that, if a survivor can afford it and the other party cannot, a survivor might be willing to absorb the costs just so that the visits can be supervised, that is a discussion that does not need to be clarified in the DV-100 or 105.
			Separately, Family Code 3011 now requires that a court that has received allegations of DV give its reasons for ordering unsupervised visitation. In theory this should mean no visitation until the hearing absent reasons in writing or on a record. These mandatory steps could be reflected in the DV-140 to remind the judge or put them on notice or in the DV-105 to give information to the survivor. For example, the DV-105 could note at item 7 that if 7b is requested, the court must give its reasons on the record for denying the request. This might make it a little easier for an unrepresented survivor to ask for a court's reasons if they do not give it or make it more likely the court will actually follow through with the requirements. The FL forms are being amended to implement SB 654. 			Finally, supervised exchange should be an option to request. Professional supervisors may offer this, and non-professional supervisors could also be used. This is an in-between option that could be easier for a survivor to navigate rather than all of nothing. Given that the exchange itself is often the time when abuse happens (particularly since courts allow “brief and peaceful contact for visitation” and almost no one can agree on what brief and peaceful means), supervised exchange would give survivors additional options even if they do not feel strongly about supervised visitation or the court is not interested. It could be framed as checking more than one option so if the court denies the request for supervised visitation supervised exchange is still on the table.	The committee agrees that form DV-105 should include the option of having exchanges supervised and has added it at item 13a. The committee does not recommend allowing the requester to ask for supervised exchanges, as an alternative in the event that a request for supervised visits are denied by the court. This would make the form more complicated and harder to understand, especially for self-represented litigants.

			For item 3, the DV-105 form should make it clear at item 3 that a parent can ask for an order keeping the information of the minor confidential, even though they would be directed to another form. This is not a request that is well-known or widely used, and whether or not it is likely to succeed, survivors need to know they have that option at this stage, if not earlier. While information is included in the DV-505-INFO, few people read those informational forms, few clerks offer informational forms, and some courts simply do not have those informational forms available. Given the way it is specifically noted as Item 5 on the DV-109, it should be something a survivor is informed about as early as Item 8 on the DV-100	This has been added to the instruction at the top of form DV-100.

			Request form, rather than waiting, since the request is not dependent on filing a DV-105. But at a minimum it should be noted by Item 3 on the DV-105.
			For item 5, I reiterate my suggestion that child welfare or dependency be an option as that is a more common term than “juvenile court” to describe non-criminal cases. I also reiterate that including child support and parentage as options since they are the actual names of overarching actions would be helpful. The purpose of the box is to let someone else know what cases may already exist. Depending on the case, the docket and information may be confidential. The risk of confusion or misunderstanding seems low relative to the value of the information that it will give the court.	The committee has changed the case type to “Juvenile (child welfare and juvenile justice).” “Child support” has been added as an example of a court case under “other.” Parentage was not added as laypeople typically refer to those cases as “custody cases” which is already included at item 5.
			For item 6, the description should be changed to “Joint (shared together or held together)” rather than “Shared,” because Joint is the actual term that will be used in the order and going forward. While the word “shared” helps conceptually to a degree, it is still just an explanation, and not an actual right in the way that joint legal or joint physical would be, as those are defined terms. The term “Sole” is used, but that could use a parenthetical explanation as well.	The committee has changed the language to “jointly (shared).”

			DV-125 This form does a great job of keeping the issues clear and distinct where needed, and as part of the improvement that come with DV-105 and DV-140. Since those two forms are mandatory, and the DV-120 is mandatory, the DV-125 should be a mandatory form where a DV-105 is filed. The form gives information to restrained parties that will be useful both in protecting and clarifying their rights while having them consider the full range of orders that can be requested in a DV-105. Since three forms are being eliminated, I am assuming it is not a cost issue. It is unclear to me why filing a DV-120 would be enough where a DV-105 is filed. Item 13 on the DV-120 allows for the option of “I do not agree to the order requested because” The DV-125 is suggested as an option only if they have a different custody order in mind. Was that really the intent? Since there are orders beyond just custody and visitation in the DV-105, shouldn’t the DV-120 lead them to filing the DV-125 regardless, particularly if there are abduction orders? 			DV-105(A) I am not sure if it has been an issue that there is not enough space on the form to list all the residences, or that it would be impractical to include it in the DV-120 or DV-125, but to the extent it is then the DV-105(A) is helpful. I think it is confusing to say name of child or children without further explanation, though. Someone will only need the second box on the form if one of their children has a different residence history, so putting a line and a parenthetical reflecting that would be helpful.	The committee has added instructions to form DV-105(A) to address commenter's concern.
			DV-120-INFO
			Overall, the changes to all INFO forms are helpful and continue the Committee's excellent efforts to make the process of requesting and responding to a DVRO and going to hearing. The format of answering questions commonly asked by unrepresented litigants continues to be useful, and the answers continue to improve.	Thank you for your response.

Not all examples suggested by commenter were included as the list is meant to be illustrative but not exhaustive.

			What is the difference in information between “I was served with form DV-100” section and “What are my next steps” section? Maybe change the title on the second page or alter the first on to make it more distinguishable	Thank you for the comment. The committee has reorganized the form to make the content and headings more intuitive.
			For “What if I was Arrested”, the information should be both ways. Anything a person says in their criminal case can be used against them in the restraining order case, and any compelled testimony from the DVRO case may be used in the criminal case (which means the abuser can still submit other evidence in the DVRO matter). Otherwise, it reads a bit too much like people have a broad, plenary 5th Amendment right in a DVRO case, which is not really the case.	The committee has revised the language to indicate that anything that is said by the person could be used in this case or in any criminal case.
			Under Item 2 of “What are my next steps?”, the right to a continuance has to be mentioned. If a person files a response prior to the hearing, they may lose their right to a continuance unless they can argue that they need a lawyer.	The form now directs people to talk to a lawyer or self-help center staff if they need more time to prepare for their case.

Obey orders about property is vague because people tend to think of real estate and the statement does not make it clear that the order can keep people from destroying or selling property or give up control of the property to the survivor	The committee has added some of the examples suggested by commenter. The same examples provided to the petitioner on form DV-500-INFO are the same examples listed on form DV-120-INFO.
			For “How soon can I get the order”, it more accurate to say the court is supposed to give it to you no later than the next business day since courts routinely do not or make it difficult for you to actually get the order the next day even if it is granted.	The committee has changed the language to “The judge must decide same day or the next business day (next day court is open).” This information is consistent with what the Family Code requires.
			For “Am I eligible” see comments in other sections about clarifying qualified relationships and the reproductive coercion language.	See responses to those comments.
			For “Can the order stop the other parent . . .” see comments in other sections about travel orders. The language should also match to say if the just grants orders they will be listed in DV-140, as the rest of the INFO sheet on this point is not written as if someone already has an order.	The committee has removed this section in the form. It may cause confusion, as described by other commenters above.

			section, because there simply may not be one available to them.
			DV-505-INFO
			For Part 1, Which forms do I complete, it lists the DV-140 as a form the survivor has to complete, when the form itself does not say that. The form should be completed by the court, or if the expectation is that they have to fill out part of it like the DV-110, then that should be clear.	Courts have different practices on this issue. The committee will make note of this and consider adding an instruction on form DV-140 in the future when comment on this can be sought.
			For Part 2, Tips for completing the form, the issue of qualifying relationship is already covered in several other spots including the DV-100 and DV-500-INFO. This space could be used for another tip.	The committee agrees and has removed the list of qualifying relationships and, instead, refers to the list of qualifying relationships provided on form DV-100.
			In the Describe the abuse section, it may help to reference DV-500-INFO, which explains what is abuse. Also, “describe” could be explained and have examples such as what a person said, how they looked, what they actually did and how they did it, dates and times, etc.	A reference to form DV-500-INFO has been added. The committee did not add examples of how to describe the abuse as form DV-100 itself contains those examples at items 5 through 7.
			The “How old must I be” section seems more appropriate for DV-500-INFO. The DV 505-INFO form is theoretically for those who already know they can ask for a DVRO at this point.	The committee believes that the information should be included on both information forms as not all restraining order packets will include all INFO forms.

			For “What is a Batterer Intervention Program”, there is enough space to add a line that explains a BIP it is not the same thing as anger management. This is important because we still see courts often ordering anger management instead of BIPs. While courts can arguably order anger management and any other reasonable program because of their broad authority under Family Code section 6322, anger management programs should not be viewed as substitutes for BIPs.¹ Indeed, they could work well together for some abusers. The statute setting the standards for BIPs does not use the term “anger” (Pen. Code, § 1203.097, subd. (c)), and BIPs, not anger management programs, are a proven useful measurement for an abuser’s progress (e.g., Fam. Code, § 3044, subd. (b)(2)(A)). Some BIPs may include anger management as a component of their curricula, but the desire to control an intimate partner, not anger, is the root of domestic abuse. In fact, the Legislature in 1999 added the reference to the Penal Code statute, into the DVPA (Fam. Code, § 6343), precisely because courts were sending abusers to inadequate counseling and treatment programs, such as anger management, (Stats. 1999, ch. 662, § 3; Sen. Com. on Judiciary, com. on Sen. Bill No. 218 (1999-2000 Reg. Sess.) Abusers routinely claim that they ‘just lost it,’ suggesting that the violence was an impulsive and rare event beyond control. Domestic violence is not typically a singular incident nor does it simply involve physical attacks. It is a deliberate set of tactics where physical violence is used to solidify the abuser’s power in the relationship. In reality, only an estimated 5 to 10 percent of perpetrators have difficulty with controlling their aggression. Most abusers do not assault others outside the family, such as police officers, coworkers, or neighbors, but direct their abuse toward the victim or children. This distinction challenges claims that they cannot manage their anger.” (Bragg, Child Protection in Families Experiencing Domestic Violence, (2003) p. 18; Gondolf & Russell, The Case Against Anger Control for Batterers (1986) 9 Response 1, 3 “[W]ife abuse is not necessarily anger-driven,” but more the consequence of a socially imposed “need to control women”; as a result men who “frequently cited anger control techniques as their means for reducing abuse” were less successful in reducing abuse or reforming; “[B]atterers readily reduce anger control to a set of gimmicks that enables them to get their way less violently while continuing their abuse”; “[a]nger control fails to account for the

			For Parts 3 and 4, suggesting that someone will be able to get information by calling the courthouse, when that, in our experience, isn’t happening always, can be frustrating and disheartening for folks. From what we have gathered, court personnel do not want people to call them with these questions, and between complex phone trees, severe hour restrictions, and answering machines, they can make it very difficult to get any question answered—and certainly not as easily and readily as all these forms make it seem. Also it is not always true that it will be ready the same day or next business day.	For part 3, the committee has added an instruction to check the court’s website. The information form reflects what is statutorily required. If there are delays, this should be addressed with the local court.

			is simply not enough time to lay out all the suggestions for improvement. Here are a few but not all suggestions below.
			The first item is bring evidence or witnesses. We can be a voice in helping survivors know that their own testimony is itself sufficient evidence, and has already been submitted through their declarations on the DV-100 and other forms. (Fam. Code, § 6300, subd. (a).) If they have additional evidence in the form of any type of written or oral communication or witnesses, then they can add that, but it is not required. (Ibid.; In re Marriage of F.M. & M.M. (2021) 65 Cal.App.5th 106.)	The committee has added language to indicate that bringing witnesses and evidence, aside from one's own statements, is optional.
			At the same time, it should be clear the petitioner has the burden of proof. And specifically mentioned should be that their burden is to prove the matter by a preponderance of the evidence (Evid. Code, § 115; In re Marriage of Davila & Mejia (2018) 29 Cal.App.5th 220), which means more likely than not at least one past act of abuse has occurred (Fam. Code, § 6300, subd. (a)) and a DVRO is warranted under the totality of the circumstances (id., § 6301, subd. (c)).	The committee agrees that this information should be added, and has done so in plain language.
			The section on Evidence also talks about making evidence available, and then separately if they have already filed and served. They will have to have copies, not just make it available, and they have to be given to the other side before the hearing, or at least before a judge can look at them. Also do the self-help centers know that they are supposed to help people with this information,	The committee has added that the party must have three copies if they are attending in person and to contact the local self-help center regarding evidence for a remote hearing, as the practice will vary across counties, and departments. If self-help centers are not equipped to provide the information, they will likely be able to refer litigants to other resources that may be available.

			what does someone do if there really is no accessible SHC, where do they go?
			Witnesses can appear remotely even if the survivor appears in person. A court may require notice to the other side regardless of the number of witnesses, and since the respondent has the option of a continuance in some circumstances, survivors and witnesses need to be prepared to possibly have to come back.	The committee has changed the language to “you or a witness” may attend remotely.
			The “Plan what you want to say” section needs more accessible terms than “weigh in” and arguing in their case “allegations”. I would prefer to see something that acknowledges that not everyone can write it down, and that this does not help everyone. Especially since this will be in different languages.	The language has been changed to, “If you do not agree, tell the judge.” All forms in this form set do assume that the reader has a certain literacy level and ability to write. The committee will make note of the fact that the forms are not designed for someone who may not be able to write or read in English, in the event that alternatives are created, such as audio versions of the content.
			As noted, the issue of whether and how to arrange remote appearance should be part of the arrangements before the court hearing. Also “What to expect at your hearing” is written as if people have choices about how they show up. If they show up too early, they may not even be allowed in the court building, or they may not be allowed to sit in the hallway, or may have to do so with the abusive party in the same hall. If they are having a video appearance, they may get stuck in a waiting room and in some cases never get out.	The section on remote appearances has been moved to the “Make arrangements...” section on page 1. The committee did not change the advisement on arriving early as the goal is to ensure that they do not miss their hearing.

			The issue of the continuance should clearly state that the other side has a right to an automatic continuance if they haven't filed a response. (Fam. Code, § 245, subd. (a) ["The respondent shall be entitled, as a matter of course, to one continuance for a reasonable period, to respond to the petition."], italics added.)	This information is listed on page 2.
			Also, it is important for those who are appearing remotely to know how they will get a copy of their order. They may or may not be expected to complete it and file it themselves.	Step-by-step instructions are now provided on page 3 and apply to in person and remote appearances.
			DV-530-INFO When discussing options for survivors, it should be clear there may be risks for doing certain things. For instance, calling the police can be dangerous or risky (e.g., arrest of abuser or survivor or both; immigration consequences; eviction or other tenant issues), or it may not be safe, and there is no information about how a survivor can let the court know about any of this. Plus, it gives suggestions about people to whom to give copies of the restraining order, without describing that there may be safety and other risks involved in doing so.	The committee has added information about actions that a judge could take if the restraining order is violated. This can be viewed as an alternative to calling the police for those who would not call the police for help. In the section on providing copies to others, the committee has added language to explain that this "should only be done if it is safe to do so."

			DVRO, it is not clear whether or not it applies to “former” in-law relatives. It should be made clear whether people who are no longer someone’s relatives by marriage can be included, which they arguably should be. (Fam. Code, § 6211, subd. (f).)
			Priority of Enforcement The additions to the CPO section are helpful but the more consistency and clarity with the terms would be helpful. While I appreciate that this may be more for law enforcement or others, the parties are often in the dark about what orders they have, and how they relate to one another because there are different court systems and actors involved. Therefore, for the parties it would be helpful to have more clarity with the numbered items. For Number 1, I think EPO should be spelled out. It is not an acronym that is immediately understood, and the information given by the name is itself helpful.	This change, to spell out Emergency Protective Order, has been made.
			Number 2, No-Contact order is not clear. If it is a No-Contact Order in a TRO, then what does that mean if there is also a CPO? The TRO should control if the CPO doesn’t have a no-contact order, right? It should be clearer either what a No-Contact order might look like, or otherwise be called, or where exactly it might be found, for example, item 10 on the TRO; and clarify whether it can be civil or criminal, or both.	The committee has changed the language to make it clear that a no-contact order in any restraining or protective order must be enforced. This section now references the item number for the no-contact order.
			Number 3, it would be clearer to separate out Criminal Protective Order from Criminal Order, so that it is clearer for a survivor if they actually have	As this section deals with conflicting restraining orders, the committee has changed this item to specifically address criminal protective orders.

			that type of order. Depending on how Number 2 is clarified, it could also be split into Criminal Protective Order and Other Criminal Orders.
			Number 4 is unclear because unlike the other numbers, it does not reference how it specifically relates to the other numbers. What might be an example of having multiple civil orders and how would that relate to what was said in the earlier numbers? If someone has a DVRO no-contact order in an earlier order, does that take priority over a later order that do not have no-contact orders? It seems yes, but as written, it is not clear.	The committee believes that the new proposed language makes it clear that a no-contact order must be enforced, and if there is more than one civil restraining order, the most recent order is enforced. The committee is interested in simplifying this section and hopes to gather feedback from law enforcement in the future.

Re: proposed repeal of Rule 5.495, we agree that SB 320 codified this rule of court, however, it should be noted that the Advisory Committee Comment was not part of SB 320. If the rule is repealed, we recommended ensuring that the information contained in the Advisory Committee Comment be documented and included in training for judicial officers and court staff going forward as it reflects Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee and Judicial Council thinking and policy in this area. For example, to support relinquishment and reduce risk, courts need to recognize that use immunity under Family Code section 6389 is possible as current rule 5.495 indicates in the Comment.	Thank you for reviewing and submitting comments for this proposal. 			On page 21, #9, "Does person in 2 have firearms (guns), firearm parts, or ammunition?" as a phrase (firearms (guns), firearm parts, ammunition) that should be used consistently as opposed to the more confusing "firearms, guns, etc." It appears to be redundant when both guns and firearms are used below rather than putting "guns" in parenthesis.	The committee agrees to reference firearms as "firearms (guns)."
			Page 26, #27 should reference PC 1203.097 to ensure the program is approved and not another type of program that may not help reduce risk.	The committee recommends including the citation to Penal Code section 1203.097 to the order form, instead of the request, as it is unlikely that the citation would be useful to petitioner at the time of the request.

			DV-105, there should be reference to FC 6323(e) which requires that when a court is determining whether visitation should be suspended, denied, or limited to situations in which a third person is present, the court must consider whether there is violation of the firearm prohibition. For example, a question on this form asking whether the petitioner believes the person has violated the firearm prohibition may be helpful in obtaining that critical information.	The committee did not adopt this suggestion. At the time of the request, there would be no firearms prohibition for the restrained person to violate. Therefore, including a question as to whether the petitioner believes that the person has violated the firearms prohibition would be unanswerable. 			In #7 and #8, virtual visitation should be included as an option given the availability of relevant technology and the possibility that virtual visitation may provide a way to reduce risk as opposed to in person visitation.	The committee believes that virtual visitation is appropriate in some, and not all, situations, and depends on a number of factors, including whether a professional provider has policies in place to safely conduct virtual visitation. The committee believes that orders for virtual visitation are currently being made on a case-by-case basis, and does not recommend include it as an option on the forms before considering various policy issues.

The committee agrees that referencing local protocols for relinquishment would helpful. However, the committee believes that this information should be on order form DV-110, rather than form DV-109, which is the notice of court hearing form.

The committee does not agree that “prohibited items” is too vague as the order explains what “prohibited items” covers. The committee believes that using a shorter phrase to capture firearms (guns), firearm parts, and ammunition makes the content easier to read and understand. 			some courts are submitting this information electronically to all county law enforcement agencies given jurisdictional issues and risks. Consider, "The court will immediately notify law enforcement and within two days, the appropriate prosecuting agency unless proof of relinquishment is provided prior to the court notifying the prosecuting agency," since notice could happen before a full two days.	when possible, is key to improving enforcement. If a court determines that notification through an electronic system is appropriate in a situation, the court could indicate so on the form (e.g. all law enforcement agencies in [name of county] notified via [means of notification]).
			Under 9(c), there is an implication that the law allows for another two days for the person to comply. However, the court has found them to be in violation and FC 6389(c)(2)(B)(4) says the court has two days to notify the prosecuting agency.	The committee has changed the language to "immediately notify" as the order is intended to communicate to the restrained person that notification will happen quickly. The committee has also included an instruction on form DV-800-INFO that the restrained person may provide a receipt of surrender to the prosecuting agency.
			Because the OAH may be the first time the person becomes prohibited, it may be helpful to provide information in 10 to distinguish between 9 and 10 to avoid confusion and clarify that the person has 48 hours to provide a receipt, such as, "You must attend the court hearing in 6 or submit a receipt to the court and law enforcement within 48 hours of receiving this order to prove you have properly turned in all firearms, firearm parts, or ammunition."	The committee did not accept this change. Courts may still want to conduct a review hearing even if a receipt is filed.

			On EPO-001, the reference to firearms being "searched for" has caused some confusion: does this mean searched for electronically in the Automated Firearms System (AFS) or physically searched for at the scene? It would be clarifying for both the officer requesting the EPO, and the court, and for anyone enforcing or protected by the order to know which occurred. Suggesting a clarifying checkbox with language indicated what is meant be added.	This change has been made at item 10 on the form.
			Re: the request for comment on the specific question "Would it be helpful or relevant for courts to know whether a specific firearm or other prohibited item was stored or seized by law enforcement?," we believe that yes, it would [be] very helpful in reducing risk and ensuring a fair process for more specific information about firearms, parts, and ammunition that have been stored or seized to be provided given that there may be a combination of compliance and non-compliance that must be sorted out by the court and law enforcement. 			Item 6: Propose removing checkboxes for compliance because that is not possible prior to issuance of DV-110. If this is meant to reflect a finding when a DV-110 is continued, that should be done through a form attached on the DV-116 or perhaps the stand-alone DV-820 is preferable, which could then be attached to the DV-110 when applicable or DV-130. Inserting the checkboxes here will likely cause confusion for judicial officers. Another benefit of a stand-alone form is that it could be used to indicate that notification to law enforcement and/or the local prosecuting attorney was completed as required by Family Code sections 6306 and 6389. Having these findings and notifications made only on DV-130 does not seem efficient or sufficient to comply with the notifications, which could be made on a continued DV-110.	The committee did not remove the checkboxes for compliance. In the event that the court seeks to amend a previously issued form DV-110, including some information here regarding proof of compliance may be sufficient and avoid the need for the attachment (form DV-820). For example, the restrained person may have firearms and be fully compliant with the firearms relinquishment order.
			Item 7: Propose removing this section and including on a separate document or format for reasons provided above regarding item 6.	Some courts may have a practice of setting review hearings for all cases in which temporary orders were granted. Also, some courts consider the request for temporary orders at an ex parte hearing. Because of these situations, the committee recommends keeping the item on scheduling a compliance review hearing.
			Item 14: Propose reverting to former section name. "Request for Orders for Minor Children" can be interpreted as orders by which the minor(s) must comply. Alternatively, change to	The committee recommends reverting back to the existing heading for this item which is "Child Custody and Visitation."

Alternatively, change to “Request for Orders Regarding Minor Children.”	The committee recommends reverting back to the existing heading for this item which is “Child Custody and Visitation.”
			DV-120-INFO Propose reverting reference to “Request for Orders for Minor Children” as indicated above.	This form no longer references form DV-105 or DV-140.
			DV-125 Propose renaming form “Response to Request for Orders Regarding Minor Children.” Existing title can be interpreted as orders by which the minor(s) must comply	The committee recommends reverting back to the existing title for forms DV-105 and DV-140.
			DV-130
			Item 4: Propose editing the language to state: “Custody and visitation orders end when the child is 18” since that is always true, and the remainder could read “child support orders end by operation of law on or after the child is 18.”	The committee believes that the information provided is sufficient to give the person general information about when orders typically end. The current language is in plain language and easy to understand, while the language “by operation of law” would not be understood by laypeople.
			Item 8: Propose adding checkboxes to indicate whether the item is registered to assist with compliance and future orders. In addition,	The committee did not accept the suggestion to indicate whether an item is registered as some courts will not have access to the Automated Firearm System, and space is limited in this

			Item 17: Propose reverting to former section name. “Request for Orders for Minor Children” can be interpreted as orders by which the minor(s) must comply. Alternatively change to “Request for Orders Regarding Minor Children.”	The committee recommends reverting back to the existing heading, which is “Child Custody and Visitation Order.”
			Item 30: If the committee interprets a remote appearance at such a hearing to be sufficient such that no further service of the order is needed, it would be helpful to courts to have a CRC which expressly includes such language, since the emergency orders on this topic are set to sunset soon.	In order to address any uncertainty as to whether further service is required for enforcement purposes when the restrained person appeared remotely, the advisory committees dealing with protective orders will consider developing a rule of court to address this issue in a future cycle. Until such a rule is in place, the committee withdraws its recommendation to change the language in this item.
			Notice/Proof of Service: This section uses the language that has been updated elsewhere in the forms, “The restrained person was at the restraining order hearing” if a remote appearance by a Respondent will suffice for service purposes, this should also be reflected here. 			Alternatively change to “Orders Regarding Minor Children.”
			Item 8: The findings included in the proposed version of FL-341, item 9(b) should be added here so those mandatory findings are made as the issuance of DV-130 necessarily implicates Family Code sections 3011(a)(5)(A) and 3044.	The committee has added space for a judicial officer to state their reasons for granting unsupervised visits at item 11a on form DV-140. The committee also recommends adding at item 7c of form DV-140 to address the requirements related to granting sole or joint custody to the restrained person.
			Propose the last paragraph on page one replace the word “parent” with “relative” because most courts would not find a parent a suitable guardian ad litem for a child bringing a restraining order against another parent, and this reference can cause confusion.	The committee has changed the language to “trusted relative” which could include a parent, as this determination will be made on a case-by-case basis.
			Propose adding that the judge will receive information regarding registered firearms through the Family Code section 6306 search, but information about firearms that have not been registered nor ammunition is generally unavailable to the court unless that information is provided by the party seeking a restraining order.	The committee did not add this information as some courts may not have access to the Automated Firearms System.

			Propose adding language to recommend logging into a remote appearance early in addition to “Show up to the hearing* early” in the event of technical difficulties.	The committee has added information about trying out remote technology.
			Propose editing the section regarding continuances because judges do not need to grant a restrained party’s request to continue the hearing if requested at the first hearing in the event they have already filed a response.	The committee has changed the language to indicate that a continuance must be granted if the restrained person has not filed a response.
			DV-530-INFO Propose adding, “or restricts access to your child’s information” to the first bullet point under the section regarding providing a copy of the order to other people and/or reference the next section below for additional orders regarding children.	The committee believes it is sufficient to have this information under the section, “What if the Judge Granted Orders to Protect My Children?”
			DV-800-INFO Propose adding “Ammunition includes:” section.	Examples of ammunition have been added.

			Propose using a separate form for this when attached to DV-110 because the column for proof of compliance may cause confusion.	The committee did not remove the checkboxes for compliance on form DV-110. In the event that the court seeks to amend a previously issued form DV-110, including information on whether the court has received proof of compliance on form DV-110 may be sufficient and avoid the need for form DV-820. For example, the restrained person may have firearms and be fully compliant with the firearms relinquishment order.
			DV-840: Propose adding a blank line for item 6(b) so it is clear information might need to be added.	The committee has made this change.
			EPO-001: Propose editing first and second highlighted sections on page 2 to accurately reflect “3e” which appears three times in that paragraph.	The committee has made these changes.
10.	Trial Court Presiding Judges Advisory Committee and Court Executives Advisory Committee Joint Rules Subcommittee	AM	Due to the volume of changes to the current forms and the creation of new forms, some courts may need to modify their CMS systems as noted by the drafters. While normally, three months is sufficient to implement new forms, courts may require additional time to review internal processes due to the nature and sensitivity of domestic violence cases, hearings, and orders.	Thank you for your response. The committee appreciates the amount of work involved in implementing new forms changes. Many of the changes in this proposal are to implement new laws that became effective on January 1, 2022. Given the importance and safety issues associated with the new laws, specifically Senate Bill 320, the committee does not recommend delaying implementation of this proposal.
			No substantive comments on Form DV-100, other than a stylistic one. I would recommend that the newly added bullet point starting with “tried” is reformatted to fit in the first column.	The committee has made this change.

			DV-110 - consider changing the phrase “CLETS-TRO” to “California Law Enforcement Telecommunications – TRO.” Many people outside of the judiciary and law enforcement may not understand the term “CLETS.”	This identifier is an agreed upon identifier with the California Department of Justice. It provides the three alpha characters (identifier) needed to enter the order into the CLETS. In the example provided by commenter, “TRO” is the CLETS identifier. Because the intended audience of the identifier is the person entering the restraining order into the CLETS, the committee does not recommend this change. The committee also notes that there are space limitations in the footer that would make it impractical to use the “California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System.”
